WILSON ASSAILED FOR GARVAN'S SALE OF GERMAN PATENTS

SO THE DEAL WAS INVALID

Chemical Foundation Officers Called Buyers and Sellers as Suit to Recover Opens.

NOT "FRAUD IN FACT"

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 4.—The Government launched today its attack in the Federal court here to set aside the sale of 4,800 German dye and chemical patents to the Chemical Foundation, Inc., by Francis P. Garvan, Alien Property Custodian at the time of the sale.

Col. Henry W. Anderson, Special Assistant Attorney General, complained to Judge Hugh M. Morris that Frank L. Polk, then Acting Secretary of State, who authorized the private sale of the patents to a combination of bidders in the chemical industry, exceeded his authority.

The Government alleged that President Wilson, in his hurry to depart for Paris in December, 1918, practically and illegally designated Mr. Polk as "Acting President." Colonel Anderson argued that the President could just as well confer his executive authority on anybody passing the White House.

Much was made by counsel of the fact that Mr. Polk was not sworn in as "Acting President." He emphasized that officials of the Custodian's office were also officers of the Foundation, thereby voiding the transaction, in that they were sellers and buyers at the same time in the same transaction.

Colonel Anderson alleged that there was "fraud in law," but expressed the hope that there was no fraud "in fact." He charged that a combination of chemical interests, including the du Ponts, misrepresented facts and thereby, with the Custodian, induced Polk to sign the order authorizing the private sale.

Calls Sum Paid "Ridiculous."

During his four-hour address opening the case, which may last several weeks, Colonel Anderson complained that the 4,800 patents covering dyes and chemicals over which the Germans had exclusive control in this country went for the "ridiculous" sum of $250,000, whereas the annual imports of dyes were $25,000,000. The Government estimates the value of the 4,800 patents as high as $100,000,000.

In a special session held last month to accommodate Dr. Carl Holderman, who had come from Germany for the purpose, Dr. Holderman estimated the worth of one group of these patents at between $17,000,000 and $20,000,000. He is an officer of the Badische Company, former owner of some of the seized patents.

Conferences in Washington, Colonel Anderson said, effected the arrangement for the private sale, barring other bidders then the chemical group, and arranged for the price and the organization of the Chemical Foundation, the profits of which, above 6 per cent., are supposed to go into research work in chemical fields.

These conferences, he asserted, comprised representatives of the chemical companies and the Alien Property Custodian. The sale was made under the Trading With the Enemy act and negotiations were begun by A. Mitchell Palmer, first Custodian, and carried out by Garvan, his successor. Colonel Thomas W. Miller, present Custodian, is prominent in assailing the sale by his predecessors.

Aiding Colonel Anderson, the Government's legal staff included Herman J. M. Offley, Thomas E. Rhodes, Apier Galloway, William W. Wilson, William Whitaker and James H. Hughes Jr. Attorneys for the Foundation and Garvan included William D. Guthrie, Isador J. Kresel, Bernard Hershkopf, Lucien H. Boggs and William G. Mahaffy.

Colonel Anderson occupied the entire session with his opening argument. Mr. Krebel will speak for the defense tomorrow and presentation of evidence will follow.

Tells of Patents Sale.

Colonel Anderson opened with a narrative of the war conditions that made necessary the Trading With the Enemy act, under which Palmer was made Alien Property Custodian, with authority to seize property in this country owned by German nationals.

"The Custodian," said Colonel Anderson, "sold some 4,600 patents, trademarks, &c., to the Chemical Foundation, organized under the laws of Delaware. We contend that at the inducement of persons who had large financial interest in the accomplishment of that result the purpose of the original Trading With the Enemy act was greatly enlarged, and that these patents, which were in no way connected with property to be sold by the Custodian, were then seized in large quantities and sold in bulk on the inducement of persons who had interests to be served in having them sold.

"We will undertake to show that, prior to the middle of 1918, there had been very large combinations of dyestuffs and chemical industries by merger. The first result was the National Aniline and Dyestuffs Company. These and others consolidated shortly after into the much larger Allied Chemical and Dyestuffs Corporation. Other measures were taken to bring about a general control by certain interests of

Rum Runners Plan to Flood State With Canadian Liquor

TORONTO, June 4.—Dispatches from Ottawa today declared that cargoes of Canadian beer and whisky were moving toward the international boundary on their way to New York State as a result of the repeal of the State Prohibition Enforcement law there.

Canadian officials stationed along the border reported that rum runners were actively engaged in plans to flood New York with Dominion "hard stuff."

With the coming of Summer weather the liquor smugglers' trade is beginning to boom again, following the Winter shutdown. Repeal of the enforcement law has brought new blood and new capital into the business, and, the dispatch declares, it appears that unprecedented quantities of illegal beverages soon will be going south.

ISSUE RAISED ON GERMAN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—State statutes preventing the teaching of foreign languages to pupils below the eighth grade in the public, private and parochial schools of Iowa, Nebraska, Ohio and eighteen other States were declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court today.

Justice McReynolds in a majority opinion held that the Nebraska Supreme Court erred in sustaining the conviction of Robert T. Meyer, a parochial school teacher, who instructed a ten-year-old child in German. The Meyer conviction was originally obtained under an act passed by the Nebraska State Legislature forbidding the teaching of any language except English in the schools.

On the ground of the Meyer decision today, the Supreme Court reversed the Supreme Courts of Iowa, Ohio and Nebraska in four cases, based on the same complaint. These cases were those of August Bartels against Iowa, H. H. Bohning against Ohio, Emil Pohl against Ohio and the Nebraska District of Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Missouri, Ohio and other States and others against Governor McKelvie of Nebraska and other officers.

In his opinion on the Meyer case, Justice McReynolds denied the right of the State to restrict the liberty of the individual and went on to say that mere knowledge of the German language cannot be regarded as injurious. Although the Legislature was actuated by a desire to make better Americans of school children, he said, yet it had attempted materially to interfere with the work of modern language teachers, with the chances of pupils to acquire an education and with the power of parents to control their children's school courses.

No sudden emergency had arisen to make the knowledge of a language other than English harmful, the Justice said.

Justice Holmes and Justice Sutherland dissented from the majority of the court, Mr. Holmes holding in a written opinion that Nebraska had power to enact the statute which the Supreme Court today declared objectionable. They further held that the laws should be tested for their effect on extending the use of English.

Freedom to Acquire Knowledge.

Justice McReynolds said in part:

"The problem for our determination is whether the statute as construed and applied unreasonably infringes the liberty guaranteed the plaintiff in error by the Fourteenth Amendment: 'No State * * * shall deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law.'

"While this court has not attempted to define with exactness the liberty thus guaranteed, the term has received much consideration and some of the included things have been definitely stated. Without doubt, it denotes not merely

STRIKE THREATENED ON FRENCH SHIPS AGAINST DRY RULE

Stokers and Firemen Vote to Quit Unless Assured of Wine Ration in Our Ports.

ASK POINCARE TO PROTEST

BRITISH WILL ACQUIESCE

Have No Domestic Laws Conflicting With Rules Here—Appeal to Congress Likely.

PARIS, June 4 (Associated Press).—A general strike of the stokers and firemen on the steamship Lafayette, sailing from Havre for New York on June 9, and on all other French ships scheduled to leave for the United States after that date is threatened unless the men receive assurance that the two litres of wine to which they are entitled under the French merchant marine law will be forthcoming while they are in New York Harbor.

This decision was reached at the headquarters of the Union of Seafaring Workers today.

A full meeting of the delegates to the Firemen's and Stokers' Union will be held here on Wednesday, when ratification is expected of an ultimatum drawn up by its Executive Committee, giving the French Line the choice of filling the Lafayette's wing tanks as usual or suffering a strike.

The French Line, aware of the movement, is withholding its final decision for the present, but it is stated that the Lafayette will sail on Saturday with her full quota of "vin rouge ordinaire" for the crew.

Meanwhile the Ministry of Merchant Marine has been in constant conference with the Ministry of Commerce, drawing up a plan of agreement governing the stocking of French merchantmen while in the port of New York, and this will be submitted to Premier Poincaré for presentation to Washington. The spirit of the note is an attempt to reach an amicable agreement with the United States Government, but the basic principle of the French demands is that the members of the crews must have their two litres of wine daily.

"French ships in foreign ports are French soil, according to recognized international law, and therefore French laws must apply," the note will say in substance. It is understood that it will add that all French vessels will be held amenable to visits by accredited Government officials before entering American waters.

The shipping interests in Paris, awaiting the decisions of the Government and their own employes, are silent, and, beyond saying that French ships will sail from Havre supplied with their regular quota of wine, officials today would vouchsafe no other information. There is, however, no intention of making reprisals.

"How can we start reprisals against the Americans, who are bringing their gold to France?" asked one of the highest officials of the French Line in response to questions from newspaper men. He added, in reply to other queries, that "under no circumstances will French Line ships call at Halifax for the purpose of discharging or reloading their liquor supply."

To do so, he pointed out, would mean prolonging the crossing two days, and the expense and inconvenience to the passengers entailed would be much larger than the benefits to be derived therefrom.

Expect British to Comply.

LONDON, June 4.—The British Government has decided to make no further protest against the enforcement of prohibition inside the United States three-mile limit, and big steamships sailing after June 10, it is announced, will carry liquor enough only for the westward voyage.

It is reported that the steamship companies are planning to arrange a friendly test case in the courts by which the legality of interference with the

Jockey Dies as He Wins His First Race; Hayes Collapses Passing the Winning Post

There was a tragic ending to the steeplechase race at Belmont Park yesterday afternoon, Jockey Hayes dropping dead from his saddle after riding Miss A. M. Frayling's jumper Sweet Kiss to a splendid victory over the two-mile course. Death was pronounced to be due to heart disease, the attack probably having been brought on by severe training to make weight and the subsequent excitement of riding his first winner.

J. S. Cosden's Gimme was the odds-on favorite to win the event over the twelve jumps, and Metzger sent the son of Tinc. Cook out after the money from the start. Gimme, however, was unable to shake off Sweet Kiss, Hayes keeping the aged bay mare in close attendance on the winner. Two or three lengths was the most that separated the two leaders at any one time during the whole race, with the other three never showing as real contenders.

As the two rounded the last turn Sweet Kiss swerved and nearly went into Gimme and it may have been that Hayes was first stricken at that moment. Sweet Kiss quickly straightened out, however, and they came to the last jump with the mare leading by two lengths. On the flat Metzler called on Gimme and the gelding responded with a challenge. But Sweet Kiss had enough in reserve to carry her over the line a winner by a length and a half in an exciting finish.

The boys pulled up their mounts, Sweet Kiss, with the others, dropping to a walk. Then the spectators noticed that Hayes was bending over his mount's neck, but they thought that he was trying to fix his stirrup. Suddenly the boy fell in a heap to the ground, Sweet Kiss stepping clear of him and walking along a few paces, where she was caught by a boy and turned over to the marshal, by whom she was walked back to the scales.

A score rushed to the assistance of the fallen jockey, among the first to reach him being Dr. John A. Voorhees, the official physician of the track, who pronounced him dead after a hasty examination. Hayes undoubtedly died as he brought his mount to a walk after passing the winning post, the body was taken in charge by the Queens County Turf Aid Society, composed of racing folk and of which John C. Cavanagh is treasurer.

Hayes was 35 years of age and lived in Brooklyn with his mother and sister, although little was known of his connections. James K. Frayling, trainer of Sweet Kiss, said after the race that Hayes had been in his employ four years, galloping and schooling horses over the jumps. The dead jockey was wearing racing silks for the second time in his life. He had one mount at Havre de Grace, Md., earlier in the season, finishing unplaced. Yesterday's race was his second, his last and the only victory in his brief career as a jockey.

Hayes is said to have spent the morning on the road reducing his weight and this undoubtedly affected a heart already weakened, this and the excitement of winning resulting in his fatal collapse.

Earl of Northesk's Marriage Is Delayed By Failure of His Fiancee to Get License Here

Owing to the refusal of Michael J. Cruise, City Clerk, to recognize the divorce granted to Jessica Brown, former chorus girl, in Chicago last October from her first husband, Cyril De Witt Reinhard, naval engineer, her marriage to the Earl of Northesk, which was to have taken place yesterday, has been postponed.

No definite plans have been made yet, but it is probable that the Earl and the girl will be married in New Jersey or Connecticut, where the laws regarding divorce are not so strict as they are in the State of New York.

When asked at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel last night about the difficulties at the City Hall when his fiancée applied for a marriage license, the Earl of Northesk said that the City Clerk did not question the validity of the divorce obtained by Miss Brown, but said some technical details that were demanded in New York State were lacking and on that ground he could not issue the license. The Earl of Northesk added that he received his license and it was a disappointment to them both when Mr. Cruise refused one for his bride-elect.

"Do you think you will be married in New York State?" he was asked.

"Probably not," replied the Earl, "but I am not positive. We have not fixed our plans."

"Is the wedding likely to take place in one of the adjoining States, New Jersey or Connecticut?"

"Yes, perhaps. We shall discuss the matter tomorrow and decide what is best to be done."

The Earl added that he was confident that the divorce obtained by Miss Brown from her first husband was quite all right legally.

GEORGE GOULD WILL LEAVES $30,000,000

ALL WILL SHARE LIBERALLY

But Only 7 Children by First Wife Benefit From Jay Gould Trust —Big Income for Widow.

The will of George Jay Gould, disposing of an estate estimated at $30,000,000, was filed for probate yesterday in the Ocean County (N. J.) Court at Toms River. The most notable feature of the document is the acknowledgment in it that George Jay Gould was the father of the three children born to his second wife, Guinivere Sinclair Gould.

While making ample provision for his second wife and her offsprings, the will ignores these three children in disposing of the share of Jay Gould's estate, which was left to the eldest son, George Jay Gould, with the provision that it should go eventually to George Jay Gould's issue. This trust fund, estimated at $10,000,000, is divided into seven shares to go to the testator's seven children by his first wife, the late Edith Kingdon Gould. These children are Kingdon Gould, Marjorie Gould Drexel, Jay Gould, Vivian Decies, George J. Gould Jr., Edith Gould Wainwright and Gloria Gould.

Action already had been begun in the Supreme Court in New York County on behalf of grandchildren of George Jay Gould and Edith Kingdon Gould to bar the children of Guinivere Sinclair Gould from sharing in the trust fund on the ground that they were born before the death of Edith Kingdon Gould and hence before the marriage of George Jay Gould and Guinivere Sinclair, and that therefore they were not "issue" of George Jay Gould. The will of Jay Gould gave to his eldest son, George Jay, testamentary power over the trust fund in favor of the son's issue.

All Treated Liberally.

Although the will makes no attempt to provide a share of the trust fund for the three children born to the second wife, they are treated as liberally as the seven children by the first marriage. A trust fund of $4,000,000 is set aside for Mrs. Guinivere Sinclair Gould during her lifetime, to be divided among the three children and their heirs at her death. The residue of the testator's personal estate is put into a trust fund divided into ten equal shares for the seven children by the first wife and the three by the second wife.

Accepting the foregoing estimate, which is that of persons thoroughly familiar with the Gould fortune, that the trust fund amounts to $10,000,000 and the personal estate to $20,000,000, it would appear that Mr. Gould endeavored so to divide his wealth that all ten children should share equally. The children by the first wife each inherit one-seventh of $10,000,000 ($1,428,571), plus one-tenth of the residuary estate of $16,000,000 after the $4,000,000 trust fund has been deducted ($1,600,000). The share of each, therefore, would be approximately $3,028,571. The three children of Guinivere Sinclair Gould each inherit a like share of the residuary estate, $1,600,000, plus one-third of the $4,000,000 trust fund for their mother, or $1,333,000 each. The share of each, therefore, would be $2,933,000. Thus it is apparent that on the assumed, approximate figures there is only $35,000 difference between the shares of the first group of children and those of the second.

Schuyler Neilson Rice, one of the executors of the will, is the brother of J. Kearney Rice, head of the brokerage firm of J. K. Rice & Co. of this city. He was for twenty-three years confidential agent for Mr. Gould. He said that the estate had not been appraised, but will probably amount to more than $60,000,000, most of it in stocks and bonds.

The will was filed in Ocean County, N. J., because Mr. Gould's legal residence was at Georgian Court, the famous Gould estate at Lakewood, though he had a New York home at 857 Fifth Avenue. Mr. Gould died on May 16 in France after a long illness, the nature of which never was disclosed. He was in his sixtieth year.

Was Removed as Executor.

His death halted complicated litigation over his father's estate, of which he was executor until he was removed in 1919 after other heirs had charged that he had mismanaged the estate and had personally profited by his administration at their expense.

The will makes no reference to this litigation. It is a document of five legal pages, devoted largely to the provisions for the ten children and the wife and ending with the usual clause forfeiting the share of any beneficiary who may attempt a contest.

There are no charitable bequests and the only persons other than the widow and the ten children who are mentioned

EDGE SUGGESTS 'ADS' INSTEAD OF ENVOYS

FIGHT FOR THE PRESIDENCY

H. J. Buckley Candidate Against President Holland—London to Get Next Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 4.—Advertising instead of Ambassadors would make America better understood abroad, said United States Senator Walter E. Edge today when he spoke to the 3,000 delegates to the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

"And," he added, "Lord knows we need a better understanding."

The senior Senator from New Jersey appeared as one of four speakers scheduled to suggest new uses for the printed word. He coupled what was construed as a slap at Colonel George Harvey with an earnest plea to the Government to advertise its service and its opportunities, to make itself better known to the man in the street, but to avoid above all undertaking Government ownership of public service corporations.

Contest for Presidency Arises.

To the surprise of the delegates, a contest has developed over the Presidency of the association. It had been expected that Lou E. Holland of Kansas City would be unopposed to head the organization for another year. But the Nominating Committee, composed of a representative of each of the twenty-two departments and a representative of each of the seven districts, at a meeting at the Hotel Chalfonte, by a vote of 19 to 16, nominated Homer J. Buckley of the Buckley-Bement Company of Chicago, direct mail order advertising agents.

The Nominating Committee is a piece of machinery created at last year's convention to avoid spirited contests on the floor at future conventions, but it appears that the naming of Mr. Buckley will have the opposite effect. Friends of Mr. Holland, who has many supporters, threaten to exercise their right to nominate him from the floor. Unless they are persuaded to withdraw their support and line up behind Mr. Buckley a lively election is in prospect. The New York Advertising Club, which is regarded as a warm supporter of Mr. Holland and whose members are gathered in force with headquarters at the Hotel Traymore, will hold a caucus at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning to decide what course to take in view of the naming of Mr. Buckley.

So far as has transpired tonight, there is no clear issue behind the nomination of an unexpected candidate and the delegates generally are expected to regret the development of a contest because it had been their hope that there would be a quiet election so that there might be an "on to London" movement with a united front.

London to Get Next Convention.

London seems tonight to have won its race with Houston, Texas, as the city to get the 1924 convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. Withdrawal of Houston's chief backer on the compromise that the Texas city get the 1925 convention was disclosed in a telegram sent to THE NEW YORK TIMES from the convention hall by Marcellus E. Foster, publisher of The Houston Chronicle, a former President of the Southern Publishers' Association. The telegram read:

"I have wired Mr. Cornell, of our delegation, that I am in favor of sending the Texas delegation to London for 1924. Sorry I am not there to help put it over. Will join the convention in London next year, providing the convention comes to Houston in 1925."

First on the program came the initial presentation of the British viewpoint, which was expressed by W. C. Crawford, President of W. C. Crawford, Ltd., of London. Advertising, he said, needed a Lincoln, and the United States and Great Britain needed harmony.

The great things accomplished by advertising in educating the public to take precautions against the communication of disease were recorded by Robert Lynn Cox, Vice President of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. He said that in the 1922 campaign the company advertised for 50,000,000 persons in the United States of America and Canada and distributed 33,322,161 pieces of health literature.

How to cut down waste in industry was explained by Frederick H. Felker, Vice President of the McGraw Hill Publishing Company, who recently was appointed an assistant to Secretary Herbert Hoover.

In discussing what the Federal Government might have to advertise Senator Edge said that he was a trifle em-

C. A. STONEHAM LENT E. M. FULLER $147,500 THROUGH 'TOM' FOLEY

Says Only $10,000 Was Repaid, That Ex-Sheriff Is Responsible for the Rest.

BORROWED FROM BALL CLUB

SILKWORTH AS SPECULATOR

Charles A. Stoneham, President of the National Exhibition Company, owners of the Giants baseball club, and formerly head of Charles A. Stoneham & Co., the brokerage firm, which dissolved partnership in 1921, admitted yesterday at the hearing in the bankruptcy investigation of E. M. Fuller & Co., which failed for $5,000,000 in June, 1922, that he had loaned $147,500 to the firm in a period of five weeks before the failure.

He told Federal Referee Harold F. Coffin that he made out seven checks for that total to Thomas F. Foley, formerly Sheriff of New York County and the Tammany leader of the First Assembly District. He said that Foley had appealed to him to aid the tottering Fuller firm because of a "run" by customers and that Foley had told him that Edward M. Fuller and William F. McGee, the partners in the firm, said to Foley that if they could get between $50,000 and $100,000 in cash they could save their firm from going to the wall.

Stoneham said that all the checks were made out to Foley by him as President of the National Exhibition Company, after he had given the exhibition company securities of equal value as collateral. He admitted that Fuller and McGee did not put up collateral with him or Foley for the loan, because, he said, they didn't have any collateral.

$10,000 Returned Through Foley.

He produced the National Exhibition Company's canceled checks, vouchers and other data dealing with the Fuller & Co. loan, and said that Foley's indebtedness to him actually was $137,500, as Fuller had returned $10,000 through a check he made out in Foley's name on June 13 last to offset the last $10,000 borrowed from him.

Stoneham began his testimony by stating that he had been engaged in the brokerage business in the financial district for twenty-eight years up to the time he dissolved Stoneham & Co., and after he obtained a controlling interest in the National Exhibition Company. He said that he first was an employe in the brokerage firm of Bruham & Co., where he remained for eight or nine years, and about a year after he left them he formed the brokerage firm of O. F. Jonasson & Co., which he admitted "was my firm."

He operated this firm under its original name until about 1911, Stoneham went on, when he changed the name to Charles A. Stoneham & Co. He said that neither he nor any of the firms with which he had been connected were members of any exchange although Stoneham & Co., up to the time it went out of business had branch offices in Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Milwaukee, Toronto and one or two other cities.

Cross-Examination Is Postponed.

William M. Chadbourne, counsel for the 4,000 Fuller creditors, had expected to cross-examine, but he requested Referee Coffin, after fifteen minutes, to postpone further examination of Stoneham until June 11. Chadbourne explained that Federal Judge Goddard had sent for him to appear in the Judge's chambers in the Woolworth Building in connection with the application of District Attorney Banton for the production of Fuller and McGee in General Sessions at their trials on bucketing indictments growing out of the failure. This hearing before Judge Goddard was adjourned to Wednesday, however, after objection had been made by a lawyer for a group of the Fuller & Co. creditors due to the form of the order under which the prosecutor sought the release of Fuller and McGee from Ludlow Street Jail in the custody of the United States Marshal, during each day of their trials.

It developed during the discussion before Judge Goddard that District

Guardsmen Protect Radical College Head; Ten of Oklahoma A. and M. Faculty Resign

STILLWATER, Okla., June 4.—George Wilson, center of a bitter political controversy, is directing affairs of the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College here as its President.

Arriving yesterday from Oklahoma City with five officers of the Oklahoma National Guard, Mr. Wilson obtained the keys to the institution from J. B. Eskridge, the deposed President.

The officers today lounged in the outer offices. Adjutant-General Markham said he did not know how long they would be here. He explained that they were acting on orders from Governor Walton.

Mr. Wilson has assumed office while closely surrounded by a group with bayonets and supported by another proclaiming him a practical farmer who will serve best the farmers whose sons and daughters attend A. and M.

His enemies know him as a followers of the Townley Non-Partisan banner in North Dakota, organizer in Oklahoma of the Farmer-Labor Reconstruction League which elected Governor Walton and the man whom the State department of the American Legion has publicly charged with having declared that "every time I see an American Legion button I want to shoot a hole through it."

His friends see in him a farmer who has for more than a score of years been active in movements to improve the lot of the agricultural classes.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., June 4.—The resignations of ten of the leading Faculty members of Oklahoma A. and M. College were filed with the State Board of Agriculture this afternoon. As announced that they were leaving the college because they could not serve under George Wilson the Farmer-Labor League leader, who was installed yesterday as President. Among those resigning are Dr. C. L. Powell, Director of the Experiment Station and Dr. J. A. Tolman, head of the Foreign Language Department.

The board today permanently relieved M. Otey Crum, his duties as Financial Secretary of the college. Drew has been under suspension while an audit of his books has been in progress.

The feeling of the retiring Faculty members was expressed by Dr. Tolman, who asserted that "he could not work under Wilson, because his ideals of education, of Government, of character and American principles" were thoroughly out of harmony with them.

CALLS HUSBAND A "SAINT"

Says He Said First Family Robbed Him and He Wanted Her to Have Remainder.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, June 4.—Mrs. Bula Croker was again in the witness box all today before an all-man jury giving further particulars of her life and how Richard Croker's 1919 will was made. The court again was packed, the interest increasing daily, especially in the evidence of the pretty young widow dressed in black.

From the day of her marriage, she said, she and her husband were followed about America by spies and detectives and in Ireland for the past six months she had been similarly pursued by persons trying to force their way into her motor car and looking through the windows of her house. She told of her lectures and recitals, one for the Red Cross Fund in Palm Beach realizing $1,700. She said she sold her beads for $11 for the same fund.

Mr. Lynch, K. C., then brought her to the will in dispute, drawn up in a Sunday morning in October, 1919. She declared emphatically that she did not interfere to coerce, compel or induce her husband in its making. She identified a sealed letter from her husband to her safe, stating:

"Dear Bula—I am giving this note for you to keep, and in case you survive me I wish you to give my daughter Florence £10,000. She is the only one of my children that has ever shown gratitude to me."

Within a month of her husband's death she paid Mrs. Morris £10,000, she said. Florence was the only child, she declared, who made inquiry about him during the five months of his last illness.

Asked what character of a man her husband was, she said he was a "saint."

Serjeant Sullivan opened the cross-examination with questions as to the codicil, and handed the witness an envelope asking her who tore the end of it. She replied she did, and took out the document and gave it to Mr. Nathan Straus, not knowing what it was until she saw it was a copy of the codicil. But she knew, she said, that the envelope did not contain the original. She knew, she testified, that her husband had destroyed the original.

People had said her husband was a millionaire, but she had not yet discovered that. Some time after their marriage, she asserted, her husband told her he spent all on his first family, who "robbed him."

Mr. Sullivan had to ask many questions as to how much she got from him and she replied that he told her he wanted her to have all the remainder.

Serjeant Sullivan then asked: "How much was it worth?"

She replied: "I could not tell you."

Counsel asked if it was worth $1,000.

Mrs. Croker replied: "I could not say."

Later she said her husband gave her property worth more than $1,000, but the Serjeant pressed further and she admitted the Palm Beach property was worth more than $10,000.

Mr. Sullivan asked: "Did he give you property worth more than $500,000?"

To this Mrs. Croker replied: "No, sir. I have not heard any estimate placed on it."

She soon admitted he gave her bonds, shares, scrip worth about $700,000 apart from real estate. The Palm Beach property was not valuable at the time of her marriage, she said, but it had since multiplied in value and her husband had

MAYOR HYLAN SUBPOENAED

POLICE RECORDS WITHHELD

Nicholson Fights Order, but Judge Calls for All Records—McAllister Is Held for Perjury.

Announcing that he intended to prove the truth of charges of bootleg graft in the Police Department involving Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright, Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan, in defense of the criminal libel charges which Commissioner Enright brought against him, yesterday began before Judge Thomas C. T. Crain, in General Sessions, the presentation of evidence which the Magistrate's counsel, John D. Lindsay, said would show that "a riot of corruption" has existed in the Police Department with the Commissioner's knowledge.

One new specific charge of police corruption relating to enforcement of the Mullan-Gage law developed during the testimony of a woman witness produced by Mr. Lindsay. The witness—Mrs. May L. Hendricksen, an officer of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, in Queens—told of the demotion and transfer of a policeman within twenty-four hours of the time he had arrested a woman for possessing a still. The woman, Mrs. Hendricksen testified, had warned the policeman that she had "protection" and would "break" him. She was discharged when the witness, because of some unexplained change in the date for hearing, failed to appear. Against her, Mrs. Hendricksen said, [illegible] Magistrate Corrigan threw out.

Records of the Police Department, listed in thirteen items of a subpoena issued by Judge Crain despite the objection of the Corporation Counsel, were demanded by Mr. Lindsay to "show existing conditions in the Department." Corporation Counsel Nicholson declared that to produce these records was against public policy, and announced that he would go before a Supreme Court Justice in an effort to have the subpoena vacated.

"It will appear from this documentary evidence," said Mr. Lindsay, "that officials high in the department have been co-operating with bootleggers in the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in smuggling operations, in stealing liquors and in practically every form of unlawful graft of which the Eighteenth Amendment is capable.

"We shall also call a number of witnesses by whose testimony we shall attempt to show how honest members of the force have been punished and degraded by the head of the department for innocent interference with the lawless activities of their superiors. We are not called upon to forswear the other side of specific cases. For the present we shall confine ourselves to matters brought directly to the attention of the head of the department or so close to it that ignorance of what has been going on cannot be reasonably urged."

Mayor Called to Testify.

The producing by Mayor Hylan's Executive Secretary, Augustin Kelly, of correspondence between Mayor Hylan and Commissioner Enright relating to the Mullan-Gage law enforcement led to an assertion by Mr. Lindsay that many letters that he knew about were not among them, although the subpoena called for "all" the letters. Corporation Counsel Nicholson declared that many of the letters had been turned over to the Meyer committee or the Aldermanic Grand Jury and had never been returned. As Mr. Lindsay's request Judge Crain issued a subpoena for Mayor Hylan's appearance at the next hearing to testify as to his "personal recollections" of the correspondence.

Judge Crain interrupted the testimony in the Corrigan-Enright case to announce that as a result of evidence presented before him he had directed that a warrant for perjury be issued against Detective Robert McAllister. The charge was a result of his testimony following a liquor raid at the home of Charles H. Zittel. Acting District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora said that he would have the perjury charge brought before the Grand Jury today.

At the same time Judge Crain announced that, for lack of corroborative testimony, he had dismissed the bribery charge against McAllister growing out of the Castro liquor raid.

Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, who is a co-defendant with Magistrate Corrigan, was not in court when the hearing was resumed yesterday morning. It developed that he was appearing before Justice Young in White Plains to ask for a change of venue. Magistrate Corrigan occupied the defendant's chair. Commissioner Enright, Corporation Counsel Nicholson and Harry A. Gordon, Commissioner Enright's counsel, sat on one of the counsel tables.

After outlining his defense Mr. Lindsay called Mr. Kelly and placed the Mayor's letters in evidence. Then followed a legal argument between Mr. Lindsay and the Corporation Counsel.

Tells of "Protection" Plea.

Mrs. Hendricksen, a slender woman dressed in black, was the next witness. She described herself as a director and treasurer of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children in Queens, and said she lived in Long Island [illegible]. On March 2 [illegible] Magistrate Corrigan, then [illegible] Court, [illegible] Court [illegible] Court [illegible] Court

...known as Sadie Samuel Otis, whom a boy had left for his mother was abducted yesterday. With Otis was a Mrs. Tuckert, probation officer of the Children's Court.

Pitt told me that his chief had asked them to go out on a complaint that they had received against a place of amusement," the witness testified, "and asked whether I would mind stopping there. It was near the place to which I was to go and I consented."

They drove up to 329 Sherman Street and were upstairs to the home of Mrs. Della Tuck on the second floor. There was a scuffle in operation in the bedroom and another not in operation. There were "women's dresses containing whiskey and masks."

Mrs. Tuck asked the officers, "What are you going to do with me?" She said: "I want to tell you something. I'll make it worth your while." Pitt said that she had been O. K'd before and had all sorts of protection. Mrs. Taft finally talked with me to the police station. When the question of bail came up, she said: 'I don't need any one to go my bail.'

"The next day," continued the witness, "Pitt called me at home and said: 'That woman certainly pulled wires. I have been transferred to the black belt of Harlem.'

"The next day I went to the Mayor's office and saw the Mayor. He called Commissioner Kelly and I went over the affair with him. He said it was a very important case. I told him that I felt I ought to go and see Commissioner Enright. Mr. Kelly said: 'I wish you wouldn't go there. Send me a copy of the entire proceedings.'"

Tried to See Enright, She Says.

"I obtained the documents from Officer Pitt, including a copy of the complaint that Pitt sent to me. I received an acknowledgment from the Mayor."

Mrs. Hendrickson said that she had later called on Commissioner Enright at Police Headquarters. "I saw some other man there who said he would take the Commissioner's place," she testified. The Commissioner, he said, was busy at the time. I told this man that I had come to find out what Pitt's reflection and transfer meant. The official said: 'What do you suppose—a complaint, of course.'

I told this official that he could ask Pitt's commanding officer, Inspector O'Brien, about the affair, and I said that Chief O'Brien was simply heartbroken over it."

In response to questions by Mr. Lindsay, Mrs. Hendrickson said that she did not know the name of the girl who came to make the Police Headquarters. She said she had not told the officer her name and address. "He didn't seem to want it," she said.

The witness testified that she had told Commissioner Enright of the charges she had heard of his charges against the police. She could not fix the date, and could not tell whether it was before or after the publication of the affair which Enright promised to investigate. However, to refresh her recollection on that score by reference to her diary.

Earl R. Keller, official stenographer of the City Magistrate's Court in Long Island City, where Mrs. Della Tuck was arraigned, was the next witness. Magistrate Doyle, he testified, was sitting when the woman's case came up for hearing.

Assistant District Attorney Groat, Keller said, moved to dismiss the complaint. "Mr. Groat said that there had been a number of complaints about the way the officers acted on the day of the arrest, and that the officers had since been transferred and reduced," Keller testified. "He said that the patrolman was not present as a witness and that he doubted whether he would ever be there."

Mix-up in the Dates.

The witness said the circumstances of the setting of the hearing date were "peculiar." He explained this by saying that Magistrate Miller, before whom the case came originally, adjourned it until "Monday, March 13." March 13, he said, was on Tuesday, and when he called the Magistrate's attention to the error, the case was set down for March 12. Pitt appeared in court on March 13, he said, and seemed surprised that the case had been disposed of.

William D. Groat, the Assistant District Attorney who moved for the dismissal of the complaint, was the first witness at the afternoon session. He said that he had received a letter to the effect that the police had broken into Mrs. Tuck's home without a warrant, and that the search opened Mr. Darrin, the woman's counsel, had told him that the police had no warrant.

"I talked with some policemen in the court room," he testified, "and I understood from them that the raid was made without a warrant. When I learned that Pitt was not in court, I moved for the dismissal."

Cut by Mr. Lindsay to tell of "the so-called Blackwell Mansion case," Groat said that on Nov. 22 he had received a telephone call to be on a certain corner the following morning to take part in a raid.

"Is it usual for the District Attorney's office to participate in raids by the police?" Mr. Lindsay asked.

"We were only there—we didn't handle the raid," Groat replied.

The witness said that with several other persons from the District Attorney's office and the police, under a Lieutenant McCarthy, they had gone to the Blackwell Mansion, which, he said, adjoined the home of Deputy Police Commissioner John A. Leach. He said that when he arrived a large quantity of liquor was being taken from the premises.

Mr. Lindsay asked whether he knew anything about the arrest of a policeman found driving an automobile filled with "Old Scotty" whisky, going in a direction opposite to that of the police station. Groat said he had no personal knowledge of the incident.

"Whose automobile was it—Mr. Wallace's wasn't it?" asked Mr. Lindsay.

"Mr. Wallace had no automobile then," replied Groat.

Mr. Lindsay then said that he had talked upon the Police Department to produce records covering this case.

Before offering in evidence the correspondence between the Mayor and the Police Commissioner, Mr. Lindsay, in an outline of his defense, declared that in declaring the telegram from Assemblyman Cuvillier on which the libel charge is based, "Judge Corrigan was actuated solely by a desire to serve the interests of the community."

Lindsay Outlines Case.

"We will show," he said, "that the Mullan-Gage law was used as an instrument of oppression by high police officials; that members of the police force were and are engaged in bootlegging, and that some of them have fought over the spoils; that there were and are graft collectors in the department; that the complainant was and is responsible, morally and legally, for this condition, so that it was no exaggeration to characterize these mercenaries as 'his graft collectors.'

"We will go further and endeavor to show, among other things, not only that the head of the department is cognizant of existing conditions, but that he is willing that they should exist, that so far from desiring to eradicate or improve them, he has met all attempts to expose the truth with threats and intimidation, and that this has been his attitude on all such occasions, and has manifested itself invariably whenever he or any of his subordinates have been subjected to adverse criticism, to such a degree that wrongdoers in the department and their confederates outside of it have entertained and still entertain little fear of punishment or discipline.

"Proof of the proceeding before the Commissioner of Accounts at the instigation of the complainant, in which members of the police were uniformly threatened and bullied, was offered along this line. The same defiant spirit was manifested by the complainant in his examination by the Mayor Committee. It is reflected in his letters to the Mayor, the District Attorney and other officials. The persistent effort to shut out the defendant's evidence in this proceeding further illustrates this policy of terrorism. But the institution of this malicious prosecution is in itself the most convincing proof of it.

"Is it strange, in view of the treatment accorded those who heretofore dared to open their mouths, that the district attorney was compelled to select as a witness in this proceeding a man who has been convicted of perjury, for which he was sentenced to [illegible] practically every item of proof we offered, we said in connection with a particular newspaper article that Judge Corrigan would eventually take the stand. He may or may not. If this proceeding ever reaches the stage that Justice Corrigan's testimony may be required to your Honor in disposing of the case, you will find that more than willing to render that aid."

Eight letters were produced by Mr. Kelly from the Mayor's office bearing different dates from June 20, 1921, to April 24, 1922. The last letter was not identified, since it was written after the publication of the alleged Hearst telegram.

Copies of the letters, dated July 22, 1922, was made public at the time. It related to the Corporation Counsel's opinion that the police had no right to invade private premises or to search bags for liquor without proper warrants. It is important that unlawful methods be not indulged in," the Mayor wrote. Commissioner Enright's reply admitted that it was possible that "a few overzealous policemen may have exceeded their authority," and that the police were receiving only half-hearted support from the courts and the Grand Juries.

A letter dated Jan. 5, 1922, called the Commissioner's attention to an enclosed communication from Alderman Louis F. Cardasi, "relative to certain assignments of police officers." The Alderman's letter, the Commissioner's reply disclosed, related to the stationing of policemen in raided premises. "The Police Department," Mr. Enright wrote, "has found this procedure very effective in the suppression of vice, gambling and violations of the Mullan-Gage law in the city. The Alderman may not be particularly interested in these matters."

The other letters related to various complaints—one from the Clarendon Restaurant, Inc., 1,199 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, with regard to alleged "interference by police officers who call there to enforce prohibition"; one from F. J. Shine, characterizing as "an injustice" the assignment of policemen to his place at 424 Seventh Avenue; one regarding the seizure of whisky from Carl V. Eriksson of Columbia and Sedgwick Avenues, Brooklyn, and one from Benjamin Weiser of 448 Blake Avenue, Brooklyn, saying that the police seized wine being prepared for a confirmation party.

"I object to this proceeding," said Corporation Counsel Nicholson when the letters were offered. "I do not believe your honor has the power of investigating the various departments of the city. The city department heads are tired and sick of having their records produced for the Mayor Committee and the Grand Jury."

Says Some Letters Are Missing.

When Judge Crain said that he would allow them to be placed in evidence, the Corporation Counsel announced his intention of appearing before a Supreme Court Justice to have the subpoena vacated.

Mr. Kelly said that a file clerk had looked up the letters. Mr. Lindsay in this connection said that several were missing.

"Do you wish to make the statement that we are suppressing information?" demanded Mr. Nicholson. "If there are any you can't find, you can get them from the Mayor Committee or the Aldermanic Grand Jury."

Bernard Strong, chief clerk of the Police Department, called as a witness, said he had not brought to court the records called for in a subpoena issued by Judge Crain. Mr. Nicholson arose and stated that unless the records were produced there would be contempt proceedings. He declared that it would be against public policy to throw open the records of the Police Department and that a provision of the charter expressly prohibited such a move. Judge Crain said that the subpoena would stand and ordered the records brought before the next hearing. Mr. Nicholson said that he would apply to the Supreme Court for a restraining order in this matter also.

"If the subpoena is upheld by the Supreme Court," said Judge Crain, "you may be sure that I will call upon the witness to obey it."

Assistant District Attorney Pecora and Mr. Gordon, Commissioner Enright's personal counsel, both announced that they did not objection to producing the police records.

The subpoena called for records describing seven different items relating to Mullan-Gage enforcement, as follows:

Communications between the Mayor and the Police Commissioner; records of the department showing liquor cases; requests, letters from the Commissioner to deputies on misconduct in office; records of an inquiry before Chief Inspector Lahey with regard to raids at 247 West Thirty-seventh Street and 158 Ninth Avenue; a letter from Enright to Lahey on Jan. 18, 1921, "relative to culpable neglect or corrupt acts of members of the Police Department in relation to the liquor traffic"; action taken by the Commissioner in the matter of thefts of liquor by police; orders under which policemen were stationed in public resorts; records of the "Blackwell Mansion" case; records of the transfer of certain policemen, including Detective Pitt; copy of the trial of Lieutenant Joseph Eachon following the disappearance of liquor from the police boat "Blue Boy"; action of the police with regard to the theft of whisky from a truck at the Stewart Distilling Co., 36 Laight Street, on May 15, 1920.

McAllister Held for Perjury.

In holding Detective McAllister on the perjury charge growing out of his testimony before Magistrate Corrigan relative to a liquor raid at the home of Charles F. Zittel, Judge Crain reviewed in detail the testimony befort him. McAllister had testified that he entered the storeroom where the liquor was by turning the knob, while Zittel and employes of the building declared that the door was locked, and one of them said that the detective had kicked the door in.

"It is a matter of profound regret to be obliged to discredit the sworn testimony of an officer of the law and one belonging to the class upon the accuracy and truthfulness of whose testimony so much depends in almost every criminal prosecution," said Judge Crain. "But after painstaking consideration I am constrained to hold that there is probable cause to believe that McAllister's testimony in the Zittel case was in the respects charged willfully and knowingly false in material matters."

Dismissing the charge of the bribery charge, Judge Crain held that Mrs. Mary Castro, who testified that she had paid McAllister $400 to avoid arrest after a raid on Dec. 7, was under the law, an accomplice. The only corroboration of her story was supplied by her husband, and that circumstance, Judge Crain said, suggested a reason for doubting the corroborative evidence.

Judge Crain adjourned the hearing to Friday at 10:30 A. M.

Special to The New York Times.

MT. VERNON, N. Y., June 4.—Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, who is being sued by Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright for alleged libel, both criminal and civil, the suits segregating $250,000, appeared in the Supreme Court at White Plains this morning before Justice Frank L. Young, to ask an adjournment of argument on a motion for change of venue in the civil actions, from Kings County to Albany County. The adjournment was granted, and argument on the motion was set for June 12.

In his application, Mr. Cuvillier referred to the fact that he is a member of the Legislature, and that remarks made by him from the floor of that body were the subject of controversy.

Mr. Cuvillier said that he was to appear before Judge Crain in New York on the original libel charge, and Justice Young quickly asked if it was for trial.

"No, merely an examination to ascertain if there is reason for such a charge," the Assemblyman answered.

Mercury Goes to 86 Degrees—Thunder Showers Today.

The mercury got up to 86 degrees at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and this, with the humidity and lack of wind, made a day that might be called the first real one of Summer. The temperature was 2 degrees higher than on Sunday, but no showers came as on that day.

The average temperature yesterday was 74 degrees, as against a high mark of 81 degrees and an average of 72 on the same day a year ago. Thunder showers are promised for today.

One death from heat was reported from New Rochelle. John Rapp, 61 years old, a gardener, of 107 Woodside Avenue, died while working in a garden at Pelham Manor.

While nailing a screen to a window on the fifth floor of his home, 158 West Sixty-sixth Street, James MacPherson lost his balance and fell. He was taken to [illegible] Hospital suffering from internal injuries.

AUSTRIA REVIVING, BANKERS ARE TOLD

League Commissioner Tells Lamont and British Colleague of Progress Made.

HAS STABILIZED CURRENCY

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 4.—Arrangements for the $130,000,000 international loan to Austria are now nearly complete. American bankers are guaranteeing $35,000,000 and those at Frances 150,000,000 francs. Bankers of Spain and Switzerland have put their names down for specific amounts, and the announcement of the same Great Britain and other countries will guarantee will be made Wednesday or Thursday.

Dr. Alfred Zimmerman, the Commissioner-General of the League of Nations for Austria, explained today at the Bank of England to American correspondents his reasons for believing that the loan would affect the reconstruction of Austria. Present at the interview were Montagu C. Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, and Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Zimmerman's Optimistic Report.

"The reconstruction of Austria," said Dr. Zimmerman, "is one of the remarkable features of recent European history. The situation of the country has in the last ten months undergone a complete change. New life and new hope have come to the Austrian people, and the foundation of new prosperity has been laid. The scheme which is at the basis of this resurrection is a very simple one, but represents a form of constructive international effort new in the history of the world. In broad lines it comes down to the following:

"First—Austria's political and economic independence was guaranteed by all its neighbors.

Secondly—A carefully prepared plan was worked out for the purpose of restoring the equilibrium of the Austrian budget within two years by means of a heavy reduction of expenditures and an increase of certain revenues. The whole State administration had to be reorganized; 100,000 officials had to be dismissed, and a new taxation law to be introduced. The necessary legislation for these various purposes had to be passed, and to be carried out under control of the Foreign Commissioner General. Moreover, the Government received special constitutional powers for the application of this legislation, enabling them in certain cases to act without further parliamentary sanction.

Thirdly—Internal and foreign credits had to be found in order to cover the deficit on the budget deficits during the reconstruction period. Another reform, the reorganization of the railways, which weighs heavily on the State budgets, has been taken up recently. British expert is busy in preparing a plan for this important part of the program.

"I do not want to give you the impression that all these measures have been carried out without any difficulties. Great sacrifices are asked and are willingly granted by every citizen, also by the working people.

"Apart from the important measures mentioned above, numerous smaller measures of reorganization and simplification are carried through in practically every branch of the State Administration.

Marked Reduction of the Deficit.

"The effect of all these measures together is clearly to be noticed in the steady reduction of the deficit. Since Jan. 1 of this year I have introduced a system of monthly budget control which enables me to follow closely the development of the situation. Any money sent the State is paid into a special account in my name, of which account the Treasury cannot dispose without my authority. In the same way the gross receipts of the customs and the tobacco monopoly are paid into an account in my name.

"To obtain outside credits or loans the revenues of the customs and the tobacco monopoly would ordinarily have been sufficient, but in order to inspire complete confidence in the lenders it was thought wise to organize also an international State guarantee to come into effect but three essential elements were wanted for the success of the plan: the desire and will of the Austrian Government and people to undertake the reorganization of their States, the participation of as many States as possible in the guarantee of the reconstruction loan and the cooperation of private capital. Since I have been in Vienna—that is to say, since Dec. 15, 1922—I have seen with great satisfaction that all three elements are ready to do their share in the common work.

Reduction of State Expenditures.

"The Austrian Government has adopted all necessary reorganization measures and is carrying them through in a way which makes me consider the situation with confidence. One of the principal measures to be taken, namely, the reduction of the number of Ministries from eleven to eight, is in an advanced state of execution. In October the deficit still amounted to 170 Billion paper crowns ($5,140,000). Since the beginning of the year, that is to say, for five months past, we have got only about the deficit that under the monthly average of 230 billion paper crowns, but the actual expenditure during the first three months has been 27,570,000 lower than was foreseen.

"The remark has been made that it is not sufficient to restore Austrian national finances as long as the country does not recover also economically. Fortunately this recovery is being made, and since September last the crown has been stabilized.

Austrian Savings Deposits Increase.

"One of the first results of this stabilization has been that confidence in the national currency having been restored, savings deposits have started to increase. From 2,000,000 gold crowns in September last they went up to 18,000,000 at the end of April, and they are still increasing.

"Another sign is the tremendous increase of the gold value of the shares of banks and industrial enterprises quoted on the Vienna Exchange, the explanation being that as soon as the crown remained stable it was noticed that many shares were quoted under their real value. Austrian and foreign capitalists soon started buying, and the result was an unusual advance.

"At the same time Vienna is rapidly recovering its old situation as the clearing house for Central Europe, as the great bank quality of the customs and the tobacco monopoly are paid into an account in my name.

"To obtain outside credits or loans the revenues of the customs and the tobacco monopoly would ordinarily have been sufficient, but in order to inspire complete confidence in the lenders it was thought wise to organize also an international State guarantee to come into effect but three essential elements were wanted for the success of the plan: the desire and will of the Austrian Government and people to undertake the reorganization of their States, the participation of as many States as possible in the guarantee of the reconstruction loan and the cooperation of private capital. Since I have been in Vienna—that is to say, since Dec. 15, 1922—I have seen with great satisfaction that all three elements are ready to do their share in the common work.

"What is of vital importance, the working-class people also are in better circumstances, more prosperous and contented.

"Austria is slowly recovering from the most terrible ordeal known in [illegible] long history, and, thanks to the generative international solidarity in which the Austrian people, the states participating in the guarantee and the private capitalists of various countries have joined, a new Austria is arising. We shall reach our aim, that is, the resurrection of an intelligent, industrious nation and the conservation of a country which from time immemorial has been one of the centres of trade of arts, of science, of civilization.

"It is a great gratification for me, as being charged with the present control of Austrian Government finance, to feel that the American people are taking part in this safe and sound constructive operation."

Dr. Zimmerman then emphasized the importance to the world in general that the international loan should be a success.

"It is a new thing in international loans," he explained, "for as it is spread over the world at large it is essential to the interests of Europe that it should succeed."

Mr. Norman endorsed this statement. "To reconstruct Austria," he said, "becomes more and more necessary as the situation in the Ruhr becomes more and more acute."

Mr. Norman also spoke of the extraordinary stability of the agreed.

"Since last September it has been the most stable currency in Europe," he declared.

Dr. Zimmerman pointed out that it was now worth more than the mark and that both the Austrians themselves and foreigners were beginning to show confidence in Austria's future.

"Here is a case in point," he said. "Questions arose about transferring certain Dutch ships to another flag. The French flag was never considered and the suggestion that the German be chosen was never negatived for fear the French might seize German shipping and Austrian nationality was adopted."

Mr. Lamont explained that the United States Government had nothing to do with the American quota of the international loan, and that this quota would be put on the market by a syndicate with J. P. Morgan & Co. at the head of it.

It will be issued to the people of the United States, he said. The interest rate, he believed, would be 7 per cent., but he did not know the issue price.

When asked if he was assured of the political integrity of Austria Mr. Lamont said:

"Yes, it is quite true that two years ago some of Austria's neighbors were unfriendly to her, but this attitude has been changed. Indeed, two of them—Italy and Czechoslovakia—are actually co-guarantors of the loan. It is there fore to their interest to maintain friendly relations with Austria, and they will undoubtedly do so."

DEFENDS FLAG TRIBUTE TO HIS FAITHFUL DOG

Special to The New York Times.

AUGUSTA, Maine, June 4.—Governor Percival P. Baxter in a statement issued today in answer to those who objected to his putting the flag on the State House at half-mast on the death of his dog "Garry," declared that he yielded to no one in his respect and reverence to our flag.

"Dogs have played their part in peace and in war, and from the earliest ages they have been man's protectors and friends," said the Governor.

"History records that in our recent conflict dogs saved countless lives, performed many acts of bravery and devotion, and in their death were fittingly honored by their human companions. Unlike men, however, dogs always are loyal and unselfish, and daily they perform acts of service and heroism that add new laurels to their fame.

"I doubt if many would criticize our President should he order the flags of the White House lowered to honor Laddie Boy, nor do I believe that many will take exception to the Governor of Maine doing likewise for his faithful companion Garry.

"I make no offer that feelings of none, but I yield to none my right to act according to the dictates of my heart. My faithful dog, unlike many of my human friends, never betrayed or believed ill of me.

"It was my desire and my plan to have the flags lowered during the period of Garry's journey homeward to the graves of his ancestors at my island home. That desire was fulfilled and the plan executed. It may be that the comments made upon my action will arouse our people to a new realization of their responsibility to dumb animals. If this be so, one of my purposes will have been accomplished.

"I firmly believe that when the men and women of this State and nation think through what I have done they will see that a lesson in the appreciation of dumb animals has been taught, and that my emphasis of the significance of our flag as an element of human achievement that has been made possible largely through the faithful services and sacrifices of dumb animals.

"I shall esteem it an honor, whenever any time comes to have the same Capitol flag that was lowered for my dog lowered for me. It is my prayer that I may always be as unselfish and as loyal to my master, State and nation as 'Garry' was to me."

MRS. HYLAN UNDERGOES OPERATION ON EAR

Mayor's Wife Treated at Hospital for an Abscess—Not Serious, Physician Says.

Mrs. John F. Hylan, wife of the Mayor, underwent an operation for an abscess of the right external ear yesterday afternoon in the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital. Dr. Harmon Smith of 44 West Forty-ninth Street, one of the hospital's staff physicians, performed the operation.

Mrs. Hylan was first afflicted last February when she and the Mayor were at Palm Beach. At that time Dr. Harry Swift, 260 West Seventy-eighth Street, was consulted and under his treatment Mrs. Hylan was apparently cured.

For the last five days Mrs. Hylan has been suffering from a painful swelling in her ear, which, despite local treatment, gradually became worse. She was in such severe pain yesterday morning that she was taken from her Brooklyn home to the hospital, where the suppuration was removed after a local anesthetic had been administered.

Dr. Smith said last night that the disorder was not serious and that Mrs. Hylan would leave the hospital in about four days.

WIFE SUES IRENEE DU PONT.

Seeks Philadelphia Divorce—Separated for Two Years.

C. A. STONEHAM LENT E. M. FULLER $147,500

Attorney Banton had agreed that in the event of the conviction of Fuller and McGee on the bucketing charges, the sentences that could be imposed on them in General Sessions would be held in abeyance until Judge Goddard consented to release the two bankrupt brokers from the jail, which may be five years.

After Stoneham had agreed to permit the accountants for Referee Coffin to inspect other books and documents of the National Exhibition Co. which Stoneham had not brought to court, Mr. Chadbourne asked the witness: "Did the National Exhibition Co. ever speculate in securities with Fuller & Co.?"

"No," replied the witness, "nor did it ever speculate in securities with Fuller and McGee."

Stoneham admitted, however, that after his firm closed up its affairs he turned over most of the orders received in Stoneham & Co.'s Boston office to Fuller & Co., and he also admitted that E. D. Dier & Co., which subsequently failed for $5,000,000, was among numerous brokerage firms in this and other cities which took over Stoneham & Co.'s business. He said that neither Fuller nor McGee had ever been a stockholder in the National Exhibition Company.

Chadbourne then asked Stoneham about the Third Securities Company, which the witness admitted had offices in the National Exhibition Company at 25 West Forty-fourth Street. Stoneham first said that he was President of that company, but after a conference with his lawyer, Leo J. Bondy, corrected the statement by explaining that Ross F. Robertson was the President and that Horace Stoneham, a brother of the witness, was the Treasurer. He said that the Third Securities Company had been in existence for some years and is run on lines similar to the First Securities Company of the First National Bank and also of the Chase National Bank. "The franchise, he added, "was identical with these companies and is merely a holding company."

Company Passed on Loans.

"Have you ever loaned money to Fuller & Co?" Chadbourne asked.

"Yes," replied Stoneham.

"Have you been repaid?"

"No."

"Fuller never had any collateral" Stoneham went on. "I borrowed money from the National Exhibition Company and put up my own securities with the company for the money and these securities were accepted on the loan by the Board of Directors of the National Exhibition Company. These loans to Fuller & Co. have never been returned. I have with me here a list of the loans," continued the witness as he shoved a large package across the table to Referee Coffin, "as well as vouchers, canceled checks and all the data relating to those transactions."

After explaining that no written data existed regarding the arrangements for the loans and that all transactions were conducted in conversations he had had with Foley, Stoneham said that he never knew that Fuller & Co. was in trouble until Foley came to him and said he would like to help Fuller by trying to stop the run then going on.

"That was several months before the failure," Stoneham said. "Foley told me at the time that they told him that they were solvent or nearly so, and that if there were some time for the sale of their securities on the market that were as liquid as cash at that time that they believed with from $50,000, to $100,000 the run would be stopped and that later the loan would be paid.

Made Loan as Account of Foley.

"On these representations to Foley, and Foley's representation to me, I made the loans," the witness continued.

"Did you talk to William S. Silkworth, President of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, about those loans?" Chadbourne asked.

"No," replied Stoneham. "I did that simply through my friendship for Foley. I was on merely speaking terms with Fuller, but when Foley told me what Fuller had told him I accepted that as true. In other words I would not have loaned the money unless Foley had requested me to do so."

Stoneham then said that he had known McGee for many years, and had known Fuller for four or five years. He said that it was his understanding that McGee had known Foley for many years but that Foley had not known Fuller as long.

"Did Foley indicate to you why he was interested in Fuller & Co.?" asked the lawyer.

"Foley didn't indicate why he wanted to help them out," replied Stoneham. "I believe that they made a pretty strong statement to him. Fuller came with Foley at the time the request for the loan was made, and said that if the loan was made the 'run' could be checked."

"Was not McGee the real principal in Fuller & Co.?"

"When I was in the Street Fuller was the most active in the affairs of the firm," said Stoneham. "He appeared to be the principal."

Stoneham said that he was acquainted with Arnold Rothstein, who has been described as a gambler; that Rothstein never had an account with Stoneham & Co., and he understood Rothstein now was in the insurance business.

Accountant Examines Checks.

Stoneham agreed to permit Thomas M. Willins, an accountant connected with Haskins & Sells, certified public accountants, to make an immediate investigation of the data that he had brought with him to the hearing. They adjourned to another room, where Stoneham produced the seven canceled checks made out by him to Foley.

"The first of the checks is made out for $50,000 on May 15, 1922," explained Stoneham. "The second, for $25,000, was issued on May 26, the third, for $10,000, on June 1; the fourth, for $20,000, on June 9; the fifth, for $30,000, on June 7; the sixth, for $10,000, on June 10, and the seventh, for $10,000, on June 13."

Stoneham explained that although he had loaned Fuller $147,500, the total indebtedness was $137,500, as on June 13, 1922, Fuller had made out a check for $10,000 to Foley, dated for June 16, and that $10,000 of the loan had been charged off in that manner, after he had put the check through the account of the National Exhibition Company on the day the check fell due.

Stoneham then was permitted to leave the hearing. Referee Coffin having instructed him to appear at the next hearing on June 11 to continue his testimony. As Stoneham was leaving the referee's office he was asked: "How do you expect to get your money back?"

"I don't know," Stoneham replied, "except from Foley. He'll pay it back from time to time, I suppose, but it's a good deal of money for him to pay."

Silkworth Won't Produce Fuller Check.

President Silkworth of the Consolidated Stock Exchange had preceded Stoneham on the witness stand. When Chadbourne began his interrogation of Silkworth he called his attention to a subpoena that had been served on him on April 13 ordering Silkworth to produce all documents which would aid in the bankruptcy inquiry. Mr. Chadbourne then told Referee Coffin that at a hearing on May 21 Silkworth had not produced his records of the receipt of a check for $317.50 from Fuller, and that Silkworth did not produce the data at the next hearing on May 28, although the referee had ordered Silkworth to do so. Chadbourne added that he was particularly desirous of viewing Silkworth's stock slip showing entries on the day in December, 1921, on which Fuller issued the check to cash.

"That voucher has not been produced," said Silkworth, because it had no bearing on this bankruptcy anyway. I refuse to produce it for that reason."

"I am very desirous of helping in every manner in the search for assets," stated Silkworth, but I shall not aid in casting reflections on the institution of which I am the head."

Chadbourne told the referee that the matter of the examination of Silkworth's stock slip book was relevant to the investigation as Fuller had charged the $317.50 to account No. 101 in his firm's books, and that the information in the possession of the individuals on that account was very necessary. He added that it was suggested that there were transactions credited to that account the nature of which Fuller and McGee didn't want known."

Silkworth told the Referee that he was willing to show the check book to Mr. Coffin privately, but he wouldn't consent to its contents being made public, because it showed his private affairs.

Silkworth "Speculates a Little."

"I invest and I speculate a little," was the reply.

Finally Silkworth turned his check stubs over to the Referee for inspection. Mr. Coffin, after examining the book, said that although it showed that the check had been deposited by Silkworth on Dec. 27, 1922, there was nothing to show why it had been received.

Silkworth was followed on the stand by Accountant Willins, who testified that he had made an examination of Fuller & Co.'s account 101, and that the only information he could obtain from this account was that on Dec. 14, 1921, 500 shares of Pacific Oil stock had been purchased at 46½, and that on Dec. 16 this stock had been sold for 47⅞, at a profit of $517.50. He added that the check issued in payment for this stock was the same check that was made out to Fuller & Co., and which had been deposited in the bank with Silkworth's endorsement.

"I didn't receive that check from Fuller," broke in Silkworth, "and the profit indicated was not for my account. I cashed the check for my brother, George F. Silkworth, who, at the time, was a floor broker for Fuller & Co. My brother received the check for an error in the account with the firm."

The accountant had continued his testimony, when Silkworth again interrupted by asking, "Isn't that an error account?"

Deposited $9,500 in Cash.

Willins said that there were no errors charged in the account and that the stock transaction he had read was the only one recorded in the ledger books under account 101. It was then brought out that on the same slip with which the $517.50 was deposited was a record of Silkworth's having deposited in the bank on the same day $9,000 in currency and $500 in gold.

It then developed that papers which Silkworth had delivered to the referee at the last hearing, and which the referee believed he had returned to Silkworth's counsel, Emory Sykes, had disappeared. This discovery was made after Chadbourne had asked Silkworth to take the witness stand again and reveal whether he had found complaints against Fuller & Co. to the Exchange. Sykes told the referee that he would not look for the missing papers, and the referee stated it was his recollection that he returned the papers to Silkworth after viewing them.

The circuitous route these papers have taken—one man to another, broke in Chadbourne—is reminiscent of the way some of the Fuller & Co. papers were handled by their counsel."

Sykes and Silkworth joined in a protest against the lawyer's remarks, but Referee Coffin ordered the examination continued. Silkworth then stated that he had a list of the members of the exchange who made up a fund of $102,000 for R. H. MacMasters & Co., a short time before that firm failed in February, 1922. He refused to give the lists to Chadbourne.

Expected Money Back.

"I take it that none of the brokers who contributed to that fund expected to get his money back," remarked Mr. Chadbourne.

"Oh, they expected to get their money back," replied Silkworth. "S. J. Deery, who was the father of that fund, told me that the contributors would get their money back."

"You have reason to believe that the conditions of Fuller & Co. and other houses that failed was known to the authorities of the Exchange for some time," Chadbourne then declared to the Referee, "and that their resources were pooled under the capable direction of President Silkworth."

William R. Bishop, head of an investigating service in the financial district, was another witness. He proposed that Applegate houses, which he said he investigated at the request of the Exchange before the firms were admitted to membership and said that in each case his report on the firm was unfavorable. Despite these reports, he said, the firms were taken into the exchange. These firms included, he said, Clark & Hubbard, H. C. Stumpf & Co., Kardos & Burke, F. C. Mason & Co., Secker & Co., M. Gregory & Co., and C. Rabiner & Co. All of these firms, Bishop added, went into bankruptcy after their admission to the exchange.

J. J. McArdle, an accountant was hastily called to the stand after an attendant had reported to Referee Coffin that Silkworth and his lawyer, Sykes, and Phillips A. Samuels, a lawyer under special retainer for the Consolidated Stock Exchange, were in conference with the accountant in another room.

Verbal Orders to Investigate.

McArdle explained that he had sought Silkworth's advice about submitting to the referee certain papers which he had obtained from the records of the Exchange in connection with investigations of the accounts of the certain members of the Exchange ordered by the Ways and Means Committee. He produced a list of about a dozen members of the Exchange that he said had received verbal orders to investigate, but he admitted that in most instances he did not make a detailed investigation.

"It is not a fact," asked Chadbourne, "that you cannot state whether a firm is solvent unless you make a personal investigation of the securities in their control?"

"Yes," replied the accountant.

Referee Coffin had been examining the list produced by the witness, and at this point read into the record that among the firms the accountant was ordered to investigate were E. S. Ruskay & Co., F. H. MacMasters & Co., Rayner, Nicholas & Truesdale and J. C. Rabiner, all of which later went into bankruptcy.

McArdle certified that he was ordered to make an investigation of Fuller & Co. some time before the failure of that firm. He said that the investigation was held up when Fuller told him that he wanted a little time, as he was not ready for an examination of his books.

He said that he reported Fuller's request to Chairman Gillies of the Ways and Means Committee, and to the best of his recollection the latter told him "to could take the matter up later."

When Myer J. Mosessohn was called for trial in Judge Nott's part of General Sessions yesterday on an indictment charging him with offering a bribe of $1,000 to one of the jurors in the last Fuller trial, his counsel asked for an indefinite adjournment, which was granted with the consent of Assistant District Attorney Whitner. Mr. Whitner, it was learned, had intended to ask the postponement of the trial until after the fourth trial of Fuller.

WANTS JONES & BAKER BOOKS.

Banton Orders Aide to Investigate Brokers' Accounts.

Following complaints from half a dozen customers of the bankrupt firm of Jones & Baker, District Attorney Banton yesterday ordered Assistant District Attorneys Gerety and Gibbs to call on Alfred E. Coss, the Federal Receiver, with a view to beginning an immediate investigation of the firm's books.

Later Chief Assistant District Attorney Pecora sent a letter to John W. Curtis, President of the New York Curb Market Association, thanking him for his promise to preserve for possible use by the District Attorney's office, all records and data relating to the firm of Jones & Baker which were destroyed by the association in its recent examination of the firm. He added:

"I now request that you transmit to this office at your earliest convenience all such data and records, together with all records of any examination made under the auspices of your association of other brokers concerning transactions in which Jones & Baker were interested."

On application of Alfred E. Coss Jr. received for Jones & Baker, Federal Judge Goddard yesterday vacated the order calling for an examination before Referee Davis of the principals in the Jones & Baker bankruptcy case. The original order, directing William R. Jones and Jackson B. Sells, the partners, to appear tomorrow morning before Referee Davis, was granted on the petition of Caspare E. Siefora, a creditor of Jones & Baker, acting independently of creditors' committee appointed by Receiver Coxe.

A preliminary statement of the condition of Jones & Baker may be made through the creditors' committee before the close of the week, it was said yesterday by Robert Forsyth Little, counsel for the petitioners in the bankruptcy proceedings.

DECLARES BUSINESS IS ON AN EVEN KEEL

George E. Roberts Warns Music Industries That None Should "Rock the Boat."

CHICAGO, June 4.—American business, for the first time in a decade, is on an even keel, headed straight for an era of prosperity which should have a long run—but no element should "rock the boat," George E. Roberts, Vice President of the National City Bank of New York, declared today before the convention of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Roberts addressed a plea to industry for "steady going" during the next six months, with a view to avoiding a period of inflation.

Prosperity, the speaker declared, is but a matter of a proper balance between the branches of industry the same as har

HUGHES TELLS NEED OF A WORLD COURT

Can Accomplish for International Law What Kent Achieved for United States, He Says.

FOUNDATION OF PEACE

The peaceful settlement of international disputes requires the establishment of a permanent tribunal of international justice just as the tranquillity of the United States and its component States depends upon the courts, Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes declared last night. He was speaking at the Kent Centennial Celebration at Columbia University under the auspices of the Columbia Law School.

Mr. Hughes was roundly applauded by his audience of lawyers and law students as he made point after point in favor of an international court. His arguments were based largely upon the growth of the judicial system of the United States from the day of James Kent and other founders of our legal system.

Of Kent, who served as Professor of Law at Columbia College from 1793 to 1798 and later as Justice and Chief Justice of the New York Supreme Court—1798-1814—and then as Chancellor of New York State, Mr. Hughes said:

"Kent had the power of keen analysis; he had a correct historical perspective. He did not create institutions, but he did what was far better. With vast industry and discriminating judgment he took account of our noble inheritance in the materials accumulated by the juristic labors of the past, and with a privileged liberty of selection and combination he made the adaptation necessary to the new political and social conditions resulting from the Revolution. He thus supplied the legal concepts and precepts which formed the content of a distinct jurisprudence."

Secretary Hughes sketched the life of the great New York jurist from his early school days down to his return to Columbia as Professor of Law after serving as Chancellor in 1823. Kent remained at Columbia until 1826, and from then until 1830 devoted his time to the preparation of his famous Kent's Commentaries. It was he who propounded the doctrine that States, or bodies politic, are to be considered as moral persons, having a public will, capable and free to do right and wrong, "inasmuch as they are collections of individuals each of whom carries with him into the service of the community the same binding law of morality and religion which ought to control his conduct in private life."

Mr. Hughes's address followed an invocation by Bishop William T. Manning of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York and an address by Justice Edward Ridley Finch of the Appellate Division, who is President of the Alumni Association of Columbia Law School.

Need for a World Court.

Justice Finch, who also discussed the need for a world court, referring to the passage quoted from Kent's Commentaries, said:

"Thus Kent created a doctrine to which public opinion may aspire in holding nations to account. Since nations often resort to war to attain wrongful ends, this doctrine of Kent may yet become as potent in dissipating causes for war as Rousseau's conception that 'all men are born free and equal' has been in elevating mankind. Out of the work of a great life I have chosen these two fragments to characterize my introduction of our distinguished guest.

"Is it too much to think that both of these principles so emphasized by Kent may be effective agencies in establishing the new Permanent Court of International Affairs? For if right through reason is thus enthroned and the partisanship of diplomacy is cast aside so that States are held accountable before public opinion, predatory might will find it more difficult to disregard reason and right, and any attempt to thwart justice so expressed will array against it not only the moral sense but the organized force of the world."

Mr. Hughes in his address said:

"In reviewing this career and in considering in its light the exigencies of our own day, we cannot fail to be impressed with the imperative need of the competent exposition of the law. When Kent labored there were few law reports; we are now overwhelmed by their multitude. The courts then handed down few opinions; there are now far too many. Kent by his industry could command all the legal learning of his time; now it is given to but a small number to master a single department of the law. Then the problem was how to develop a body of law; now the question is how the growth of that body can be controlled and how it may be subdued to the proper service of perplexed lawyers, their still more puzzled clients and our overburdened courts.

"In these United States we have the greatest output of law the world has ever seen. It is our chief product; forty-eight sovereignties have an unexampled producing organization. The appetite for legislation is insatiable. Every statute has its progeny of decided cases, and many decisions instead of settling the law raise questions to be settled by other decisions, while the keenest minds of the country are devoting themselves to finding new differentiations in applying old principles.

Need One Hundred Kents.

"Thus it has come to pass, we are told, that in a recent year there were 175,000 pages of reported decisions in the United States. We need the master expositor; only we require a hundred Kents instead of one. Fortunately the exigency is appreciated and the bar of the United States, under the guidance of its most distinguished leaders, has set before it the colossal but necessary task of the systematic, scientific statement of the principles of the law. For this work, which is the special obligation of the bar, we find both the inspiration and the pattern in the achievements of Kent. In his luminous simplicity, and in his accuracy of exposition, he achieved an authority even greater than that of those of the particular precedents he cited, and his text created a well-nigh conclusive presumption of law.

"It must ever be emphasized that democracy rests upon law; upon the commonly accepted principles of conduct to which appeal may be made against both private wrong and every attempted exercise of arbitrary power. In truth, respect for democracy is essentially respect for law; they cannot be divorced without either tyranny or anarchy. Liberty may be won by the sword, but it can be maintained only by the orderly arrangements and precepts which make up the law; and at this time our capacity for free government will be measured not merely by our general respect for law in the abstract, but by our ability to extricate ourselves from the complexities of our own making and by ever more improving the law and in attaining a reasonable simplicity in the setting forth of the principles that govern our intricate network of interests.

"While we cannot permit ourselves to be deceived with respect to the magnitude of the undertaking, it is no more impossible of accomplishment by the organized bar of the United States, with its ample facilities and the trained talent at its command, than it was for Kent by his unaided efforts to master and set forth the jurisprudence of his time. What is needed is the determination of Kent, his ideals, his indefatigable energy, his method and exactness.

"But the law, however well conceived as set forth, cannot be maintained without the institutions which interpret and apply it, and it is idle to hope for respect for these institutions unless they deserve it by the efficiency of their administration. Kent, indeed, performed an inestimable service to the law, but it was his happy privilege in the course of that service, and by means of it, to dignify and elevate in public respect our judicial tribunals during the critical and formative period.

"The judicial power, as often observed, is with us the weakest of all; it commands neither the purse nor the sword; in its best exercise it makes no appeal to the emotion; it attests simply self-imposed restraints which depend upon a common love of justice. Fallible, like all human institutions, our courts still remain the assurance of our domestic peace, and in the long run they afford us far less reason for anxiety and regret than either of the other departments of government. If we have tranquil States it is because the people believe in the reign of law and maintain the integrity of their courts.

"If we have a nation, with the immense advantage of national authority adequate to meet all national needs, and at the same time are able to prevent the unseemly clashes of legislative power and to maintain a desirable local autonomy, it is because we have the Supreme Court of the United States, through which differences can be reconciled and the Constitution upheld.

International Disputes.

"If controversies over legal rights are to be determined peacefully, there must be a tribunal to determine them. This is true, I may say, in international as well as in national affairs, and the American love of peace and sense of right, and the conviction born of our own experience, have made it a definite part of American policy that we should do all in our power to secure provision for the peaceful settlement of international disputes by the establishment of a permanent tribunal of international justice. Our particular interests as a nation require it, in order to give more adequate protection to our own rights; the interests of world peace demand it.

"Temporary tribunals of arbitration, which meet to determine a particular controversy and then are dissolved, are but an imperfect system of judicial settlement. Political considerations are likely to obtrude in the case of such tribunals, which are created by the parties to the controversy after it has arisen. What is even more serious is that it is increasingly difficult to agree on arbitrators, or upon the umpire, who will really decide the case. It is usual to provide, as some provisions must be made, that if the parties to the dispute cannot agree the umpire shall be appointed by some designated Government. But this gives to another Government the final appointment of the judge that is to decide the case.

"How unsatisfactory is such a method as compared with the opportunity to submit a controversy to a permanent international court composed of the ablest and most impartial judges, not appointed simply to deal with a particular dispute after it has arisen, but acting as a court in accordance with judicial standards and giving their continuous and expert service to the interpretation and application of international law.

Must Arbitrate Disputes Now.

"There are those who say that we should perfect international law before we have a permanent court of international justice. They ignore the fact that in the meantime we must have arbitral tribunals to decide our controversies of a justiciable nature; we cannot in deference to our historic policy refuse to submit such cases to arbitration, and we cannot await for this purpose the perfecting of international law.

"These critics also ignore the enormous service that a permanent international court may render with the materials now at its command in the development of international law. If Kent had been compelled to wait for a complete American system of equity jurisprudence before a court of equity was set up to which he could give his abilities, the evolution of our equity jurisprudence would have been impossible. A permanent international tribunal can accomplish for international law in large measure what Kent, and the judges who have followed him, have achieved for the equity jurisprudence of the United States.

"Who is more entitled to honor than the incorruptible, learned, industrious, impartial judge. Amid the play of favoritism, the abuses of administrative discretion, the compromises of legislative halls, amid chicanery and dishonesty, disrespect of law and efforts to subvert its enforcement, he stands forth, dependable and steadfast, alike to the rich and poor, weak and strong, the righteous and courageous Judge, the fit representative of democracy commanding its best talent for the performance of its highest function.

"It was this character which ennobled the offices which he held, which enabled him to accomplish his great tasks, and which will cause to be held in fadeless honor the name and service of James Kent."

The Kent centennial meeting was attended by ten descendants of Chancellor Kent, groups representing the bench and bar of the city county and State, the judiciaries of other States, Federal and State officials from different cities who are graduates of Columbia Law School, members of Congress, city officials, the faculties of other law schools, and members of the alumni of Columbia Law School and law students.

BRIDAL PARTY GUESTS POISONED BY SALAD

Seven of Thirty-Five Stricken Taken to Hospital—Chicken Is Condemned in Report.

The wedding party of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Kissel, married Sunday evening, was interrupted in the early morning hours when about thirty of the seventy-five guests and the bridal couple suddenly collapsed at the bride's home, 401 East 142d Street, the Bronx, suffering from ptomaine poisoning. The newlyweds and five of the guests, including a brother of the bridegroom and a sister of the bride, were taken to the Lincoln Hospital, while others were attended by four ambulance surgeons and were able to go to their homes. The wedding cake, about to be cut, remained untouched.

According to the Health Department, a chicken salad was responsible for the poisoning. All of those in the hospital were said to be out of danger, but in some cases only the prompt use of stomach pumps prevented serious results.

Those taken to the hospital, besides the bridegroom and the bride, who was Miss Anna O'Connell, were Joseph Kissel of 401 East 142d Street, George Kissel of 1,024 Higgs Beach, Clason Point; Anna McDonald of 823 East 125th Street, Anna O'Connell of 401 East 142d Street and Eileen O'Connell of 401 East 142d Street.

LONDON BEGINS DERBYWEEK

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 4.—The Derby is monopolizing public interest this week and politics and all other forms of sport are completely subordinated to it.

Great regret is felt today that the King has cancelled his usual visit to the race and the dinner it is customary for him to give after it to the Jockey Club and the owner of the Derby winner. The very grave illness of his aunt, Princess Christian, is the cause.

The innovation for Derby week was made this year by the Press Club. They gave a special Derby Week luncheon to Lord Derby, whose ancestor, the twelfth Earl, started the historic race; Lord Glanely, Lord Riddell, Honorable James Rothschild and a number of other well-known racing men, trainers and jockeys attended.

Derby and Woolavington are the owners of the chief favorites, Pharos and Town Guard, and they chaffed each other over the prospects of their entries. Adolph E. Ochs was also a guest, and in response to cries from members in all parts of the room made a short speech.

COLUMBIA COLLEGE PRIZES AWARDED

RESERVE CORPS CANDIDATES

The scholastic year's prizes for achievement in Columbia College and commissions of the Officers' Training Corps were awarded at the Class Day exercises yesterday afternoon at Columbia University. With hundreds of their friends, relatives and invited guests gathered in the Mines Quadrangle, the 1923 graduates carried out the final program of their college careers.

The Rolker and the Alumni Association prizes went to Franklin V. Brodil of 211 East Seventy-eighth Street, captain of the Columbia crew, President of the Student Board, the undergraduate governing body. The Charles M. Rolker Jr. prize was established by Mrs. C. M. Rolker in memory of her son, a member of the class of 1907, and the winner each year receives the income from $1,000. It is awarded to the member of the graduating class who in the estimate of his classmates has proven himself worthy of special distinction because of his industry, scholarship and pre-eminence of extra-curricula activities.

The Alumni Association prize is given to the most faithful and deserving student of the graduation class. It is maintained by the Association of the Alumni of Columbia College and is valued at $50.

R. O. T. C. Certificates.

George Medigovich of Bisbee, Ariz., won the Edward Sutliff Brainerd Memorial Prize. This prize, valued at $50, is the gift of Miss Phebe T. Sutliff in memory of her nephew, a member of the class of 1916. It is awarded annually to that student who is adjudged by his classmates as most worthy of distinction on the ground of his qualities of mind and of character.

General Bullard presented certificates of eligibility for appointment to the Officers' Reserve Corps to a group of students who will receive their commissions when they reach 21. The recipients were Juan José Fuertes, Santiago, P. R.; Irving G. Frohman, Rockaway, L. I.; Jules Guedalia, 536 West 113th Street, New York; Walter H. E. Jaeger, Allendale, N. J.; Salvator Charles Minuto, 130 De Kalb Avenue, Brooklyn; Lewis Simpson Travis, Peekskill, N. Y. David Emil Ackermann, 162 East Eightieth Street, New York.

Cyprus Student Cited.

Haig H. Davidian of Larnaca, Cyprus, received a special certificate for satisfactorily completing the prescribed course of instruction for the Infantry Unit of the R. O. T. C., excepting the advanced course in camp training, which was not open to him because he is not a citizen of the United States.

Class Day exercises opened with the singing of the new marching song, "Rock Solid." Reading of the class address was by Robert Puleyn of 830 Park Avenue, and the class history by Warner Turfts of Hollywood, Cal. Henry M. Robinson of Malden, Mass., read the class poem and Hollister Sutliff of Denver the class prophecy. The class prophecy was by Corey H. Ford of 608 West 113th Street and Theodore Shane made the class presentation.

Barnard College Class Day exercises will be held in Students' Hall at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The program will open with the processional and class song. Gertrude Cahill of Great Neck, N. Y., will deliver the salutatory and Denver Frankel of 94 Hamilton Place will read the class history. The program includes "Knocks," as arranged by Mary Parrish Little of Meridian, Miss.; the presentation of 1923's gift to Barnard by Irene Lewis of 517 Macon Street, Brooklyn; announcement of the Phi Beta Kappa elections by Vivian Tappan of Englewood, N. J., and the valedictory by Edythe M. Sheehan of 205 West 117th Street. The "Sunset Song" and the recessional will close the exercises.

There will be an informal reception on the terrace at Barnard. The Senior Ball was held in the gymnasium last night. The patronesses included Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve, Mrs. William F. Ogburn, Miss Mabel F. Weeks and Miss Helen F. Abbott.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN THREATEN REVOLT

When the Executive Committee of the Republican State Committee meets in New York City on June 14 it will be faced with a fair-sized revolt among the women, who demand a larger voice in party affairs, especially in the selection of candidates for office. Many of the Republican women leaders insist that a better class of representatives be selected to go to Albany. The women also demand equal representation with the men on the Republican National Committee.

"Women, by all means, should have an equality of rights in the Republican Party," declared Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton yesterday. At a recent meeting of Republican women in Westchester County, Mrs. Seton wanted to know why representation on the National Committee was not accorded the women, and many women are demanding an answer. "Women have a more eclectic viewpoint than men," Mrs. Seton said, "and it is a great mistake for those in power to attempt to force them to work within the narrower limits of the old party methods which are not adequate for our newer political needs. Women have done a great deal for the party since they got the vote and it is not likely that they will be content to continue to occupy a subordinate position. I have no plan, but I am of the opinion that the women should agitate and protest until they obtain their rights."

Mrs. James Griswold Wentz, President of the Women's Republican Club and member of the Republican County Committee, endorsed Mrs. Seaton.

"Women have been working right along, but the men don't seem to know it," Mrs. Wentz said. "We are not satisfied with the calibre of men who go up to Albany and we shall demand something better. Look at what they have just done. My organization sent a petition and a pile of letters up to Albany protesting against the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law, but what good did it do? I think the time has come for us to be represented at Albany by men of the highest type. If we cannot get high-class men, then we should have women. When women have something to say regarding candidates we will have law enforcement.

Mrs. Thomas Slack, President of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs, and a member of the County Committee, said that the women were discontented and would demand better representation on party committees.

Mrs. Olive Stott Gabriel, who was deposed by the county organization last Fall as co-leader of the Tenth Assembly District, said she is now organizing in the district the Republican Women's Study Club.

"We shall be in good working order for the Fall campaign, possibly with a candidate of our own," she said. "The Tenth went Democratic last Fall for the first time in years, and there is an opinion that it will not swing back into the Republican column until better candidates are nominated. There is no knowing how many votes the Republican machine has cost the party, and it is losing them right along, for the women are becoming more and more disgusted and their minds not to work any more under present conditions."

Miss B. C. Howard, President of the West Side Civic League and member of the County Committee, called attention to the fact that the Ninth Assembly District, formerly a banner Republican district, had gone Democratic last Fall. "The Republican Party," she said, "will keep on losing elections until it nominates better men for office. As we have no voice in choosing candidates, and as no attention is paid to our suggestions, I see no way out but to rise up and demand that this impossible situation must end. There will soon be no party left if the men keep up these tactics."

Miss Genevieve Andrews, President of the Women's Republican Association of New York State, said:

"Everything is cut and dried in the Executive Committee of the County Committee. Everybody knows that the women work harder then the men, and they wonder why we're getting left. There is no telling what may happen. The women are complaining on all sides more than ever, and I doubt if they will jump at the crack of the party whip for the Fall campaign."

BUTLER IN GLASGOW TALKS ON LINCOLN

Test of His Worth Is That He Is Now Honored in the South, Lecturer Asserts.

RECEIVES LL.D. DEGREE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GLASGOW, June 4.—Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, in a lecture on Abraham Lincoln tonight at the University of Glasgow, declared that the great patriot of the Civil War days was still too near to the people of the United States to allow a dispassionate examination of his character. But some measure of the personality "that saved the Union only to fall at the hand of an assassin" might be had, he said, when it was remembered that in spite of the bitterness of the struggle and the partisan feelings engendered, Lincoln was now honored in the South as he is in the North.

Before delivering his address an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred on Dr. Butler by Sir Donald McAlister, principal of the university, who presided at the gathering. There was a large attendance on the part of members of the university and the general public, including the Lord Provost of the city. Dr. Butler spoke of himself as an American sprung of Scottish stock. He was received with great cordiality and his lecture was followed with close interest.

In his lecture Dr. Butler said:

"It is not easy for an American to write or to speak of Abraham Lincoln without emotion. The day will doubtless come when, as in the case of other great figures in history, the spell of his personality will be broken and the tragedy of his taking off will be but a mark in the annals of time. That day has not yet come. Lincoln is still too near.

"His words and his influence are still too real to permit a cold, dispassionate examination of his mind and character. Lowell's noble portrait of him in the Commemoration Ode is lovingly dwelt upon by Americans old and young as that of some one of the hem of whose garment they themselves have touched. Volumes have been expended upon Lincoln and many more volumes will follow, but the subtle combination of pathos and of power that was his, together with the inexhaustible patient, kindly humor, shrewed common sense and the fixed habit of turning his

Keen, untroubled face

Home, to the instant need of things must be felt and cannot be adequately described.

"The fact that Lincoln was a strong partisan, but is now claimed by all parties alike, that he commanded the armies and navies in defense of the Union in a four years' struggle of great intensity with the Southern Confederacy and is now honored in the South as well as in the North, that he came of the humblest beginnings and had an instinctive sense of the needs and hopes of the ascendant common people and is now honored everywhere without distinction of class or rank, offers some indication of the measure of the personality that saved the Union, only to fall at the hand of an assassin.

"Lincoln was going the way of so many other Americans of apparently average ability and average opportunity when the call came that made him the people's protagonist. He had served a short term in the House of Representatives, was making his reputation as a member of the bar, taking an interest in politics and occasionally delivering political speeches, but without any thought or purpose of returning to public life. He had made for himself a wide circle of admiring friends and his companionship was eagerly sought wherever he went on circuit in the practice of his profession. During these years Lincoln became a hard student and much more than made up for his lack of early formal training in school or college.

"The political issues and speeches of Douglas came to Lincoln first as an invitation to debate them before the people of Illinois, and then as a trumpet call to wage battle for the right as he saw it before the people of the nation. Not only was Lincoln looked to by his neighbors for an answer to each important speech by Douglas, but it soon came to be recognized that he was the only public man who could answer Douglas. Step by step a controversy was staged in the State of Illinois with the whole country for an audience."

Dr. Butler went on to narrate how Lincoln became the inevitable candidate. He reviewed his election and the stormy years that followed, and concluded his recapitulation of the struggle between North and South and the trying times of reconstruction thus:

"The passions aroused by war do not quickly abate, and only a calm, serene spirit such as that of Lincoln could hasten the quieting of the tossing waves of conflict. The effect of the blunders of the period of reconstruction has not yet passed away, although fifty years and more have come and gone.

"Intellectually and economically the people of the States that were members of the Confederacy are thoroughly united with the other States of the Union. Politically they stand largely separate for the reason that the Fifteenth Amendment, which no attempt is made to enforce in those States where its provisions run counter to public opinion, appears to the white citizens to endanger their entire civilization. They have, therefore, with the tacit consent of the nation, sought to protect themselves against such disaster by methods which some regard as legal, others as extra-legal, and still others as illegal."

CARDINAL SOLDEVILLA ASSASSINATED IN SPAIN

Chauffeur Is Also Killed and Secretary Wounded by Unidentified Men in Saragossa.

SARAGOSSA, June 4 (Associated Press).—Cardinal Soldevilla y Romero, aged Archbishop of Saragossa, was shot and killed while visiting a monastery in the vicinity of this city today.

The Cardinal was seated in a motor car with his secretary when attacked by a group of unidentified men. The chauffeur was killed and the secretary severely wounded.

A search for the assassins is under way.

MADRID, June 4.—Cardinal Soldevilla's assassination was received with consternation in Madrid, where it is feared the crime will be the signal for nation-wide disorders. The Cardinal had thousands of enemies and some of these are openly rejoicing in Madrid tonight. Processions against the Clericals have been forbidden and Republican and Socialist meetings have been suppressed.

Rioting occurred at Barcelona tonight when the news was received. The latest dispatch from that city states that two persons have been killed in clerical and anti-clerical fighting.

The Cardinal was the Vatican's spokesman, according to the Spanish Government on the eve of the general elections late in April an ultimatum, stating that it could not change the national constitution.

LONDON, June 4.—The London Times Madrid correspondent says the assassination of Cardinal Soldevilla was connected with a labor dispute between the Cardinal and some workmen employed on his property.

The Cardinal was reputed to be generally beloved in Sargossa, where he had been Archbishop since 1901. He took a prominent part in connection with the Government's proposal to grant greater freedom to non-Catholics.

MISS HADLEY A CONVERT JUST BEFORE WEDDING

Change in Plan for Ceremony Is Due to Conversion of Former Yale President's Daughter.

NEW HAVEN, June 4.—When Miss Laura B. Hadley, daughter of Arthur Twining Hadley, former President of Yale University, is married to Nicholas Moseley, a Yale professor, next Thursday forenoon no guests will be present. The ceremony is to be private, although numerous invitations have been issued for the reception which is to follow at the Hadley residence.

Inquiry today revealed as the probable reason for the private wedding, when friends had been expecting church ceremony since the engagement was announced last January, that Miss Hadley has become converted to the Catholic religion, surprising even her own family. As a Sunday school teacher in the Center Congregational Church, New Haven, she met her class for the last time yesterday and then went to St. Mary's Catholic Church, where she was received.

The bride, who was graduated from Vassar three years ago, has been working with the Yale University Press. Professor Moseley was graduated from Yale in 1919 and is now Assistant Professor of English.

are five employes of the testator, each of whom receives $5,000.

The document was drawn in New York on May 27, 1922, almost a year before Mr. Gould died and just four weeks before his secret marriage on May 31, 1922, to Guinevere Sinclair, who was then 29 years old. His first wife, Edith Kingdon, had been an actress in Augustin Daly's company when they were married in 1896 and the second wife, too, played in musical comedy on Broadway when she met George J. Gould.

The first Mrs. Gould died on the golf links at Georgian Court in November, 1921. Their union had been supposed to be a happy one and society was astonished when it learned the following July that in May Gould had married again and that his wife, who had been living on an estate near Rye, N. Y., was understood to be the mother of a boy of 7 and a girl of 4 and an infant child. The marriage certificate, it was subsequently disclosed, stated that Guinivere Sinclair's marriage to George J. Gould was her first.

Text of the Will.

I, George J. Gould, of Lakewood, County of Ocean, State of New Jersey, do hereby make, publish and declare this to be my last will and testament, hereby revoking all other wills by me made.

First—Referring to the power of appointment contained in the fifth clause or article of the last will and testament of my father, Jay Gould, I hereby direct that the share of the estate of Jay Gould held in trust for my benefit, shall upon my decease, be equally distributed among my seven children, Kingdon Gould, Marjorie Gould Drexel, Jay Gould, Vivien Decies, George J. Gould Jr., Edith Gould Wainwright and Gloria Gould.

Second—I give and bequeath to John Spensley, George Phillip Lansford, William Rhinelander Stewart, Gottfried Fluckiger and David Sommer, the sum of five thousand ($5,000) dollars each, free from all Federal and State inheritance or transfer taxes.

Third—I give and bequeath unto my trustees hereinafter named, the sum of four million ($4,000,000) dollars, in trust, for the uses and purposes following:

1. To invest and reinvest, hold or sell, convey or dispose of the same at public or private sale, at such time or times and on such terms as they or the survivor of them in their or his discretion shall deem advisable. 2. To receive the rents, issues, income and profits thereof and after paying all necessary expenses in connection therewith to pay over the net income therefrom to my wife, Guinivere S. Gould, during her lifetime, and upon her decease to transfer and pay over the principal thereof to my children by my said wife, Guinevere S. Gould, in such proportions and at such times as she shall appoint in and by her last will and testament; and in case of her failure to make such testamentary appointment, then to divide the principal thereof into as many equal shares as my said wife shall leave children of mine surviving, or children of a deceased child living at the time of my death, per stirpes and not per capita, and to hold one of said shares in trust for the benefit of each of said children, and to receive the rents, issues, income and profits thereof, and after paying all necessary expenses in connection therewith, to pay over the net income therefrom to the child thereunto entitled during his or her lifetime, and thereafter to transfer and pay over the principal of said share to the beneficiaries named in his or her last will and testament, and, failing such testamentary disposition, then to his or her next of kin in accordance with the provisions of the statutes of distribution then in force in the State of New Jersey.

The Residue.

Fourth—All the rest, residue and remainder of my property, real, personal and mixed, of which I shall die, seized or possessed, or to which I shall be entitled at the time of my death, I give, devise and bequeath unto my trustees hereinafter named in trust for the uses and purposes following:

(a.) To invest and re-invest, hold or sell, convey or dispose of the same at public or private sale, at such time or times, and on such terms as they or the survivor of them in their or his discretion shall deem advisable.

(b.) To divide the principal thereof into ten (10) equal shares and to designate, hold and invest one of such shares for each of my children, Kingdon Gould, Marjorie Gould Drexel, Jay Gould, Vivien Decies, George J. Gould Jr., Edith Gould Wainwright and Gloria Gould, and to collect and receive and pay or apply the rents, interest and income from the part or share so set apart for each child to his or her use during his or her life and upon the death of any of said children to pay, assign, transfer or convey the part or share so held in trust for him or her to his or her issue in such proportions and at such times as he or she shall appoint in and by his or her last will and testament; and failing such testamentary disposition, then to his or her next of kin in accordance with the provisions of the statutes of distribution then in force in the State of New Jersey.

(c.) To designate, hold and invest one other of such shares for each of my children, George Sinclair Gould, Jane Sinclair Gould and Guinivere Gould (the children of my said wife, Guinivere Sinclair Gould) and to collect and receive and pay or apply the rents, interest and income from the part or share so set apart for each child, to his or her use during his or her life, and upon the death of any of said children to pay, assign, transfer or convey the part or share so held in trust for him or her to his or her issue in such proportions and at such times as he or she shall appoint in and by his or her last will and testament; and failing such testamentary disposition, then to his or her next of kin in accordance with the provisions of the statutes of distribution then in force in the State of New Jersey.

(d.) During the minority of the children of my said wife, Guinivere Sinclair Gould, the net income from the share or shares set apart for them shall be paid to my said wife and to Schuyler Neilson Rice for the maintenance, education and support of said children, and no bond or other security shall be required of my said wife and Schuyler Neilson Rice for the faithful administration or expenditure of the income received by them as aforesaid.

Guardians.

Fifth—I hereby nominate, constitute and appoint my said wife and Schuyler Neilson Rice to be the guardians of the person and property of my children by my present wife during their minority.

Sixth—I nominate, constitute and appoint my son, Kingdon Gould, and Schuyler Neilson Rice to be the executors of this testamentary will and direct that no bond or other security be required of either of them for the faithful performance of their duties as such executors. I give and grant unto my said executors full power and authority to sell at their discretion, as to time and terms, and to convey any or all of my real estate and any or all of my personal property for cash, or upon credit, either at public or private sale, and mortgage, sold, I empower them to lease my real estate for such time and upon such terms as they may think proper and to collect the rents and income arising therefrom and generally to manage the same as they may think best.

If in effecting the division of my residuary estate my executors deem it inadvisable to sell any of the securities or property constituting the same, I then authorize them to divide such securities and deliver the same in kind, at such valuation as they in their discretion shall agree upon to the trustees hereinafter named for the purposes of establishing the trusts provided in the third and fourth numbered paragraphs hereof.

Seventh—I nominate, constitute and appoint Commercial Trust Company of New Jersey, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, and Schuyler Neilson Rice to be the trustees under this my last will and testament and I direct that no bond or security shall be required of said trustees as a condition of qualifying or acting under this will. My said trustees may, at their discretion, retain and hold as investments under my will any securities I may hold at the time of my death. I give and grant unto my said trustees full power and authority to sell, dispose of and convey, at their discretion as to time and terms, any or all of my real estate and personal property held by them as such trustees under any of the trusts hereunder, for cash or upon credit, either at public or private sale, and to lease the real estate for such a term and upon such conditions as they may think proper, and to collect the rents and income arising therefrom and generally to manage the same as they may think best.

Warns Against Contest.

Eighth—In case any person shall under any pretense whatever oppose the probate of this my last will and testament, or institute, take or share in any action or proceeding to impeach or impair or set aside or invalidate any of the provisions of or do hereby revoke any and all devises, bequests and provisions to or for the benefit of said persons, and such persons shall be excluded from all participation in any, shall not have any share or part of my property or estate, real or personal, and the portion to which said person might otherwise have become entitled under the provisions of this instrument shall form a part of my residuary estate and shall be disposed of in accordance with the terms and provisions thereof, excluding, however, the persons opposing such probate or instituting, taking or sharing in any action or proceeding to impeach or impair or set aside or invalidate any of the provisions of this will.

In witness, whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 27th day of May, in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two.

GEORGE J. GOULD (L. S.)

The foregoing instrument, contained on this and the preceding five pages, was subscribed, sealed, published and declared by the testator, as and for his last will and testament, in the presence of us, who, at his request and in his presence, and in the presence of each other, have subscribed our names as witnesses, the day and year last above mentioned, having seen the testator also sign his name in the margin of each of the preceding five pages.

Contest Not Improbable.

Attorneys who have appeared for the late George Jay Gould and for his children by his first wife in the Jay Gould estate litigation declined yesterday to discuss the possibility of a contest of the George Jay Gould will on behalf of his children of the late Edith Kingdon Gould, or on behalf of the infant children of his widow.

The action already taken by the children of his first wife to bar those of the second from sharing in the Jay Gould estate shows that the former children do not regard the latter as the legitimate issue of their father, and for that reason a contest of the residuary provision for the children by the second wife is regarded as probable.

The action of Mrs. Gould in excluding the Sinclair children from a share in his father's estate disposes of the contest by the Edith Kingdon children on this subject, but it was pointed out that their exclusion opens up to them an opportunity to fight for a share of the Jay Gould interests left to their father, if for no other purpose than for the possible effect it would have in bringing about the settlement of any contest filed by the children of the first wife in opposing their contention that they are "issue" of George Jay Gould.

The possible ground of a contest by the older children was said yesterday to be the state of Mr. Gould's health when he married Guinivere Sinclair, a month or so before making his will. Counsel for her children in the Jay Gould litigation contend that this marriage legitimated the children. Affidavits to file in the Jay Gould litigation in behalf of the late George Jay Gould state that he was in poor health at the time he went abroad last Summer and continuously thereafter, which would afford the basis for a contest on the ground that Mr. Gould was not of sound mind and testamentary capacity when he made his will.

The fact that Kingdon Gould was named by his father as an executor was taken to mean that in the event of a contest he would be aligned against his brothers and sisters in any effort to break the will, unless he renounced his appointment as an executor. If he qualifies as an executor it will be his duty to defend the will against the contest, as it would be his duty to defend any will of which he was executor, and he is expected to take one position as executor and the opposite position as an heir.

AIRPLANE BRINGS TIMES TO 'AD' MEN

TRIP MADE IN 100 MINUTES

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 4.—In little more than an hour after the big presses in THE NEW YORK TIMES Annex in Times Square had hummed down to a stop on the last City Edition, between 4 and 5 o'clock this morning, a copy of the complete newspaper was at the disposal of 2,250 delegates to the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World convention here.

This was due to a Times airplane special which flew from the coast at an average speed of better than 95 miles an hour, inaugurating an airplane Times delivery which is to be maintained until Thursday, the closing day of the convention. The actual flying time for the 110 air miles was one hour and forty minutes. The feat evoked a united chorus of praise from the advertising men. "This delivery simply demonstrates in remarkable fashion," said Mayor Edward L. Bader, "how far-reaching are the facilities of the modern newspaper. Just think of receiving a copy of the last edition of a New York newspaper almost with the dawn, and out of the air, too. It opens up a new avenue and one that I hope to see pursued consistently by such newspapers as THE TIMES.

Mayor Bader Gets Paper Early.

"Usually down here we get early editions. I think you call them mail editions. It frequently happens that big news that breaks late is omitted. I understand that this can't be helped, but if it were possible, by some such means as this, to get the last edition, the final word, as it were, it would certainly be appreciated by the people living, as we do, at some distance from New York.

"Thanks to this efficiency, I was able to read this newspaper in my office when I arrived at 7:30 this morning. It surely is getting so that you get the news 'hot off the presses.' If they keep up this pace we'll be getting tomorrow's paper today."

"Great work," he said. "That's the sort of thing that shows the wide-awake spirit. In expressing my compliments to THE TIMES I want to voice the appreciation of the delegates and the membership of the association for the recognition of their work which this demonstration indicates. It is a splendid demonstration of the spirit of the newspaper of today."

The 115 British delegates, representing newspapers, magazines, advertising agencies and large mercantile enterprises in the United Kingdom, were pleased. None of them thought it was yesterday's rather than today's TIMES they carried down to the breakfast tables. Their viewpoint was set forth by C. Harold Carvon, President-elect of the Thirty Club of London.

Remarkable Feat, Say Britishers.

"We Britishers," he said, "are very much impressed with the widespread interest taken by the press of the United States in the proceedings of this convention. Newspapers everywhere are telephoning or writing us for interviews. This airplane delivery, by performing such a wonderfully capable system of newspaper distribution with regard to the conventions, is truly remarkable.

"My outstanding thought is the enterprise shown by THE NEW YORK TIMES in establishing an air service to get the news here first. The members of this group and myself realize the importance which is attached to this convention and the large number of people attending it."

Edwin T. Meredith, publisher of a string of farm periodicals in the Middle West, who was Secretary of Agriculture in the Cabinet of President Wilson, said:

Stanley Clague, General Manager of the Audit Bureau of Circulation, of Chicago, said:

"I congratulate THE TIMES on its demonstration of its usual enterprise and I regard this airplane delivery of today as a happy augury of a new form of distribution. I look forward to the time when I, a resident of Chicago, will find today's TIMES delivered to my home today. I am certain that this is coming, and that is not far away either."

"We greatly appreciate the enterprise shown by THE NEW YORK TIMES," said Albert R. Bell, Atlantic City hotel owner, who is Chairman of the Reception Committee of the convention. "We hope that it won't be long before a daily service of THE TIMES will be established by airplane. I congratulate THE TIMES on its go-ahead spirit; it was a great thing for it to do."

The hydroplane which made the trip was the giant of the fleet of the Aeromarine Airways, Inc., of Manhattan. Tonight Charles F. Redden, President of the corporation, declared the trip had shown the practicability of commercial service by air.

"The fact," he said, "that a newspaper such as THE NEW YORK TIMES has realized the possibility of speeding up its delivery by using aircraft is particularly gratifying. The effect on the advertising world at the convention must necessarily be beneficial to the further development of interest in commercial aviation. They came down to breakfast and found the last edition of a newspaper printed almost a hundred miles away waiting for them on the table. The news of the metropolis is brought to them in minutes, whereas formerly it took hours.

Flexible Makes the Run.

The ship which made the run down the coast was the Nina, flagship of the corporation's fleet of twenty-seven flying boats. She is a big cabin cruiser, fitted to carry eleven passengers, and is of the E-5-L type, equipped with two 400 horsepower Liberty motors. She has never had a mishap.

When she was swung into position at the seaplane moorings in the Hudson River, off West Eighty-second Street, Manhattan, just before today's dawn, Clarence H. (Duke) Schiller was elected pilot for the trip. His mechanic was C. F. Haynes. Both have records for flying efficiency. The "Duke," whose home is in Toronto, Canada, served during the greater part of the war as an instructor in the Royal Flying Corps. He was stationed at Camp Borden, Hayling Island, and Upavon. Haynes was a sergeant mechanic in the war, instructing in airmen at the Pensacola station, Florida.

Automobiles had rushed the papers up from almost square to the pier, and from there the twenty-four bundles had been shipped out to the plane by motor launch. The bundles were stowed away in the cabin and in the fore and aft cockpits of the aircraft with its motors droning steadily up to a roar, went off over the water. At a fast clip the craft sped over the surface from Eighty-second Street down to Quarantine, where Pilot Schiller covered the river at that point at [illegible] knots an hour, or [illegible] miles an hour, as we say, "as the crow flies," but for Atlantic City, but a heavy fog was over the bay and we had to stop for fuel. Only for that we would have made the trip in quicker time. I hope to cover the distance tomorrow morning in seventy-five minutes or less."

Makes Perfect Landing.

Shooting through the air the plane was off Asbury Park before the sun poked its way up through the haze on the horizon and melted the mist. Then Schiller accelerated his speed and settled down for the home stretch. Circling high over the Brigantine Islands, just north of the inlet here, he came down in a perfect landing. The plane touched the water gradually and with diminishing speed taxied over the placid waters of the inlet channel to the buoy moorings. Newspaper handlers in the seaflight boat had been manoeuvring near the buoy and when the plane came to a full stop the dory docked alongside. The bundles were shifted in fast time and the dory landed the bundles at a pier near the Atlantic City Yacht Club landing.

Five specially addressed copies were the first to be sent off to the waiting automobiles. They went to Mr. Bell, Mr. Holland, Mayor Bader, the editors of The Atlantic City Press Union and The Gazette, to Frederick S. Hickson, Vice Chairman of the A. A. C. W. Reception Committee; his colleague, Louis St. John, and Louis Wiley, business manager of THE TIMES.

The hotels to get the "airplane" Times were the Ritz, Chelsea, Royal Palace, Palms, Galen Hall, Breakers, St. Charles, Rosalie, Strand, Haddon Hall, Chalfonte, Schlitz, Shelburne, Traymore, Brighton, Marlborough-Blenheim, Dennis and Traymore. The last mentioned serving out 750 copies with a "good morning" label pasted to the first page and an explanation of the method of delivery.

The 2,250 papers of the special "Airplane Edition" of THE TIMES were run off the presses at 4 o'clock in the morning. Thirty minutes later they had been wrapped, addressed, delivered at the Aeromarine Airways dock and were being loaded into the passenger cabins of the Nina.

A special "Airplane Edition" of THE TIMES was printed during the Republican National Convention in Chicago in 1920. It reached there on the date of issue and not only did those attending the convention express delight at the achievement, but copies of the edition were among the most highly prized souvenirs of the convention. The airplane edition was run off on March 4 of the following year, when Warren G. Harding became President. Two airplanes carried the papers to Washington.

The greatest achievement of the kind took place last month when several copies of THE TIMES were carried across the continent by Lieutenants Kelly and Macready in their record-breaking non-stop flight from New York to San Diego, Cal. As a memorial, the two aviators signed one of the copies and it was placed in the San Diego Museum.

500 ROUT SPEAKER AT KLAN MEETING

CARRY FIGHT TO STREETS

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., June 4.—Disorder marked a Ku Klux Klan meeting tonight in the hall of the Junior Order of American Mechanics at 334 Smith Street.

Windows were broken and a free-for-all fight began when a crowd of negroes and whites forced their way into the hall. The Rev. Dr. Oscar Haywood, former New York minister and national lecturer of the Klan, alarmed at the turn the meeting was taking, left the platform where he was making a speech and took refuge in another room, where he was guarded by two patrolmen, the only policemen in the hall.

The meeting had been in progress only a short time when a crowd commenced to gather on near-by street corners. Among those near the hall were John V. Burke, principal of Public Schools 6 and 8 in Perth Amboy, Grand Knight of the local Knights of Columbus; Joseph Dalton, a special officer in the First National Bank and Vice Grand Knight of the local Knights of Columbus, and Isaac Aiberm, President of the Perth Amboy Trust Company.

"That is a public hall and a public meeting. Let it," shouted some one, and the crowd, more than 500 strong, moved toward the hall. An ineffectual attempt was made to bar them from the hall, but they all got in. Dr. Haywood was in the midst of a speech when the non-uniformed guests entered. He requested them to sit down and when they had done so began his speech. He frequently was interrupted by several persons in the hall. Finally two or three persons started toward the platform and the Rev. Dr. Haywood, alarmed for his own safety, took refuge in a little side room. The two policemen took up their stations outside the door, but made no move to eject any one from the meeting.

"Don't touch that man," shouted Mc-Alpern, meaning Dr. Haywood, as two or three men who had left their seats moved in the direction of the room where the minister had fled. No one attempted to do so, and after a brief interval, in which there were many angry words and two or three personal encounters, the two lone policemen managed to get the crowd out of the hall.

Once clear of the hall, personal encounters were renewed on the street, and there will be a number of black eyes and other evidences of fistic battles in evidence in Perth Amboy tomorrow. Stones commenced to smash through the windows of the hall, most of which were broken. No arrests were made. After this brief demonstration the crowd dispersed.

The Rev. Dr. Haywood emerged soon afterward from the inner room where he had taken refuge and admitted his identity to reporters. Dr. Haywood, who stated he solved "not to be talked from the platform, now did any of those present wear masks or robes. He expressed regret over the interruption to the meeting and said he thought it was the work of a few "hotheads."

KIRCHWEY WOULD ABOLISH DUNGEONS

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 4.—Abolition of underground cells and establishment of a "Grievance" Committee of convicts at the New Jersey State prison were recommended before the Prison Inquiry Committee today by George W. Kirchwey, Dean of Columbia University and former Warden of Sing Sing prison. He said underground cells, or dungeons, are unnecessary in the handling of criminals. The "Grievance" Committee would be the intermediary between the Warden of the prison and the convicts.

Professor Kirchwey declared underground cells should not have been used during the riot at the New Jersey prison last August. He expressed the opinion that the convicts who were responsible for that disturbance should have been placed in solitary confinement, but not in the dark and unventilated dungeons.

"Placing these men in underground quarters certainly was inhuman," he declared.

FIND UNKNOWN WOMAN BELOW NIAGARA FALLS

Body Is the Second to Be Discovered Near Maid of Mist Landing in Two Days.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 4.—Two bodies have been taken from the Niagara River on the Canadian side, at the Maid of the Mist landing, within the past thirty-six hours.

The first, recovered yesterday, was that of a man, in one of whose pockets was a watch fob bearing the initials "W. G. F."

Early this afternoon the body of a woman, which had been in the water only a short time, was found. The woman weighed about 150 pounds and was five feet six inches tall. The body was clothed in a cotton union suit and black silk hose. The hands were well cared for and showed evidence of refinement.

The body is believed to have passed over the Horseshoe Falls. No women have been reported missing here. There were no marks on the clothing that would lead to identification.

Price is talking to-day through a megaphone

PRIDE in one's product is admirable. And quality cannot be talked down. But, when every manufacturer stands in the market-place crying only the quality of his wares, the buyer's ear becomes confused.

In a babel of contending claims, hardly knowing which to believe, he takes the commodity nearest at hand. Perhaps you sell him—perhaps you do not.

Now let price help talk for your product! Like a megaphoned shout, its message of savings will cut through competition and carry to the farthest fringe of the crowd. Its welcome note, quality being equal, will compel attention far and near.

In every plant, every year, enormous sums are wasted through under-production. In some industries the loss amounts to one-fourth of annual payroll investment.

Stop this waste in your plant, and immediately you can let price begin talking and making sales for you—a timely advantage.

An interesting booklet, "Stopping Payroll Losses," will be sent industrial executives gratis, on request. Please address Dept. L2.

barrassed in approaching the subject because he was an advertising man himself. He declared that it was logical to assume that there must be many things which the Government should make known more fully to the public.

"In the old days, I suppose," he said, "it was rather accepted that the Government should not advertise as we understand advertising. About the only thing the Government would advertise, you might say, was better understanding. They must continue that.

"It is fundamental. But in addition to that, it is my very positive conviction that a government should and it is the duty of a government to see to it that its services, that its opportunities are better known by its own people which make up the Government."

He told in detail of the many departments upon which the Administration is spending millions of dollars, citing the Agricultural and Commerce Departments as examples, and said that only a small percentage of the population were aware of the facilities which the Government was ready to extend to those who asked for them.

Against Government Ownership.

"So I am convinced that the Government should not hide its light under a bushel," he continued, "but should, in a businesslike way, after developing these departments and spending the millions necessary to their proper expansion, see that information is disseminated in a manner in order to bring as far as possible a 100 per cent. result to the Government and to the people themselves.

"I am particularly convinced, always have been, more so in recent years however, that the Government—and I want to make this point very clear—should never enter business, so far as we recognize and interpret going into business today.

"Service, yes—opportunities for others to develop, yes—but never to actually engage in business which in the natural course of things must mean in competition with their own citizens. There is a very clear distinction between giving service and advertising it, demonstrating opportunities and advantages them, and actually attempting to administer business. It is not a fair competition. The business man necessarily—it is in a corporation or if it is an individual enterprise it is one and the same thing—must necessarily earn money and declare dividends to the stockholders or to the man.

Calls Federal Competition Unfair.

"The Government naturally if in business, it is presumed, has a right likewise to make a profit and should make a profit, but the competition is unfair. The Government has no difficulty in making up deficits by increased taxes, a very easy if an unpopular method. Private business can't, of course, resort to anything but one thing, an increase in prices of product and demodified. That in itself seems to me sufficient argument absolutely opposing any governmental administration of business.

"When we go back to the days of the war and realize and remember our experience running the railroads of the country, which it was necessary for us to do because of the call of war, we realize today we are still paying taxes to make up the deficit caused by that governmental operation. It seems to me that any thought of governmental administration of business should be wiped off the book of the slate of any forward thinking man or woman in this country.

"And let me tell you right at this minute for a while after the war it wasn't very popular, memory was too fresh, but now, right at this minute shipping is necessary to the recovery of the United States, members of the Lower House, men of the affairs and influence in various sections of our country, are determined that Government ownership shall be restored in this country and shall go away beyond any experiment that the Government has tried thus far.

Failure of Our Merchant Marine.

"The merchant marine, [illegible] full of the Yar[illegible] heir to the merchant marine after a three billion dollar investment in ships, docks and other material necessary. We were compelled to operate it for a while. Right at the present moment, as you perhaps are all aware, we are trying to dispose of it. So far as I am concerned, and I take off my hat to the representatives of the Great British Empire, I am convinced that without a subsidy representing the difference between the cost of operation here and in any other country of the world, we are absolutely unable, from a governmental standpoint at least, to operate a merchant marine successfully.

"The sooner we dispose of the ships, at whatever price we can get for them, the better off the taxpayer of this great country will be. It is not necessary at all that they go beyond our jurisdiction. I would oppose that. They should be sold to American citizens, continue to be operated so long as they will operate them and can operate them at a reasonable profit.

"I believe that advertising abroad for American industry helps things a bit. I see in your yesterday's session you touched on international questions, and I believe it is the duty of any man in public life today, or in business of any kind to touch upon them. The world is a great deal smaller than it used to be. I don't say that from a territorial standpoint, as you undoubtedly understand. I believe that perhaps a better understanding—and Lord knows we need better understanding—could be developed profitably in some cases we substituted advertising for Ambassadors.

Declares Harmony Is Vital.

"If there ever comes a time when misunderstanding between the English-speaking nations of the world should become serious, we couldn't prophesy the terrible disasters that must follow. Competition, yes—competition, firm, strict, on a solid and proper basis; compete in every honorable and proper business way. They have licked us on the merchant marine, but I believe we can lick them on many other things in real business development and enterprise. But, never a misunderstanding between the English-speaking nations of the world, a serious misunderstanding that will remove their great influence on all other nations of the world in trying to solve some of the problems of the day and bring the world back to a realization of mutual and co-operative effort."

The Senator in closing said that he had studied the program of the convention and was convinced that out of the many meetings and mingling of the delegates, American and British, would come a sound appreciation of each others viewpoint.

The promotion of health through advertising, in the opinion of Vice President Cox of the Metropolitan, is a sound business investment.

"So," he said, "we may easily reach the conclusion that good health is a matter of universal desire and that health promotion may be regarded as a subject of universal interest. Some who are now making money from disease, or this, but the multitude listen gladly to health propaganda. They welcome health messages, and are even eager to get them. In the half century since tuberculosis was isolated the death rate has fallen more than 50 per cent., due to early treatment of affected persons, anti-spitting campaigns, open air schools and a general advertising campaign of education in clean living with plenty of air, sunshine and wholesome food."

Mr. Cox then listed the various lines of propaganda which his company was utilizing. Comparing 1911, when the campaign had not started, with last year, when it was at its peak, he reported that in the municipal campaign had resulted in the death of 50,000 fewer policy holders. Measured in money, he said, this meant that in 1922 the sum of $11,250,000 less in death claims was paid out.

Mr. Crawford, whose Scotch birth advertises itself in his accent, said that up to yesterday he had written a fine speech on advertising from the international angle, but that after listening to his American colleagues he had torn it up.

"I have learned," he remarked, "that it isn't phrases nor oratory that is demanded of advertising men—it is just truth, vision and philosophy. I wonder how many times we shall realize that today we need a Lincoln in advertising," he said.

"We are too much engrossed with our own discussions, our own affairs, our own petty problems. Everything is common talk in the daily home, and they are the basis and matter and they are the people in England and America who affect this international situation. We need to get down to simple things. That is the message I want to give about the international relationship.

"Our delegation has not come with words, but with the deed in action. Great Britain since the war is actually [illegible] behind you, the nation of America. Then let us get together—not in chambers, but with your people, the common people in their homes. We must feel together if we are to take advantage of the great opportunities for friendship and trade.

London Wants Convention.

"What a great opportunity you have, in international trade and friendship, to come down from where you stand on the top of the hill and help us. If you will come to us in 1924 for your convention, we will come to your next meeting 1,000 strong.

"If you take this big, sweeping gesture of friendship, you will do things and express wonderful thoughts and, too, you will get the benefit. Europe needs you in friendship and business and its hands are open and need your help. Europe has enjoyed your wonderful benevolence, your great gifts. But give us the gift of friendship and not the gift of money."

The British delegate received an ovation as he sat down, and, walking to the edge of the platform in a manner reminiscent of Sir Harry Lauder, he leaned forward and said, "Scotland will be glad, too."

Industry, declared Mr. Feiker, "is full of examples of waste. Engineers under the leadership of Secretary Hoover undertook a survey of six leading industries to determine the amount of preventable waste. They were the metals trade, boots and shoes, textiles, building, printing and men's clothing. On the average, 10 per cent. of all the capital, thought, effort and time put into these industries was wasted. Applying that the engineers are only half correct in their estimate, the annual losses in these six industries alone are put conservatively at $10,000,000,000."

Mr. Feiker said that advertising rightly directed can reduce the cost of living without decreasing the standard, in turning that advertising could be employed to eliminate waste in industry the speaker took the boot and shoe trade as an illustration, declaring that elimination of excess sizes and varieties would save much.

"But," he added, "the key to these vast savings is in the hands of the buyer, and the buyer, for better or worse, is in the hands of the advertising man."

Transformation In Britain.

Advertising has completely transformed business methods of Great Britain, said Horace S. Imbert, advertising director of the Associated Newspapers, Ltd., which puts out 14,000,000 newspapers each week through The London Daily Mail, Evening News and Weekly Dispatch. He said that Great Britain was now in the "era of the advertiser."

"It is the power of publicity that has brought about this enormous change," he said. "Advertising, once resorted even by men of enterprise as a necessary evil, and by others as an undignified waste of money, is now unanimously acknowledged as the keystone of business."

The commanding position of the automobile in the oil field was emphasized by George H. Graham, Vice President of the Cudahy Packing Company, of Cleveland. He said that advertising was largely responsible for the growth of automobile sales from 14,000 to 13,000,000 since the beginning of this century, and that $60,000,000 was spent last year in advertising.

"There are two classes of automobile advertisers," said Mr. Graham, "those who pay for advertising and Henry Ford, who don't blame him for spending all the money that he would have to pay for advertising."

Agriculture and advertising were linked in the speech of Carl Williams, President of the American Cotton Growers' Exchange. He said that the growth of State co-operative marketing associations with a membership of 50,000 and an annual turnover of $150,000,000.

Advertising, he said, is largely responsible for the universal standard of living in America. "Advertising has not only made us a nation of consumers, but it also largely responsible for the present classified mental attitude of the American farmer that the farming industry is established that advertising had made the farmer profitable. Through advertisements and built up a series of wants. And when the old farm's resources finally failed to yield enough to gratify the family wants discontent came in."

It is only of late years that public utility corporations have awakened to the value of getting their knowledge before the public, said Floyd W. Parsons, chairman of the committee on public relations of the Saturday Evening Post, who said that the public utilities had a money representation of total investment of nearly $17,000,000,000, or four times as much as the total bank deposits in the country. Their annual revenue is nearly $3,000,000,000 and they employ 1,000,000 persons. Their annual payroll is $1,500,000,000.

In a message to the convention, Lou R. Holland, President of the Associated Clubs, said:

"The convention at a session of the Associated Retail Advertisers there will be presented for adoption twenty-four definite specific pledges committing every retail store which adopts these standards to definite policies which will [illegible] Pledges [illegible] Pledges [illegible] Pledges

With approximately 7,000 delegates from all parts of the United States, as well as from Canada and Alaska, registering during the day, the National Electric Light Association yesterday opened a five-day convention at the Hotel Commodore. Officials believed that by noon today 10,000 men identified with the industry would be present. Elaborate plans had been made for handling the crowd of delegates, many of whom brought their families. The facility with which the registrants were handled evoked praise.

Two special trains from the Pacific Coast and four sections of the Twentieth Century Limited arrived yesterday morning with the Western contingent. Other special convention trains are due this morning from the South and from New England. Mayor Hylan will formally welcome the visitors this morning at the first executive session in the Commodore.

Five general topics of discussion will feature the convention, namely, banking, education, State supervision, rural extension and public relations through the newspapers. Leaders in these activities will address the delegates on their relation to the electric light industry. The sessions of the convention are in four sections—accounting, commercial, technical and public relations—all of which met yesterday afternoon.

Brady Is Banqueted.

Before the opening session many of the delegates attended a luncheon at the Biltmore in honor of Nicholas F. Brady, President of the New York Edison Company. Thomas A. Edison, termed by speakers "the father of the electrical industry," received a prolonged ovation when he appeared at the luncheon. The inventor showed traces of emotion at the reception accorded him.

On behalf of the National Electric Light Association, Mr. Cortelyou presented Mr. Brady with a bronze Indian sundial. The speaker alluded to Mr. Brady as a man whose business achievements were worthy of emulation. Among those at the luncheon were Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation; O. D. Young, Chairman of the General Electric Company; Henry L. Doherty, President of Henry L. Doherty and Company; Guy E. Tripp, Chairman of the Board of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and W. S. Sloan, President of the Brooklyn Edison Company.

Accompanied by Frank W. Smith, President of the association, Mr. Edison visited the sections of the convention, but because of the heat he did not speak. He later inspected the electric truck exhibition at the Irving Place show room of the Edison Company of New York.

More continuous and systematic use of newspaper advertising space by the electric light and power companies of the country was urged in reports presented at the public relations section meeting. Although more than $3,000,000 was spent in this way in the last twelve months, the reports indicated that the amount was small in comparison with the advertising appropriation of other industries. It was pointed out in the discussion that with an investment of $5,100,000,000, and with an annual gross earning of $1,050,000,000, the industry's advertising expenditure represented only one-third of 1 per cent. of the total business done and only one-seventh of 1 per cent. of the total investment in the industry. P. L. Thomson of the Western Electric Company, Chairman of the Manufacturer's Advertising Committee, was among those who dwelt on the relation of advertising to the industry.

Industry Has Boom for Many.

John C. Parker of the Brooklyn Edison Company, Chairman of a committee co-operating with educational institutions, reported that many colleges and universities were seeking ways to include public utility courses in their curricula. Institutions, he said, were recognizing the fact that an increasingly large number of men and women would be needed in the forty-six electrical industries, which have doubled in size on an average of once in five years during the last forty-one years.

Statistics presented to the commercial section in proof of the passing of the horse as a factor in vehicular transportation showed that in 1917 there were 56,000 horses in Manhattan while in 1921 there were only 25,000. Speakers stressed the advantages of the electric truck, which, they maintained, could be operated more economically and with greater power than either the horse or gasoline propelled truck.

Experiments carried on by the electrical apparatus committee have determined the feasibility of "wired" or "directed" wireless, R. H. Tapscott, Chairman, told the technic section. As a result, radio messages and programs can be sent over high voltage transmission lines to distant stations without interfering with the current, and at small cost.

"It has been found technically possible to transmit speech over power lines without distortion," this report said, adding: "With few exceptions the wave length used is very long and the radiation from the line is negligible. For this reason it is not necessary to secure a license from the Government. It is assumed that carrier operation is not within the meaning of the radio law."

The Convention Daily, a six-page paper, is a feature of the gathering. To provide for telephone service for the 10,000 visitors, the New York Telephone Company has installed at the hotel a special telephone switchboard capable, it was said, of handling the usual telephone traffic of a city of 15,000. In addition to special outgoing service, the switchboard handles telephone messages to the various rooms and halls used by the delegates. Seven operators are assigned to the work.

AUTO RUNS INTO RIVER, THREE MEN DROWNED

One Occupant Escapes When Car Plunges Down 60-Foot Embankment in Vermont.

SPRINGFIELD, Vt., June 4.—Three men were drowned in the Connecticut River near here late last night after their automobile had gone through a fence and down sixty-foot embankment into the water. They were George Roark, H. G. Hanson and his son, Ivan Hanson, 14 years old, all of East Barre.

A fourth occupant of the car, E. L. Blanchard, was thrown out on the river bank and escaped injury.

The bodies of Roark and the Hanson boy were recovered early today six feet from shore at a point where the water is twelve feet deep. Search was continued for the body of the elder Hanson, who was the owner and driver of the car.

Persons who saw the automobile said it was going at high speed around a curve when it left the road and went through the fence. A heavy fog hung over the valley during the night and it is believed Hanson failed to realize that he did not have a straight road ahead.

No Rolls-Royce has ever worn out

NO motorist so quickly appreciates Rolls-Royce qualities as the man who selects it for his personal car—and himself drives it. . . . From such an owner—already the possessor of several cars—the following letter was received: ". . . I consider the Rolls-Royce the best riding, the best handling and sweetest running car I ever owned. Though I have not had a chauffeur for this particular car, its up-keep has been a simple matter. It is economical both as to gasoline consumption and wear on tires, extremely flexible and so easy to steer that even the longest trip requires no apparent effort. . . ." But whether or not he drives his car, the owner of a Rolls-Royce benefits from all of its advantages. In the fact that these advantages are permanent, during even twenty years of constant use, is demonstrated the perfection of the Rolls-Royce.

Do Not Difficulties Greatly Hinder Success?

Never, never!

Surmounting difficulties gives new strength, new ideas, more energy and creates heroes who would otherwise have been mere ciphers on life's battlefields.

Lots of men and women, well born, finely educated, are settled in the commonplaces of careers because they lacked courage to overcome what seemed to them difficulties.

WOMEN DEFEND SMITH 'DRY' VETO

HOPE FOR A "CLEAN SWEEP"

Elisabeth Marbury Declares Question of Prohibition Should Be Decided Once and for All.

Called upon by speakers to carry on for a Democratic "clean sweep" in 1923 and 1924, the Democratic Union of Women pledged Governor Smith at a luncheon yesterday in the Central Park Casino its assistance in electing a Democratic Assembly.

After being assured that much of the Governor's program had been rejected because of the Republican majority, the women decided unanimously to send a message to the Governor pledging their aid in defeating the five Republican Assemblymen from New York and electing Democrats in their stead.

Miss Elisabeth Marbury, speaking of the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law, declared there was any conflict between the Federal Government and State's rights in that action.

"Being a good Jeffersonian Democrat," said Miss Marbury, "I hold out for State's rights to be respected just as much as national rights, and to be regarded with as much respect as we give to anything that emanates from Washington. There should be no question of State's rights as against Federal rights.'

"I think that one of the evils of the Eighteenth Amendment has been that it left behind it such a trail of argument and discussion and monopoly of time," Miss Marbury continued. "Our great Governor has had his work practically held up for weeks while this one absorbing topic was forced upon him for decision. But what we are going through in this State is no different from the situation throughout the country. I for one regret that such is the case.

"This question should be determined once and for all and put out of the way, so that the time and energy, the will power and ideals of this country can be focused on something more constructive than the Eighteenth Amendment."

The fundamental questions to be considered in the 1924 campaign, said Miss Marbury, were tariff, taxation, immigration and those relating to the farmer.

Mrs. Henry Moskowitz declared that Governor Smith had held fast to the fundamental ideals of the Democratic Party. Other speakers were Mrs. Lillian D. Wald and Mrs. V. G. Simkhovitch.

At the election preceding the luncheon Mrs. John Blair was chosen Chairman, Vice Chairmen are Mrs. James W. Gerard, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, Mrs. Montgomery Hare, Mrs. David F. Houston and Mrs. Henry Moskowitz; Treasurer, Mrs. Abram I. Elkus; Secretary, Mrs. Anne O'Hagan Shinn; Directors, Miss Amey Aldrich, Mrs. Norman H. Davis, Mrs. Pierre Jay, Miss A. J. G. Perkins, Mrs. V. G. Simkhovitch, Miss Ethel Stebbins and Mrs. Vanderbilt Webb.

HOW GOVERNORS VIEW LIQUOR LAW REPEAL

Maine Executive Says It Will Spur the Drys to Greater Efforts.

Additional comments by Governors of States on the repeal of the New York State liquor law enforcement act have been received by THE NEW YORK TIMES and are given herewith:

MAINE.

AUGUSTA, Me., June 4.—I consider the Governor of a State under obligation to support both Federal and State Constitutions. There should be no evasion. Recent developments in New York State will but spur the friends of prohibition to greater efforts, and I regard it as a mere incident in the fight for prohibition. Indeed, it may have a wholesome effect to clear the atmosphere and make the issue clear cut.

"The State of Maine will enforce its own and the Federal laws without discrimination."

PERCIVAL P. BAXTER, Governor.

CONNECTICUT.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 4.—This is a New York law and one which concerns New York State alone. Comment by me would not be appropriate.

CHARLES A. TEMPLE, Governor.

DELAWARE.

DOVER, Del., June 4.—I do not know what practical effect the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law can have except to encourage that spirit of disregard of law which is already too prevalent throughout the land. I believe the Eighteenth Amendment should be honestly fortified by effective Federal and State legislation, and that the Constitution and laws ought to be conscientiously observed by all citizens everywhere.

WILLIAM D. DENNEY, Governor.

OHIO.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 4.—All I can say is that if a bill repealing Ohio prohibition enforcement laws were submitted to me I would veto it.

VIC DONAHEY, Governor.

CAPT. EVANS RELEASED FROM ELLIS ISLAND

Detention of British Shipping Man Elicits Sharp Comment From Press Abroad.

Captain David Evans, marine representative for the Elder-Dempster Steamship Company in New York, who was detained on Sunday by the immigration officials when he arrived on the White Star liner Adriatic and was sent to Ellis Island because of the contract labor laws, was released yesterday by Robert E. Tod, Commissioner of Immigration, after a hearing before a board of special inquiry.

The Captain had a visa on his passport from the United States Consul at Liverpool for six months only. The inspectors held that the document should have been stamped with an indefinite visa. Captain Large, a representative of the Elder-Dempster Line, explained that the American Consul had said he could not give the indefinite visa to Captain Evans because the British quota up to July 1 had been exhausted.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 4.—The sending of Captain David Evans to Ellis Island caused considerable surprise in shipping circles here.

"Ellis Island," says The Daily News commenting on the incident, "is becoming the byword in Europe. It is fast becoming also the focus for all anti-American feeling that exists in the various European countries, and it is causing grave mischief to American prestige.

"It is quite true that it is very difficult to devise, and still more difficult to work out satisfactorily, any measure for the limitation of immigration, but it is impossible to believe that this continual procession of cases is necessary, in which perfectly respectable persons, guiltless of all offense except by accident of being in excess of an arbitrarily fixed quota, are treated with what looks in their country of origin as a high-handed and deliberate insult. These people are not criminals.

"If means really cannot be devised to regulate properly the flow of immigration, at least unfortunate victims of the embargo can be treated with reasonable courtesy and consideration. America owes that much, if not to the excluded foreigner at least to her own repute."

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Deportation proceedings against James Dale, an English actor now in New York, were ordered canceled today by the Labor Department. Investigation of charges made against Dale by an English woman, authorities at Ellis Island reported, showed no evidence to justify the proceedings and a warrant issued for him was withdrawn. The woman who made the charges, it was said, would not be permitted to enter the United States.

FLIES 125 MILES ON 2 GALLONS OF 'GAS'

Barbot, in His 'Air Flivver,' Makes Flight to West Point and Back Without Stop.

Georges Barbot, prevented from making the trip on the day before by a rainstorm, flew his "air flivver" yesterday afternoon from Roosevelt Field at Garden City, L. I., to the Military Academy at West Point, circled the parade grounds several times and returned all on two gallons of gasoline. The distance is about 125 miles.

The French flyer had intended landing at the academy, but on his return said he found the cadets lined up on the parade grounds, presumably to receive him, and came to the conclusion that there was not room for him to make a safe descent.

Barbot left Roosevelt Field at 1:20 in the afternoon, taking off just behind Brooke L. Pierson, a United States Airmail pilot, who accompanied the "flivver" in a Curtiss Oriole. On the first leg of the flight the two aviators followed the Hudson River all the way to West Point.

During most of the trip Barbot maintained an average altitude of about 3,500 feet. At West Point he descended to about 2,000 feet in his efforts to find enough space in which to land. Pierson, in the Oriole, circled the field at a much lower altitude, but also refrained from landing.

On the return flight to Roosevelt Field the flyers followed virtually a straight line between West Point and Garden City, taking them over Long Island Sound. They landed at 3:40, a flight of two hours and twenty minutes.

At the start Barbot filled his plane with about five gallons of gasoline. On his return the remaining fuel was measured, and it was found that just two gallons had been consumed. A correspondingly small amount of oil had also been used. Flying officers at Roosevelt Field said that an ordinary plane in the same flight would consume between twenty-five and thirty gallons of gasoline.

STRIKE THREATENED ON FRENCH SHIPS

LIVERPOOL, June 4.—While it is still hoped that some satisfactory solution can be found for the American ban on liquor on vessels entering American ports, it is understood that the North Atlantic steamship owners have decided that outgoing liners will carry only sufficient liquor to last on the outward voyage, thus complying with the new law.

Daily Mail Suggests Reprisals.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 5.—The Daily Mail in an editorial discussing the effect of American prohibition on British vessels says:

"The Supreme Court decision authorizes interference with the domestic conduct of foreign ships. This is clean against all traditional usage by which ships have long been regarded as 'floating portions of the country on which they depend.'

"In this country it is strongly held that what happens in a British ship is a private matter and that all the local officers are concerned with is to see that liquor is not smuggled ashore.

"In this matter also recent United States legislation unfortunately is in direct conflict with British law. Our Board of Trade requires every British ship to carry a gallon of brandy for every hundred passengers and crew. This regulation will involve an illegal act in American waters, although it is a healthy measure which no British ship owners can evade and it has been justified by experience over a long course of years.

"If European countries were disposed to be as unyielding as the United States in liquor matters, they might feel justified on humanitarian grounds in interdicting from their ports American vessels which put the fetish of prohibition before passengers' health and, it might well be, before the safety of their lives."

The Morning Post says:

"We can assure Mr. Mellon that while the people of this country have no desire whatever to evade American law or to assist in any way in its evasion by American subjects, they do entertain a not unreasonable anticipation that America will extend courteous consideration to their legitimate requirements.

"We might add that prohibition in this country may profitably reflect upon the many difficulties accompanying enforcement of the law which does not receive, in Mr. Asquith's famous phrase, the measure of general consent."

Washington Expects No Protests.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Although so far without official copies of the new ship liquor regulations issued by the Treasury, most of the embassies and legations in Washington whose merchant vessels would be affected have cabled their home Governments brief synopses of the order. The full text will be forwarded in due course also, but the time intervening before the regulations take effect on Sunday is so short that it is believed the foreign chancelleries may decide upon a course of action, at least for the present, on the basis of cabled summaries.

In diplomatic quarters the opinion is expressed that the initiative in reaching a decision as to policy will be taken by the managers of the great steamship companies, although it is expected they will advise with the officials of their own Governments before doing so. While there is some talk of the adoption of retaliatory measures, such discussion is not as pronounced as it was a few days ago.

The impression is gaining ground here that for the most part foreign steamship companies will make an honest effort to comply with the American law. They are expected at least to give it a fair test, and if it works too great hardship on the companies it is considered likely they will look to their own Governments to institute formal negotiations with Washington in the hope that ameliatory legislation will be enacted by the American Congress.

This is almost certain to be the attitude of the British shipping interests, it is understood here. They are not in the dilemma of the French, Spanish and Italian shipmasters who find themselves obliged to elect which law they shall break—their own, which requires wine rations for crews, or the American law which prohibits them.

It has been suggested that the European legal system is sufficiently elastic to admit of special dispensation by Governmental decree to relieve shipmasters from the obligations of their municipal law in American waters, although there is no such authority on the part of the American executive to relax the operations of the Volstead law.

It appears to be the opinion among diplomatic representatives here that they have done all possible for the moment through official representations to the State Department appealing for liberal regulations, and that no formal protest will be lodged unless a new aspect of the situation develops. At any rate, it is said that protests would be submitted only upon instructions from the Home Governments.

HISTORIES REVISED, ETTINGER ASSERTS

Hirshfield's Report Belated and Unnecessary, Superintendent of Schools Says,

BOARD MADE OWN INQUIRY

Commissioner of Accounts an "Amoosin' Cuss," Remarks Chairman of Sulgrave Institution.

David Hirshfield's attack on the "international master minds," which he represents as doctoring the New York school histories with pro-British propaganda, was criticised in scholastic and Anglo-American circles yesterday. William D. Ettinger, Superintendent of Schools, declared that the very idea of the Commissioner of Accounts investigating such a subject as the teaching of history in the public schools was highly amusing. John A. Stewart, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Sulgrave Institution, said that if Artemus Ward were still alive he would describe Hirshfield as a most "amoosin' cuss," and that the Commissioner of Accounts' learning in the fields of art, science, literature, economics, metaphysics, religion, and so on, was truly astounding.

According to Mr. Ettinger, Commissioner Hirshfield was all wrong when he accused the Superintendent of failing to bar from the public schools seven histories condemned as anti-American a year ago by a committee of the Board of Education.

"Like many of the things he states," Mr. Ettinger said, "Hirshfield hasn't got the facts when he says that we are still using these textbooks a year after they were condemned. His own report is belated and unnecessary. We made our own investigation and our own report, which was approved by the Board of Superintendents some months ago. This condemned seven of the eight histories now condemned by Hirshfield.

"We at once notified the publishers of these books to make the necessary corrections in the text, or the books would be banned from further use in the schools. The publishers nearly all agreed immediately to make the revisions asked for, and some of them have already been made.

About Mussey's History.

Mr. Ettinger was asked about "An American History," by David Saville Mussey, Ph.D., of Barnard College, Columbia University, revised in 1920, which was the eighth textbook on the Hirshfield index, but which was not mentioned in the School Committee's report. Hirshfield intimates that there was some reason for avoiding Mussey's history in the New York schools, despite its rejection by schools in other cities.

"At the time of our investigation," said Mr. Ettinger, "there had been no complaint against Mussey. Now that his work has been criticised, we have begun an investigation of it, which was started before the Hirshfield report was published. The committee investigating Mussey reported to a meeting of the Board of Superintendents last Thursday. The Board of Superintendents will hold another meeting next Thursday, at which a representative of Ginn & Co., the publishers, has been invited to appear to show cause why the book should not be changed or barred from the schools. Professor Mussey is at liberty to appear, if he wishes."

Chairman Stewart of the Sulgrave Institution, issued a statement in which he intimated his belief that the Commissioner of Accounts and his like were chiefly interested in stirring up ill will. Mr. Stewart said:

"Whatever else David Hirshfield may have accomplished in his report upon American history as it has been written and taught in the public schools, and his animadversions on the propagandist sinfulness of the Sulgrave Institution and other organizations which are aiding in the furtherance of good will among English-speaking peoples and as between them and other peoples of good-will, he at least has advanced a moot question and a subject of controversy to a point where it becomes a vital issue between Americans of native ancestry and political groups whose ancestral relations with America began, in most part, subsequent to the Civil War."

Mr. Stewart quoted the late Cardinal Gibbons as "an active, helpful member of the movement to further friendship among English-speaking peoples," and as an opponent of teaching anything in history but the truth.

Commissioner Hirshfield leaned back in his chair yesterday, smiling, and received congratulations on his 40,000-word report. He said that as soon as his office opened he began to receive requests for copies of the report. Together with applications made in advance, 2,800 copies had been spoken for, he said, so that he had asked the Board of Estimate for leave to have 10,000 copies printed.

HYLAN BREAKS RULE FOR ART INSTITUTE

Votes to Spend $1,050,000 for Two Wings to the Building in Brooklyn.

ACTS AFTER INSPECTION

Committee Also for Adding Third Story to Aquarium—Projects Up to Estimate Board.

After visiting the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences on Sunday and seeing the need for extension, Mayor Hylan voted at yesterday's meeting of the Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate to recommend the appropriation of $1,050,000 for the construction of two wings to the building. The amount was $100,000 more than the institute had asked for.

The committee also recommended, subject to the approval of Aldermanic President Murray Hulbert, who was not present, an appropriation of $85,000 for the construction of a third story on the city Aquarium, the amount to include finishing the front of the structure and fireproofing the building.

Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn, President of the New York Zoological Society, which conducts the Aquarium, said that $122,000 had been spent in putting the other part of the building in shape. He pointed out that in the twenty-nine years the Aquarium has been conducted by the Zoological Society more than 54,000,000, or half the population of the United States, had visited it.

A suggestion to move the Aquarium was not considered seriously by the board. Mr. Osborn maintaining that the present location is ideal.

"Any one who attempts to move the Aquarium should be fed to the fishes there," said Borough President Riegelmann of Brooklyn. "At best, he's a poor fish, anyway, and would be ostracised by the aristocrats that show off in the glass tanks in the old Castle Garden building."

The work of completing the two wings, to be known as the F and G wings, of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences has been held up since the beginning of the World War. When Mayor Hylan voted in favor of the appropriation he departed from a stand he had taken some time ago to the effect that he would not vote for museum or library appropriations while improvements deemed more vital were being held up. He said that during his visit on Sunday he realized for the first time the need of completing the structure.

The original request for the work was $973,372. The difference between this amount and the amount appropriated, it was explained, represented increased in the cost of labor and materials.

MRS. CROKER ADMITS SHE GOT $1,000,000

said that that was the reason his son tried to "grab" it.

Sergeant Sullivan then asked: "May I suggest that the remnants of robbery that got into your possession were worth well over $1,000,000?"

Mrs. Croker replied: "Yes."

Proceeding, she said she was earning her own living when she met Mr. Croker.

"At the end of five years," asked Mr. Sullivan, "were you not a millionaire?"

She replied, "I have not counted it up. I am going to wait till this case is over."

This reply evoked laughter in the court.

Mr. Sullivan then put a series of searching questions to her. "Is it, as in your case," he asked, "the ordinary result of matrimony in the United States that at the end of five years a millionaire husband becomes dependent on his wife's charity?"

She replied, "Well, he gave his first wife much more than he ever gave to me or that I ever hope to get."

The tradition of Tammany was the subject of the subsequent cross-examination and the widow said she knew it at the time Richard Croker was chief of the wigwam—"beautiful chief," she remarked. She praised Tammany, which was intended, she said, to give men from different nations, including Ireland, a chance of locating themselves in America and making an honest living. It afterwards became political. There never was a finer organization, she declared. You may sneer, she said, at Tammany Hall, but if you were in New York you would not sneer.

She next defended the Indian people, whom her husband loved and admired, she asserted, as they came from the soil and worked for a living. She was called a "Princess," she said, and her husband thought it beautiful and called her a "Princess" while at Palm Beach. Long ago, she declared, there were Indian queens and it was the Indian custom for royalty to descend through the women.

Replying to Mr. Sullivan's question if she fell in love with her husband at first sight, she remarked: "That is a matter for myself."

Mr. Sullivan asked how many weeks they were engaged, and she said she did not wish to drag their marriage into court any further. About December, 1916, she began to assist her husband in business, she said, when he asked her to go into his son's office, and she gave receipts at her husband's request "because he had suspicions of his son."

Cross-examined as to charges by the testator against his son Richard, she said they still stood in New York in action No. 1. She proceeded to explain that her husband had said that if it could be shown that Richard was honest in these matters, he was willing to go before an accountant, and if he proved honest he would be the first to come forward to apologize.

"I," said the witness, "as the representative of Mr. Croker, stand right to that. If in action No. 1 he goes through his accounts for ten years I will carry out Mr. Croker's wishes to the letter. There is where all the trouble is—action No. 1."

Mr. Sullivan said: "I suggest you had a check book and you told him there was something wrong."

To this Mrs. Croker retorted: "You can suggest what you like."

Replying to the question as to whether her husband told her of Richard's dishonesty, she stated that he said that Richard was holding something over them, that he was trying to pretend he was giving his brother and sisters money himself, whereas he never made a penny in his life and had only what his father gave him.

Pressed on other points Mrs. Croker said she was not aware of a $600,000 trust and would not be till the accounts had been gone into. She had never heard, she said, that part of the basis of the charge of fraud and robbery against the children was the belief that enormous sums were put into a settlement. She had never heard, she declared, that Richard Croker, Jr. robbed any one, and never accused him of robbing his father. She did not know, she said, that the father accused his son of robbing his sister Ethel.

Sergeant Sullivan said:

"I suggest Richard could not get your husband or any one else to go into these charges of fraud, and I also suggest that owing to the refusal nothing was left for Richard but to bring this action."

Mrs. Croker in turn suggested that if counsel read the letters of Judge Leven Dyer and Richard he would not make that suggestion.

Coming to Glencairn property, she said her husband told her that in 1917 or 1918 at Palm Beach he wished to transfer the Glencairn to her because she liked the outdoor life and horses. He said nothing then, she said, about keeping it up during her life and afterward leaving it to the Sisters of Charity. He wanted Glencairn to be the Croker memorial, she declared, and to go to the Sisters of Charity.

He knew, she added, "I would do the right thing, and I hope I will."

DUBLIN, June 4 (Associated Press).—Mrs. Croker admitted receiving about $1,000,000 from her husband, but said he gave her less money than he did his first wife. He told her that at one time he was worth $15,000,000, but that he had been "robbed" by his family and desired that the remainder should go to her.

WHAT MAKES FOR CONTINUED PROSPERITY

WE HEAR much about the "business cycle," and have seen much of it in the last three years. We ought to learn by experience, but do we?

All the modern countries have alternating periods of prosperity and depression, more or less pronounced. The fundamental reason for these fluctuations is that we have developed a highly specialized society. Instead of each doing everything for himself, as in primitive times, we have all become specialists, each doing some one thing, and making exchanges with each other. It is a highly effective system when it is all in balance and running smoothly, but like any other complicated machine it is more likely to get out of order than a simple machine.

When this Bank was established in 1812, ninety per cent of the population of this country got at least part of their living by tilling the soil. We cannot go back to that simple state of society or the simple habits of that time. The present population of this country could not be supported in the state of comfort to which it is accustomed without specialized industry and the present machine equipment. But it means a great interdependent organization.

Moreover, it is a great voluntary organization. Everybody is expected to find his own place in it. There is no overhead authority to tell anyone what work he shall do, or what he shall receive for it, or what he shall do with his pay when he gets it. He may save it, or he may spend it and run into debt besides, if he can get anybody to trust him. In short, we live under a regime of liberty. The system operates by general cooperation. There is some confusion, some jostling, some friction, and more or less working at cross purposes. No wonder. But, on the whole, it works remarkably well.

A period of prosperity has in it the elements of its own undoing. It is a familiar observation that "some people cannot stand prosperity." A great many people cannot, unless they have had experience also with adversity, and every period of prosperity finds a lot of people who have not been seasoned in both experiences.

Prosperity tends to make people easy-going in management, loose in expenditures, careless about saving. They do not see why things will not always run along in the same smooth way. The instinct of caution is weakened,—the impulse to expansion, to spread out and cut a wider swath, to spend more money and live up close to the income, develops.

In business a period of prosperity encourages men to overreach themselves. They go deeply into debt because prices are rising, and the buying on credit causes prices to rise still farther. The longer the boom continues the more venturesome people become and the narrower the margins become, until the whole price structure becomes topheavy and comes down with a crash.

Such periods of rising and falling prices disturb the regular order of business. All prices and wages do not rise and fall together, the regular flow of trade is interrupted, the equilibrium upon which prosperity depends is disturbed.

Much is said about the desirability of stabilizing business. It would be a fine thing to stabilize business, but you will have to stabilize the buying and borrowing of about 100,000,000 people, for it is what the great body of the people do in the management of their own affairs that makes the state of business.

If we are ever to stabilize business, everybody must help to do it. We say of the banking situation that its strength is in its reserves, and that is true of the business situation generally. In boom times people try to do too much business for their capital; they get too heavily in debt for their resources; if anything goes wrong they have no strength in reserve; and this situation becomes so general that when one business house goes down, another does, and another, like a row of bricks. If one industry is affected and discharges employes, consumption is curtailed and causes more unemployment. And so the circle of distress is widened, largely for lack of reserve resources.

Every business house, community, every family, able at such a time to stand up in its own strength, meet its obligations, and go on as usual, instead of toppling over on someone else, helps to stem the demoralization. They are the houses and the people who give stability to the industrial situation. And so the way to stabilize industry and do away with crises and depressions is for everybody to make himself independent by having something in reserve. The business situation is what the buying ability of the millions makes it.

Don't spend quite so much when you are making it; put away something against the need for it. Even in very early and simple times the maxim was current that it was well to lay something by for the "rainy day." If everybody would provide against hard times there would be no hard times. "If everyone would sweep in front of his own door, the whole world would be clean."

Every bank account that represents Resources in Reserve is a protection not only to the owner and dependent ones in the time of emergency, but a contribution to protection for the community against the spread of depression.

These are prosperous times! There is work for everybody and good pay. Now is the time to establish reserves!

[1] For the individual who wishes to put aside a moderate amount with regularity, the Compound Interest Department in the Branch at 42nd Street and Madison Avenue, offers Interest Compounded Monthly.

[2] For the individual who would set aside larger amounts for the protection of his dependents, the Trust Department, located at Head Office and branches, is equipped to render that service.

[3] For all those who in large or small amount would establish their reserve resources in the form of bonds and other investment securities, the expert services of The National City Company are to be commanded.

[4] For manufacturing and commercial firms and corporations the carriage of deposits establishes a basis for credit as from time to time required, and constitutes a reserve against times of need. An active account in The National City Bank is a hallmark of standing and represents reserve power.

COURT FIGHT STARTS ON NEW $1 GAS LAW

CALL RATE CONFISCATORY

Complaint Indicates Standard Unit Change Will Not Be Made Without Judicial Order.

The Consolidated Gas Company took the initiative in fighting the new dollar gass law by filing in the Federal Court yesterday morning a seventy-four-page complaint in a suit to enjoin the members of the Public Service Commission and the Attorney General from attempting to enforce the provisions of the law both as to the price of one dollar per thousand cubic feet and the raising of the standard to 650 British thermal units.

The complaint states that the reduction of 15 cents in the price of gas would be equivalent to confiscation. At the hearing before the Governor, William L. Ransom, counsel for the company, centred his argument on the proposed new standard by stating that to increase it to 650 B. t. u. without first adjusting the appliances might result in the loss of life.

It was explained that an application for a preliminary injunction would be made to the Court in a day or two, and that in the meantime the complaint will serve as a stay. It was stated that similar complaints will be filed by subsidiaries of the Consolidated company.

Later in the day similar action was begun in the Federal Court in Brooklyn by the New York & Richmond Gas Company, the Brooklyn Union Gas Company, the Flatbush Gas Company and the Woodhaven, Jamaica, Richmond Hill and Newtown Gas Light companies. All of the complaints are alike.

Will Not Change Standard

In its complaint the Consolidated company alleges that the law fixing the maximum price of gas at one dollar is illegal and void because it is in contravention of section 10, article I of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States; that the present rate of $1.15 per thousand cubic feet, as ordered by the Public Service Commission, and which became effective last Oct. 1, is less than adequate to meet present prices of materials and rates for labor.

The complaint further states that the facts as set forth, if proved, would establish the company's right to a present rate exceeding $1.15, yet the company asks only a continuance of the present rate pending final settlement of the legal proceedings. The complaint also indicates that the company has no intention of taking any steps to provide a standard of 650 B. t. u. gas except under a ruling of the Court.

On this point the complaint says that to increase the standard to 650 B. t. u. would add more than six cents per thousand cubic feet to the cost of making gas, as compared with the 537 standard. Reference is made to a fear that the heavier standard would create a serious hazard to life and property.

For the purpose of showing that the one dollar rate would prove confiscatory, the complaint contains figures showing the actual cost to the company of gas sold in 1922 and its actual revenues from these sales at the rate of $1.25 in effect until Oct. 1, and the $1.15 rate thereafter. These figures show that the gross operating revenues of the company were $26,166,705.89, and that the operating expenses, after giving effect to miscellaneous operating revenue, were $21,220,469.89. The net income therefore was $3,948,239. It is alleged that if the one dollar rate had been in effect throughout 1922 the company's operating loss would have amounted to 3.25 cents per thousand cubic feet, or a total of $669,584.71.

Refers to Recent Decisions.

The complaint further alleges that the rate required per thousand cubic feet of gas sold, to pay operating expenses and provide a return at 8 per cent. and 7 per cent, respectively, upon the value of the property and pay the Federal income tax, would be $1.2878 and $1.6203. All questions concerning the value of the property, its investments and operations, the complaint states, have been settled by recent court decisions, and that efforts to establish the new $1 rate will prove to be but a "futile renewal of other legislative efforts to fix gas rates by political pressure."

The complaint also states that the plaintiff has a paid up capital of nearly $165,000,000, and debts outstanding, as of April 30, 1923, of approximately $10,000,000, and substantial other invested resources including capital stock premiums. More than $65,000,000 of its resources, it states, are invested in property used in the gas business. The complaint continues:

"The plaintiff now has more than 653,000 consumers in the City of New York, to whom it is daily selling and distributing gas. The amount so sold and distributed in the year ending Dec. 31, 1922, was 20,580,285,600 cubic feet. Many of said consumers are financially irresponsible and only temporary residents of New York."

Concerning the responsibility that rests upon the company to charge only the rate fixed by law, the complaint says that a greater charge could be rejected by the consumer, and that if the gas supply should then be cut off the company could be sued to compel it to restore service, and that the company also would be liable to fines and penalties.

The complaint filed in Brooklyn by the Richmond Gas Company contends that the dollar gas law is confiscatory, that its enforcement would bring about financial losses which the company could not survive, and that if the act had been in force last year, the company would have lost $75,154.

The minimum value of the company's property is given as $2,988,552.50, and its present value, $3,672,104.50. At the present rate for gas, $1.25 per thousand cubic feet, the complaint states, its profit represents 8.29 per cent. return on its total investment and that, by law, it is entitled to 10 per cent.

It is expected that the litigation will be carried along through the Circuit Court of Appeals, and to the Supreme Court, and that it will be impossible to reach a final settlement for at least a year.

Calls Rate Confiscatory.

Commenting on the new law, James H. Jourdan, president of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company, said:

"It is confiscatory beyond doubt, and in the case of the smaller companies, it would wipe them out. It took six months to readjust the appliances in the homes of consumers to make them use the present B. T. U. Standard gas efficiently, and it would take another six months, without regard to cost, to change them again to handle 650 B. T. U., while the law seeks to compel the new standard immediately.

"Our gas-making machinery is not in shape to supply the new gas immediately, and even if it did, it would not be safe to do so because of the hazard to life and the danger of fire. We certainly will not attempt to supply the 650 B. T. U. gas until the courts have spoken on the matter."

BIG STRIKE IN SUGAR MILLS.

Argentine Industry Is Tied Up by Trouble in Tucuman.

BUENOS AIRES, June 4.—Labor unrest in the Province of Tucuman, caused by the strike of sugar mill workers, is increasing and further attacks upon the mills by the strikers are reported.

The owners have decided to close all the mills, numbering twenty-nine, because of inadequate protection from the authorities, thus paralyzing the entire Argentine sugar industry. It is estimated that 40,000 persons have been thrown out of work.

Better and Better?

Are titles following Mr. Cone's theory and growing better and better day by day? Will the time come when the title companies will have insured all the titles and when there will be no more trouble?

Unfortunately titles that are good do not always stay good. We often find defects that have crept into them since we insured them last. Imperfect descriptions are used in deeds. Defective foreclosures leave outstanding interests. Unpaid taxes result in tax lien sales. Unexpected widows raise dower claims.

Buyers of real estate are more awake than ever to these possibilities, and title examination and title insurance grow more popular as the years go by—not less so.

We now have the largest force of title examiners in our history and are ready to take care of all titles for you within reasonable time.

Catchy Slogan Adopted by Universal

UNIVERSAL has adopted a popular slogan for use in connection with its pictures. It will be used in advertising, exploitation and other public attention-arresting methods and is expected to take its place along with such advertising catch phrases as "His master's voice," and similar slogans which have become household expressions.

Voluntarily suggested by George Greenberg, a young New York City man, after reading one of Mr. Carl Laemmle's Universal advertisements the phrase immediately was chosen by the Universal executives as a tip-top slogan. * * * and immediate steps taken to make the slogan a live one wherever Universal pictures are shown.

Material and accessories will be put out which will help the exhibitor tie up his showings of Universal pictures to the good-will slogan, and to cash in on the prestige of Universal Pictures.

DISMISSES ATTACKS ON MATERNITY LAW

SEES NO RIGHTS VIOLATED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Attacks by the State of Massachusetts and by a woman in that State upon the constitutionality of the Sheppard-Towner Maternity act were rejected today by the Supreme Court, which dismissed the suit of the State and affirmed a lower court's decision which had dismissed the case of the individual complainant, Harriet A. Frothingham. Both cases were thrown out on the grounds of lack of jurisdiction.

The State suit was started originally in the Supreme Court, while the Frothingham action was carried through courts of the District of Columbia until the District Court of Appeals finally dismissed it. The cases were brought to test the act, and especially the appropriations under it. The law provides for an initial appropriation and thereafter such annual appropriations for five years to be apportioned among such States as accept its provision for the purpose of co-operating with them to reduce maternal and infant mortality and to protect the health of the mothers and infants. Under the law a bureau to administer the act in co-operation with the State agencies is provided for.

The suits contended that the appropriations were not for national purposes but for the use of the States, and that, together with various other similar appropriations, they constituted an effective means of inducing the States to yield a part of their sovereign rights. Allegations were made that the appropriations fell unequally upon the different States and that the act meant usurpation of a power not granted to Congress and was also an attempted exercise of local self-government.

Justice Sutherland in handing down the opinion of the Court said:

"In the first case the State of Massachusetts presents no justifiable controversy, either in its own behalf or as the representative of its citizens. The appellant in the second suit has no such interest in the subject matter, nor is any such injury inflicted or threatened, as will enable her to sue.

"First, the State of Massachusetts in its own behalf in effect, complains that the act in question invades the local concerns of the State and is an usurpation of power, viz.: The power of local self-government reserved to the States.

"Probably it would be sufficient to point out that the powers of the State are not invaded since the statute imposes no obligation but simply extends an option which the State is free to accept or reject. But we do not rest here. Under Article 3, Section 2, of the Constitution, the judicial power of this court extends to controversies between a State and citizens of another State, and the court has original jurisdiction in all cases to which a State shall be a party. The effect of this is not to confer jurisdiction upon the court merely because a State is a party, but only where it is a party to a proceeding of judicial cognisance."

Taking up the allegation that the statuts constituted an attempt to legislate outside the powers of Congress and within the field of the powers exclusively reserved to the States, Justice Sutherland said that the statute does not require the States to do or to yield anything.

"If Congress enacted it with the ulterior purpose of tempting them to yield, that purpose may be effectively frustrated by the simple expedient of not yielding.

"The complaint of Massachusetts that Congress had usurped the reserve powers of the States by the mere enactment of the statute was disposed of by the court as a political and not a judicial question.

In passing upon the Frothingham case the Court disposed of the contention that the effect of the appropriations complained of would be to increase the burden of future taxation and take her property without due process of law.

"The right of a taxpayer," said Justice Sutherland, "to enjoin the execution of a Federal appropriation act on the ground that it is invalid and will result in taxation for illegal purposes has never been passed upon by this Court. In cases where it was presented the question has either been allowed to pass sub-silentio or the determination of it expressly withheld."

In substance it was held that if the Court were to undertake to pass upon litigation brought by taxpayers against every statute likely to produce additional taxation it would lead to endless inconvenience and confusion.

"Twenty million women will receive the news with joy," declaired Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham, Executive Secretary of the National League of Women Voters, when the news of the decision reached her. "Ever since the league was founded in 1920 the Sheppard-Towner act has been a major measure of our program. The confidence of the States in accepting the act while its constitutionality was called in question is now happily justified, and all the women of all the organizations which have worked for this day will be joyful indeed."

CUSTOMS EMPLOYES FACE CUT IN FORCE

Reduction Looms Over a Deficit in Appropriations—Imports Congested.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Growing congestion at many of the larger Custom Houses, notably New York and Boston, together with an almost certain deficit in appropriations to pay port employes, is giving Government officials increasing concern. A high Treasury official declared today that no way to avoid a reduction in the number of employes was seen, and that if no alternative but a cut in the forces is found, the congestion of imports might reach an acute condition.

A reduction by fifty-eight of the employes at the New York Appraiser's Stores appears inevitable, although conferences scheduled between Customs Service officials and others in the Treasury during the next few days may find a way out of the situation. Complaints to the Treasury against the congestion in New York have been frequent in recent weeks, importers predicting that any further reduction in the personnel would result in a serious tie-up of inbound merchandise.

Secretary Mellon attributes the situation to the great increase in imports during the last six months.

Unless some transfer of funds can be accomplished, it is declared, the forces not only in New York and Boston but in other important ports will have to be curtailed until additional appropriations become available July 1. If the present personnel is continued, there would be a deficit of $60,000, with no Congress in session to grant an emergency appropriation.

To Study Canadian Sales Tax.

CHICAGO, June 4.—The Canadian sales tax will be made the subject of a thorough study by H. Archibald Harris, counselor of the Illinois and Indiana Bankers' Associations and other organizations. Mr. Harris, who leaves for Canada tomorrow, characterized the tax as the most widely discussed tax system in the world.

NATIONAL ELECTRIC LIGHT ASSOCIATION

This week Electrical Men from all parts of the country—thousands in number—are visiting our city, attending the Annual Convention of the National Electric Light Association. Many are accompanied by their wives and other members of their families. To them we extend cordial greetings of welcome and best wishes, in which we express the feeling of our entire city

Central Station Electrical Service, within a span of forty years, has become fifth in magnitude among the industries of the country, with a present investment of more than five billions of dollars. A large part of this investment is held by savings banks and insurance companies—and therefore by the millions of men and women whose savings are in these institutions—as well as by hundreds of thousands of individual investors mostly in relatively small amounts and very largely users of Central Station Service

The ever-increasing importance of Electricity in American community life—this country's per capita investment greatly exceeds any other in the world—is indicated by the seven hundred and fifty millions of dollars of new capital required this year to make extensions in plants and distributing systems to meet the public's service needs

America's central stations now have electrical, steam and hydro equipment of about thirty millions of horse-power. More than twenty millions of horse-power in electric motors supplied from these stations are used in the industrial and commercial activities of the country. Five hundred thousand men and women are permanently engaged in this field of public service

At this Convention, the forty-sixth held by the Association during thirty-eight years of existence, questions will be discussed relating to improvement in station equipment and distributing systems, to employee welfare and safety, to public policy, which seeks a better understanding of public needs and opinion, and many other appropriate subjects, with addresses by men of prominence in public life as well as in the Electrical Industry. The objective is to make better the service, safer the public's investments, and to win, increasingly, public approval and esteem—a public utility's most valued asset

During the forty years of Central Station Service in this country, beginning here with the pioneer work of the great Edison, improvements in methods of electrical generation, distribution and utilization have been most revolutionary. Now the smallest consumer receives on the average fully five times the volume of light for less than one quarter the former cost. In the last three years alone methods have improved sufficiently to produce relative savings in the country's collective coal-pile in excess of twenty million tons

To the men now visiting our city, this public service in which they are engaged is, in the best sense of the word, their great, inspiring motive—useful, indispensable, courteous service for every available purpose, at lowest cost consistent with the maintenance of the highest attainable standards—technical and human

It is very gratifying that this Convention, probably the largest in the history of the Association, should be held in this city which has, compared with any community in the world, for such is the progressive spirit of its citizenship, the greatest investment in electrical generating and distributing equipment, and the largest utilization of electrical energy, in its many applications to our industries, commercial activities, home-life and civic needs

We repeat our assurances of the warmth and heartiness of our own and our city's welcome, and venture to express our hope that the time spent here, whether devoted to study, to visiting our unnumbered points of attraction and interest, or to recreation, will be most profitably spent, and that memories of this visit will long remain, the most agreeable, and satisfactory of any Convention at which our membership has ever gathered

CONCERTS BEGIN IN CENTRAL PARK

15,000 PACK THE MALL

City authorities having invited Goldman's Band to give its free Summer concerts on the Mall in Central Park, it was with more than usual official formalities that the season's opening took place in torrid weather last evening, when the band played the first of sixty popular programs, to continue on five nights of each week for the next three months. The convenience of the Park to the public was evident in an assembly of 15,000 that greeted Edwin Franko Goldman and his sixty men, all veteran players from local orchestras and in most instances the same who had been heard with this band in the last five Summers at Columbia University.

The new $100,000 band stand given by Elkan Naumberg was as yet incomplete and last night's performance took place in the old stand at the top of the Mall near Seventy-second Street and Fifth Avenue. Hitherto an average of 15,000 attendance on the Columbia green had been claimed for the band. The new arrangements in the Park will hereafter provide for 50,000 seats at least, while estimates of the total who may hear the musicians from the Park walks and drives near by range as high as 75,000. In many years no such ambitious Summer season by a band has been planned for New York.

An official statement said that the present series was made possible not only by the aid and encouragement of the city, but also by many individual gifts of $5 and upward through the Citizens' Committee, of which the Chairman is Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim, and finally by "a substantial donation" from the Juilliard Foundation.

Conductor Goldman's scheme, modestly begun on the university campus uptown in 1918, had in the intervening Summers grown to include concerts on "off nights" in city hospitals and institutions and in several parks of the various boroughs. These have not been forgotten in the new plan of procedure this year. In place of the band's former visits afield, however, the Citizens' Committee is to provide special buses to carry back and forth the crippled children, orphans and others, who will thus share directly in the programs given for the general public. One special concert, an annual event, takes place a week from today at the City Hall.

Sixty programs, designed to be cumulative in value and educational in character, have been fully arranged in advance, from now until Aug. 23. As the first of many special events Mr. Goldman has announced for Saturday of next week a performance of Rossini's "Stabat Mater," with the help of the Oratorio Society of New York, led by its conductor, Albert Stoessel. Soloists on that occasion will be Lotta Madden and Fyleda Klink, both of whom also sing with the band this week, and Robert Quait and Norman Jolliffe.

"The Star Spangled Banner" was played and sung at the opening of last night's initial concert, marking likewise the music's first tribute of Americanization and the first in a more varied recognition of the diverse peoples of worldwide origin in cosmopolitan New York. Vincent C. Buono, cornet, was the opening soloist in Schubert's "Serenade," and Lotta Madden, soprano, sang an air from Verdi's "Don Carlo."

The band, under Mr. Goldman's direction, gave Tchaikovsky's "Slavic March," overtures to Wagner's "Tannhäuser" and Rossini's "William Tell," Grieg's first "Peer Gynt" suite, Johann Strauss's "New Vienna" waltz and Goldman's march, "The Chimes of Liberty."

ENDS 21 STATES' BAN ON FOREIGN TONGUES

freedom from bodily restraint but also the right of the individual to contract, to engage in any one of the common occupations of life, to acquire useful knowledge, to marry, establish a home and bring up children, to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience, and generally to enjoy those privileges long recognized by common law as essential to the orderly pursuit of happiness by free men.

"The established doctrine is that this liberty may not be interfered with, under the guise of protecting the public interest by legislative action which is arbitrary or without reasonable relation to some purpose within the competency of the State to effect. Determination by the Legislature of what constitutes proper exercise of police power is not final or conclusive, but is subject to supervision by the courts.

"The American people have always regarded education and acquisition of knowledge as matters of supreme importance which should be diligently promoted. The ordinance of 1787 declares 'religion, morality and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged.' Corresponding to the right of control, it is the natural duty of the parent to give his children education suitable to their station in life and nearly all the States, including Nebraska, enforce this obligation by compulsory laws.

Upholds Rights of Teachers.

"Practically, education of the young is only possible in schools conducted by especially qualified persons who devote themselves thereto. The calling always has been regarded as useful and honorable, essential, indeed, to the public welfare. Mere knowledge of the German language cannot reasonably be regarded as harmful. Heretofore it has been commonly looked upon as helpful and desirable.

"The plaintiff in error taught this language in school as part of his occupation. His right thus to teach and the right of parents to engage him so to instruct their children, we think, are within the liberty of the amendment.

"Evidently the Legislature has attempted materially to interfere with the calling of modern language teachers, with the opportunities of pupils to acquire knowledge and with the power of parents to control the education of their own.

"It is said the purpose of the legislation was to promote civic development by inhibiting training and education of the mature in foreign tongues and ideals before they could learn English and acquire American ideals, and 'that the English language should be and become the mother tongue of all children reared in this State.'

"It is also affirmed that the foreign-born population is very large, that certain communities commonly use foreign words, follow foreign leaders, move in a foreign atmosphere, and that the children are thereby hindered from becoming citizens of the most useful type and the public safety is imperiled.

Can't Coerce Learning of English.

"That the State may do much—go very far, indeed—in order to improve the quality of its citizens physically, mentally and morally is clear, but the individual has certain fundamental rights which must be respected. The protection of the Constitution extends to all, to those who speak other languages as well as those born with English on the tongue.

"Perhaps it would be highly advantageous if all had ready understanding of our ordinary speech, but this cannot be coerced by methods which conflict with the Constitution—a desirable end cannot be promoted by prohibitive means.

"The desire of the Legislature to foster a homogeneous people with American ideals prepared readily to understand current discussions of civic matters is easy to appreciate. Unfortunate experiences during the late war and aversions toward every characteristic of truculent adversaries were certainly enough to quicken that aspiration.

"But the means adopted, we think, exceed the limitations upon the power of the State and conflict with rights assured to the plaintiff in error. The interference was plain enough, and no adequate reason therefor in time of peace and domestic tranquillity has been shown.

"The power of the State to compel attendance at some school and to make reasonable regulations for all schools, including a requirement that they shall give instruction in English, is not questioned. Nor has challenge been made of the State's power to prescribe a curriculum for institutions which it supports.

"Those matters are not within the present controversy. Our concern is with the prohibition approved by the Supreme Court. Adams vs. Tanner, supra, 9, 594, pointed out that mere abuse incident to an occupation ordinarily useful is not enough to justify its abolition, although regulation may be entirely proper.

"No sudden emergency has arisen which renders knowledge by a child of some language other than English so clearly harmful as to justify its inhibition, with the consequent infringement or rights long freely enjoyed. We are constrained to conclude that the statute as applied is arbitrary and without reasonable relation to any end within the competency of the State.

"As the statute undertakes to interfere only with teaching which involves modern languages, leaving complete freedom as to other matters, there seems no adequate foundation for the suggestion that the purpose was to protect the child's health by limiting his mental activities. It is well known that proficiency in a foreign language seldom comes to one not instructed at an early age, and experience shows that this is not injurious to the health, morals or understanding of the ordinary child.

Foreign Tongues Taught at Home.

Justice Holmes dissenting in the foreign language case said:

"We all agree, I take it, that it is desirable that all the citizens of the United States should have a common language and therefore that the end aimed at by the statute is a lawful and proper one.

"The only question is whether the means adopted deprived teachers of the liberty secured to them by the Fourteenth Amendment. It is with hesitation and unwillingness that I differ from my brethren with regard to a law like this, but I cannot bring my mind to believe that in some circumstances, and circumstances existing, it is said, in Nebraska, the statute might not be regarded as a reasonable or even necessary method of reaching the desired result.

"The part of the act with which we are concerned deals with the teaching of young children. Youth is the time when familiarity with a language is established, and if there are sections of the State where a child would hear only Polish or French or German spoken at home, I am not prepared to say that it is unreasonable to provide in his early years that he shall hear and speak only English at school. But if it is reasonable, it is not an undue restriction of the liberty, either of teachers or scholars."

Justice Holmes concluded with a statement that he was unable to say whether the Constitution prevented the experiment being tried.

The VETERAN MOTORIST gives a few rules of the road

"On approaching an intersecting highway, corner or curve, where his view is obstructed, the driver of a motor vehicle shall sound his horn and slow up enough to enable him to stop readily if necessary."
(The Veteran Motorist)

"ONE afternoon last summer, I was looking out of a store window on the Post Road. A heavily loaded truck happened to be coming along. Maybe a hundred and fifty yards or so up a side street, a low-hung touring car pulled out of a yard and the driver hit it up for the Post Road as though he had to make a train in thirty seconds. Matter of fact, he was just taking 'the sweetest, dearest, etc.' out for an afternoon spin.

The truck and sport car got to the corner at the same time. No horns, no slowing up. Then a last minute struggle to avoid colliding. I think one of them must have had a horseshoe under his seat, for it was just about as close as I'd ever seen, or want to. As it was, one of the steering knuckles on the car was snapped in the shuffle.

"Not a reason under the sun for it, just plain carelessness. And that's what causes three-fourths of all motoring accidents today. Take it from me, it pays to stick to the rules of the road nowadays—all of them—all the time."

SAYS VIVISECTION SAVES MANY LIVES

BELIEVES PUBLIC APPROVES

Summarizes Work in Medical Education, Including Support of Peking College.

If the anti-vivisectionists had their way there would be a step to experimentation which has saved countless human lives, said Dr. George E. Vincent, President of the Rockefeller Foundation, in a portion of the annual report made public yesterday.

"The question of animal experimentation, a vital necessity to modern research, has a direct bearing upon the relation of public opinion to scientific progress," he said.

"If the anti-vivisectionists could have their way they would forbid by law procedures which have saved and will in the future save untold numbers of human lives by making possible modern surgery and our present knowledge of such diseases as diabetes, smallpox, tuberculosis, diphtheria, cerebrospinal meningitis, tetanus, puerperal fever, syphilis, rabies, bubonic plague, relapsing fever, cholera and yellow fever.

"The only protection which medical science and social welfare have lies in the public opinion to which legislatures must in the long run defer. If the leaders of opinion, educational institutions, the press, the platform, women's clubs, popular forums, party organizations, and thinking citizens generally will take a positive aggressive interest, secure the facts, select and trust experts, reason clearly, and have the courage of conviction, modern scientific medicine will be appreciated and the common welfare promoted. There can be no serious doubt as to the outcome, because in spite of a noisy minority the great body of public opinion is sound."

Responses of Governments and the public to the demands of modern medicine have been encouraging on the whole, according to Dr. Vincent, but there have been "disheartening instances of an almost benighted ignorance."

The tendency of individuals to resist smallpox vaccination he cites as an example, as well as the work of anti-vaccination societies. The prevention of disease by vaccination was one of the most important extensions of medicine, he said.

Dr. Vincent summarized the work of the Foundation in medical education, including a contribution of $1,125,000 toward the building project of the State University of Iowa, and aid extended to many other schools. The Peking Union Medical College is entirely supported by the Foundation. Offers have been made to contribute to laboratories and equipment, and to provide fellowships for Chinese teachers. Little preventive medical work has been done in China because of popular ignorance and social and economic conditions.

Much work has also been done by the Foundation to rehabilitate foreign medical schools, whose apparatus was depleted during the war.

BANKER WHO STOLE WARNS.

Ransom, Sent to Michigan Prison, Wants to Serve as Example.

DETROIT, June 4.—Charles D. Ransom, Vice President of the Grosse Pointe Savings Bank, who voluntarily confessed, recently, the theft of $15,000 from the institution during the last five years, was sentenced to from four to five years in the State Prison today by Judge Goof. The court recommended that he serve the maximum term.

Ransom, who took the bank's money in order that he might uphold his social position, said after the sentence that he hoped he would serve as an example to other men who might be tempted to steal.

WOMEN OF OLD EGYPT SEEK EMANCIPATION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAIRO, June 4.—A movement for the emancipation of Egyptian women from the strict seclusion in which they hitherto have been kept is developing vigorously throughout Egypt.

The President of the Egyptian women's delegation which attended the recent international women's conference in Rome in an interview this morning said the movement's two primary objects were to consolidate the branches which were enthusiastically forming throughout Egypt, and also to obtain the most radical reforms in the education of women, which she said at present was pitifully inadequate to allow native women in Egypt to take their proper place in the social and public life of their country.

The Moslem press is boycotting the movement, as some of the desired reforms run counter to Koranic injunctions, but the feminists disregard this fact, arguing that conditions today necessitate a flexible interpretation of the Koranic texts.

The movement has now assumed proportions which compel Egyptian men to face it, though for the present they are carefully ignoring it.

AUTO KILLS GIRL AT PLAY.

Chauffeur's Death Makes Third From One Sunday Accident.

Josephine De Stefano, 7, was knocked down and killed last evening when a car, which the police said, was being driven by John Goards, a stationery engineer, of 118 Maujer Street, Brooklyn, got out of control and dashed into a group of girls playing on the sidewalk near Josephine's home, 1,082 Flushing Avenue, Brooklyn.

Goards was locked up on a technical charge of homicide at the Stagg Street Station by Patrolman Morrissey. He told the police the car belonged to his wife.

Jennie, a 10-year-old sister of the dead girl, was also struck by the runaway machine, but at St. Catharine's Hospital it was found she had suffered only a cut over the left eye. She went home.

William J. Stuart, 22, a chauffeur of Great Kills, died yesterday in Staten Island Hospital, New Brighton — the third death resulting from the smash-up of a five-passenger car Stuart was driving on Hylan Boulevard, near Guyon Avenue, Sunday afternoon.

LONDON, June 4.—Ronald McNeill, representative of the Foreign Office in the House of Commons, gave a complete denial today to the report that Sir Auckland Geddes was about to leave his Washington post.

When asked by Captain Wedgwood Benn whether a proposal had been made for making a change in the British representation at Washington, and, if so, who was to succeed Sir Auckland, Mr. McNeill replied that the reports which had appeared in the press on the subject were entirely unfounded.

WILSON ASSAILED FOR GARVAN'S SALE

the dyes and chemical industry of the United States.

Among others was the organization, early in 1918, of the American Dye Institute. While this organization did not embrace all the manufacturers, it embraced at least 90 per cent. of the production. They had plans for exchange of information and for the open price, or Eddy open-price plan, which was recently condemned by the Supreme Court in the Hardwood cases and was promptly abandoned by the dye people. They thus developed a close association of interests and purpose."

Colonel Anderson told of conferences between the associated interests and representatives of the Custodian which resulted in the organization of a corporation to take over all the German patents and license their use to persons desiring to use them.

"We will show," said Colonel Anderson, "that the determination as to what patents should be seized and sold under the arrangement agreed upon in advance was not made by the Custodian, but by representatives of the dye industry through counsel stationed in the Patent Office in Washington.

"These dye interests' lawyers worked night and day and Sunday listing patents they thought related to the subject. The chemical interests paid the expenses of making up this list—$4,000. Having made up the list, the seizures took place.

"The Advisory Sale Committee consisted of men of the highest standing and character—Cleveland P. Dodge, Otto T. Bannard, Ralph Stone, E. Howell Griswold Jr. and ex-Justice George H. Ingraham.

"The Custodian issued instructions controlling the sale. The regulations were to the effect the sale must be at public auction, unless the President provided otherwise.

Formation of Chemical Foundation.

"In pursuance of the agreement which had been made between 90 per cent. of the dyestuffs industry and the Custodian or his representatives, arrangements were made to organize the Chemical Foundation, Inc., under the laws of Delaware. It was organized in February, 1922. The American Dye Institute not only had inaugurated this scheme, but had done the work in connection with the matter, had made up the list of patents to be transferred and provided the money to pay for this work.

"The charter for the foundation provides it shall hold these properties in a beneficial capacity for American industry. The corporation was under no requirement to grant any licenses to the United States which could be enforceable by the United States, but if it did grant a license it had to be non-exclusive and subject to such terms and conditions as the corporation's Board of Directors might prescribe.

"The charter provided for a capital stock of $4,000,000 preferred and $100,000 common of shares of $100 each, and the preferred was limited to 6 per cent. It further provided the Corporation should be perpetual."

Col. Anderson recalled that President Wilson sailed for Paris Dec. 4, 1918. The day before he sailed he signed an executive order, acting under the Trading With the Enemy act, vesting in the Custodian certain functions, and in Frank L. Polk certain other powers and authority conferred upon the President by Section 12 of the Trading With the Enemy act, as amended.

Contends President's Action Illegal.

"We shall undertake to contend that the President had the power to exercise himself the functions imposed on him by this act, through any officer he might direct," said Col. Anderson; "that an officer within the contemplation of the act is an officer within the contemplation of the provision of the Constitution, that is, an officer appointed by the President with consent of the Senate. It will be contended by us that the particular power here involved was one which the President could not delegate to any one."

Colonel Anderson argued at length on this point, declaring that "the effort to delegate to Mr. Polk that authority was void, as a delegation of the executive power to a person who had never taken oath of office to exercise that power in his personal capacity. The President did not have the power to make such delegation."

"On Feb. 26, 1919, with the President back in the White House," Colonel Anderson went on, "Mr. Polk entered an order prepared by the Custodian's office and sent to him with a request to execute it. On that order rests the tale of these suits.

"The acting President undertook to release and transfer not only the patents but all rights to possible infringement and wrongs by the former owners. The President vested all power and authority in Mr. Polk, who, in turn, vested all power and authority in the custodian, to make private sale of anything he might determine related to the purpose of the Chemical Foundation."

Declares Facts Misstated.

Reverting to the Foundation's charter, Colonel Anderson said:

"The Foundation was authorized to grant licenses to the United States upon such terms and conditions as its board may determine. The Directors may refuse or revoke licenses. There is the essential, fundamental fact in this whole matter, misstated in the face of the order and misrepresented in the order. I do not find any provision requiring the Foundation to grant any qualified American manufacturers non-exclusive licenses, and therefore the order does not state the facts as to the charter. I do not charge anybody with intentional wrong. I say the order is based on a misrepresentation of facts.

"All those engaged in making chemicals and dyes were stockholders in the Chemical Foundation and combined for making this purchase. This is the first time in the history of American law where the combination of possible bidders has been deliberately brought about by a trustee or aided by him. That is not a reflection on the Custodian, because his purposes were of high character. It is the first time a trustee has brought about a combination of purchasers and then asked authority to sell privately because there would be no legitimate bidders at public sale.

"A combination of bidders is ground for setting aside a sale as invalid. Yet that is the basis on which this sale was predicated by Mr. Polk. He was very busy, and nothing I say here should reflect in the slightest on his purpose. If he inadvertently made a mistake in the law which is prejudicial to the people of the United States or to this trust, and if the Custodian also inadvertently made a mistake, then it is for the Court to correct the mistake.

"The 4,500 patents were sold for $250,000. Additional patents and trademarks were sold, bringing the total up to $271,000. They went for about $50 apiece. The price had been suggested at a conference of the dye people and the Custodian's people before they knew how many patents there were. The price was fixed arbitrarily. The money was paid and conveyance was made.

Says United States Can't Touch It.

"Neither the United States nor anybody can ever touch the use of this thing, and the Chemical Foundation could be dissolved under Delaware laws tomorrow and transfer this property to private ownership, and nobody in the world could complain, if the charter is valid."

Colonel Anderson pointed out that Garvan was elected President of the Foundation; Joseph H. Choate Jr., counsel for the custodian, was made counsel, and Colonel Douglas I. McKay, who had acted for the custodian, and aids were elected to offices in the Foundation. This was brought forward to show that, as officials of the custodian's office, these men acted as sellers and, as officers of the Foundation, as buyers in the same transaction. Such a situation, argued Colonel Anderson, voided the transaction, as it violated the law and the regulations of the custodian.

Colonel Anderson insisted that much larger sums could have been obtained for the patents from other purchasers and that the Foundation got them for a nominal figure. He cited the case of a patent sold to the Foundation for $250, although royalties had accrued to the total of $27,000 since the patent had been seized by the Government. He termed the entire deal "a ridiculous transaction," and said the transaction must have been due to a wrong theory of the law as to the duties and purposes of the custodian, "because I do not charge willful misrepresentation or misuse of property of the United States."

"Do I understand you to mean that fraud will develop during this case," the Court asked. "Fraud in law, yes," answered Colonel Anderson. "Fraud in fact—I hope not."

This enlarged view of the worm drive—two moving parts—is characteristic of the sturdy, rugged construction of Ward Electrics. This type of drive has been adopted for more than 72% of all of the motor trucks built in America. Other well known parts are Sheldon Axles, Spicer Universal Joints, Firestone Tires, General Electric Motors, and Edison, Exide, Philadelphia or K-W Batteries. Simple trucks with the fewest possible moving parts—long lived and economical.

Sturdy, Rugged Electric Trucks save 20% to 35%

All of the leading makes of Electric trucks are sturdy. They are all built to last more than 10 years, compared with an average life of 5 years for gasoline trucks and horses. You can safely depreciate them at 10% a year, as against 20% to 33⅓% on gas trucks and horses.

Whenever you think of Electric trucks, think of them as lasting 10 years and upwards. Think of the first cost as spread over 10 years or more. This is an important distinction—Electrics last more than twice as long as gas trucks or horses.

The next point is, Electrics are the fastest trucks to be had on frequent-stop city routes.

You may ask, "How can that be when Electrics operate at controlled speeds?" The answer is, "The fastest trucks on frequent-stop routes" means but one thing—trucks that actually cover milk, bakery or laundry routes in less time. Electrics cover these routes in less time than gas trucks because they start quicker, get away faster—no gear shifting, no acceleration—and have all the speed you can use in city work with its frequent starting and stopping. Users have repeatedly demonstrated that Electrics cover frequent-stop routes in from 30 to 60 minutes less a day than gas trucks.

So if you want speed in covering frequent-stop routes remember that Electrics are the fastest trucks at this work.

Electrics operate almost as cheaply in the 12th or 15th year as in the 1st or 2nd year. There are so few moving parts to wear out. Remember that! Gas truck manufacturers make the statement that 82% of gas truck repairs are traceable to the engine. The electric truck has no engine. Its power plant is a storage battery—a sturdy, strong, long-lived battery that gives you even less concern than the starting and lighting battery in your passenger car.

When Electrics stop in traffic or to make deliveries, running expense stops. The gas truck driver usually lets his engine run—he wastes gasoline and oil and there's wear and tear besides.

To sum up, you can save 20% to 35% with electric trucks instead of horses or gas trucks. You may save even more.

All of the leading makes of electric trucks are being exhibited at the National Electric Truck Show. Come see them. We are prepared to show you actual Cost Analyses that will prove the case to you. The saving is often equivalent to 2½%, 3% or more of the user's gross business for the year. If you are making 10% profit on your gross, this saving means 25% or 30% increase in profits.

We have put the story in a book for executives who are willing to Face the Facts. Ask for a copy.

LINSEED AGREEMENT IS HELD UNLAWFUL

OPINION BY McREYNOLDS

WASHINGTON, June 4.—"Open price associations" again were declared unlawful by the United States Supreme Court when that body, in an opinion delivered by Justice McReynolds, held that such an association between linseed crushers was a violation of the Sherman act. The decision follows that against the Hardwood Lumber Association, made some time ago, when the Court ruled such an agreement outside the law.

The District Court for the Northern District of Illinois has held that the combination of the linseed oil crushers was lawful and had dismissed a bill of complaint brought by the Government, but the Supreme Court today overthrew the decision of the lower court.

The defendants were the American Linseed Oil Company et al., comprising twelve corporations, in six different States, which manufacture and distribute linseed oil cake and meal, and Julian Armstrong, who operates at Chicago under the name of Armstrong Bureau of Related Industries.

"This bureau," said Justice McReynolds, "conducts a so-called 'exchange,' through which one subscribing manufacturer may obtain detailed information concerning the affairs of others doing a like business. The defendant 'crushers' constitute one of the groups who contract for this service. They manufacture and distribute throughout the Union a very large part of the linseed products consumed therein, and prior to the challenged combination were active, unrestrained competitors. Sometime in September or October, 1918, each of them entered into an identical written 'subscription agreement' with the Armstrong bureau, and a year thereafter signed another, not essentially different."

Relates How Bureau Worked.

According to the description by Justice McReynolds, under the agreement signed by the linseed crushers with the Armstrong bureau, the the crushers were to secure through the bureau the following things:

Comprehensive, data as to market trade and manufacturing conditions in the linseed oil industry.

Economies in manufacture and sale by frank exchange of accurate information.

The crushers agreed, the Justice found, to turn over to the bureau full reports of all sales, quotations, offerings and other information required.

"The obvious policy," said Justice McReynolds, "indeed, the declared purpose of the arrangement was to submerge the competition theretofore existing among the subscribers and substitute 'intelligent competition' or 'open competition,' to eliminate 'unintelligent selfishness' and establish '100 per cent. confidence,' to the end that the members might 'stand out from the crowd as substantial co-workers under modern co-operative business methods.'

Like Ruling in Lumber Case.

"In American Column and Lumber Company vs. United States, we considered a combination of manufacturers set up to effectuate this new conception of confidence and competition and held it within the inhibition of the Sherman Act because of the inevitable tendency to destroy real competition, as long understood, and thereby restrain trade. Our conclusion there can not be reconciled with the somewhat earlier opinion and judgment of the court below, they are in direct conflict.

"The Sherman Act was intended to secure the equality of opportunity and to protect the public against evils commonly incident to monopolies and those abnormal contracts and combinations which tend directly to suppress the conflict, the advantage called competition—the play of the contending forces ordinarily engendered by honest desire for gain.

"Certain it is that the defendants are associated in a new form of combination and are resorting to methods which are not normal. If, looking at the entire contract by which they are bound together, in the light of what has been done under it, the Court can see that the necessary tendency is to suppress competition in trade between the States the combination must be declared unlawful. That such it its tendency, we think, must be affirmed."

Referring to the operations of the defendants, he said:

"Each subscriber agreed to furnish a schedule of prices and terms and adhere thereto—unless more onerous ones were obtained—until prepared to give immediate notice of departure therefrom for relay for the bureau. Each also agreed, under penalty of fine, to attend a monthly meeting and report upon matters of interest to be there discussed, to comply with all reasonable requirements of the bureau and to divulge no secrets.

"In the absence of a purpose to monopolize or the compulsion that results from contract or agreement, the individual certainly may exercise great freedom, but concerted action through combination presents a wholly different problem and is forbidden when the necessary tendency is to destroy the kind of competition to which the public has long looked for protection.

HUGE LONDON RESTAURANT.

Largest in the World, It Plans to Serve 10,000,000 Meals a Year.

LONDON, June 4.—The next time a Yankee tourist starts telling a Londoner how much bigger things are at home, he will probably be taken down to Piccadilly Circus to see the largest restaurant in the world. It has just been opened, and the catering company which owns it expects to serve 10,000,000 meals in the next twelve months. Statisticians here say the biggest eating place in America serves only 3,000,000 meals a year.

This enormous establishment will employ 800 waitresses and enough other help to make a payroll of 1,200 persons. And the jazziest café in all New York will not be one bit noisier, for this big restaurant is to have a band playing in [illegible] rooms, too big, little and middle-sized—scattered over five acres of floor space.

"I like a 'fussy' customer"

KNOWING what I do about the manufacture of cigars and cigar quality, it amazes me to see a man who will argue for fifteen minutes over a salad dressing, or who will hold a spirited debate over the freshness of an egg, walk into a cigar store and in the most off-hand manner say, "Give me a good fifteen-cent cigar."

There is just as much pleasure, just as much satisfaction, just as much profit to be derived from the careful selection of cigars as from the careful selection of food. It is just as easy to acquire a taste for good cigars as it is to be satisfied with whatever the man behind the counter offers you. And it is entirely unnecessary to pay a price you cannot afford in order to enjoy the finest tobacco that can be put into a cigar.

The proof of the pudding is in the eating. Next time you buy a cigar ask for La Palina. At whatever price you are accustomed to pay—from 10c to 3 for 50c, I am certain you will find it the most satisfying, the most delightful mild cigar you ever smoked.

MAKES 20 FLIGHTS WITH A SAILPLANE

USES CLUB'S GOLF LINKS

Machine of Monoplane Type Carries Two in Tests That Succeed in Still Air.

Twenty successful flights were made at dawn Sunday over the Belleclaire Golf and Country Club links at Bayside, L. I., by the Nordman motorless airplane, H. J. Nordman, the inventor, announced yesterday. Each time the sailplane, as he preferred to term it, rose to a height of fifty feet and flew a distance of a little more than a quarter of a mile under somewhat unfavorable meteorological conditions, he said last night at his home in Flushing, L. I.

The sailplane was propelled into the air from the highest mound of the links by an elastic rope which acted as a catapult, Mr. Nordman said. Arthur Heinrich piloted the plane, which is of the monoplane type, with a wing spread of 40 feet and a length over all of 18 feet.

"I had not intended to make public the success of the flight until I could arrange a demonstration for the press," Mr. Nordman said. "I have been two years at work on the plane, which isn't a glider, since it takes advantage of meteorological conditions just as a sailboat does. Large control surfaces direct the movement of the sailplane in the air.

"The Belleclaire Club gave me permission to use their course very early in the morning, when no one was on the links. At 4 o'clock in the morning, when I began the tests, there was hardly a breath of wind stirring. This reacted against a more satisfactory performance. On the other hand, the ability of the sailplane to fly under still air conditions is a good indication that much more can be accomplished with a wind blowing.

"Heinrich maneuvered the control to take advantage of whatever currents were astir and he was able to negotiate each time a distance of a little over a quarter of a mile. It was so dark when we first started the tests that we were glad to avail ourselves of the light from forty automobile searchlights. Because of the success of our efforts, the club had given permission to use the course at a later hour in the day."

He said the total weight of the sailplane without the pilot was 200 pounds. Mr. Nordman, who is identified with the E. W. F. Engineering Corporation, manufacturers of airplanes, said he had studied the glider efforts of German and French aeronautical engineers.

to central station executives

WHILE you are in New York, you have an excellent opportunity to gain first hand information regarding the activities of the Automobile Bureau of the New York Edison Company, who have done such remarkable work in developing this important branch of the service.

You will learn—

—how the once unprofitable hours between midnight and dawn have been made to produce a yearly revenue in excess of $1,000,000.

—how this company has helped to show the business man the convenience and profit of owning and operating electric trucks, with the result that there is a marked yearly increase in their use.

—how this growth has extended the market for sales of current without adding to Central Station equipment.

They were among the first to appreciate its potentiality as a producer of revenue and the means of more evenly distributing current consumption throughout the 24 hours.

They were among the first to make a real, well organized effort to develop the field.

One electric truck garage in New York City consumes sufficient current to supply 4,000 residence customers—one service against 4,000.

Eight electric truck garages in New York City used, in 1922, four million KWH of current, the gross revenue from which was over $130,000.

The sale of a single electric truck opens up an immediate market for current equivalent to the wiring of a half dozen to three dozen homes.

The Real Difference in Motor Cars

It Lies in Hidden Values

Essex values are not all on the outside. They extend to minute details. They include finest roller bearings where commonly bushings are used. They include devices to prevent wear and inexpensively take up wear. For weight carried the Essex frame is the strongest built, save one. Experts all over the world call its motor the finest of its size.

It is because of such hidden values that Essex cars two and three years old, with upwards of 70,000 miles of service, are running as reliably today as when new.

BLOWS KILL PATIENT IN WILLARD HOSPITAL

GENEVA, N. Y., June 4.—Following the finding of the body of Jesse Parsons, beaten almost beyond recognition, at Willard State Hospital, Coroner Gordon reported today that Parsons died from blows inflicted by another.

Parsons's death makes the third mysterious death to occur at the institution in the last few years, and no effort has been made by the authorities to hold any one responsible for the fatalities. Several cases of patients who have been brutally assaulted also have come to the attention of the public.

In the Parsons case the Coroner's report charges two men with having struck the mental unfortunate—George A. Cook, an attendant, and Jacob Pethe, an inmate. Cook admits leaving the ward in charge of Pethe and the latter charges that Cook hit and beat him. But for the filing of the Coroner's reports the affair probably would have been kept under the seal of asylum secrecy.

Some time ago John O'Brien, an ex-service man, was found beaten to death, as was also Hiram Eggleston, but in neither case was action taken toward holding any one responsible. In the O'Brien case American Legion officials demanded an investigation, which was made by Governor Miller and the State Hospital Commission, but it was decided no one but another patient was to blame.

It is expected that the latest affair will be brought before Governor Smith and that he will be asked to make a thorough investigation of the institution.

RUTHENBERG GETS APPEAL.

Sentence Is Withheld While Case Is Taken to Michigan Supreme Court.

ST. JOSEPH, Minn., June 4 (Associated Press).—Charles E. Ruthenberg of Cleveland, convicted in the Berrien Circuit Court last March of violating the Michigan Anti-Syndicalism act, escaped a prison sentence, for the time being at least, when permission to appeal the case was granted by Judge Charles E. White this morning.

Judge White agreed to withhold sentence pending the appeal to the Michigan Supreme Court.

The motion for an appeal was filed by Attorney Frank P. Walsh and was opposed by Charles W. Gore, Prosecuting Attorney. Ruthenberg was present in Court when the motion was granted. His bail of $10,000 was continued, and he will be requested to be present at the opening of the September term of Court, though his appearance at that time will be a formality only.

ROBINS WIN AND TIE PIRATES FOR SECOND

MORRISON KNOCKED OUT

PITTSBURGH, June 4.—Burleigh Grimes's splendid pitching, supported by home runs by Jacques Fournier and Tommy Griffith, here this afternoon, enabled the Brooklyn Robins to defeat the Pirates, 5 to 3. It was the first game played in the West by the hustling Flatbush team and as a result of the victory it went into a tie for second place with Pittsburgh. Each team is credited with twenty-four victories and charged with nineteen defeats.

Johnny Morrison was Grimes's rival when the game started, but in the sixth inning he was knocked off the mound. Jim Bagby succeeded Morrison, but in the eighth inning he gave way to a pinch hitter and George Boehler finished the game. The Robins made nine hits off the trio, while Grimes was found for eleven safe blows. However, with men on the bases Grimes brought his spitter into play effectively.

The Robins picked up their first run in the second inning. Fournier led off by drawing a pass and McCarren was hit. High beat out a bunt, filling the bases. A single by Taylor brought Fournier home. Grimes hit into a double play and then Traynor tossed out Bailey, who covered centre field, as Neis is nursing a blister on his right hand.

Three singles were crowded into the fourth frame by the Pirates and the score was tied. Bigbee beat out a hit in front of the plate and reached second on Taylor's wide throw. He moved to third on Russell's out and completed the circuit when Traynor singled. Grimm followed with a single, but there was no further scoring.

Wheat opeend the sixth for the visitors with a double and Fournier followed with a drive to right. The ball went through the screen in right field and Fournier trotted around the bases, scoring Wheat in front of him. McCarren then singled and Morrison gave way to Bagby. The relief pitcher held the Robins in check during the remainder of the round.

After Johnston had been disposed of in the seventh chapter, Tom Griffith hit into the right field bleachers for a home run. In the final round Boehler lacked control and Bailey and Johnston walked. Griffith sacrificed and a single to Wheat filled the bases. Fournier lifted a sacrifice hit to Russell and Bailey scored.

With two out in the last half of the ninth the Pirates tried to pull the game out of the fire, but their rally netted only one run. Maranville and Carey were retired on outfield flies. Then Bigbee beat out a hit to Johnston. He was allowed to go all the way to third unmolested and scored on a single by Russell. Traynor followed with a single and Russell reached third. Grimm ended the game with a grounder to Johnston, who tossed him out.

There are still many rumors of a trade that will result in Dutch Ruether departing from Brooklyn. The Braves offered Joe Oeschger and Horace Ford for the left hander, but Manager Robinson turned down the proposition. Ruether may be sent to the Phillies.

Before the game President Ebbets held a conference with Barney Dreyfuss and the two owners may put through a deal before the series is concluded. The Robins are trying to get a hard-hitting third baseman for the pitcher.

BOSTON, June 4.—After Morton had weakened in the eighth inning, the Boston Red Sox made five runs against Cleveland today and took the lead, 5 to 4. But the Indians made enough to win the game, 6 to 5, in the ninth, when Sewell, Gardner and Myatt singled off Piercy and Flagstead made a bad throw to the plate.

President Harding Donates American Public Links Cup

By the Associated Press.

President Harding has donated a cup, to be known as the Warren G. Harding Trophy, emblematic of the American public links team championship, J. D. Standish Jr., Chairman of the Public Links Committee of the United States Golf Association, announced yesterday. The cup will be placed in competition Monday, June 25, the day preceding the qualifying rounds of the 1923 national public links championship, at Washington. Teams of four players, each team representative of a city, will compete at medal play over 18 holes. The trophy is to be in competition annually thereafter under the same conditions.

CUBS STAGE RALLY AND DEFEAT REDS

Score Five Runs in Ninth by Pounding Rixey and Couch —Win by 8 to 7.

CINCINNATI, June 4.—The Cubs overcame a three-run lead by batting Rixey and Couch for six straight hits in the ninth inning today. They scored five runs and took the last game of the series, 8 to 7. Kaufmann was hit freely in the early innings.

Alexander went in as relief pitcher in the last half of the ninth and allowed one run, Stats saving the game for the Cubs by a fine catch of Burns's line drive. The Reds fielded brilliantly, Caveney at shortstop featuring.

JOE BUSH DEFEATED BY ROOKIE PITCHER

GAME DECIDED IN SIXTH

Washington Bunches Hits for Two Runs and Victory—Ruth's Triple Drives In Two Mates.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The Yankees suffered their third consecutive defeat by losing to the Senators here today. The score was 5 to 2. The veteran Joe Bush was outpitched by Paul Zahniser, formerly of the Memphis Club of the Southern Association. The game was played before a crowd of Shriners who are here for their national convention.

Bush was batted hard in four different innings, while the Yanks were able to bunch hits off Zahniser in only one. The rookie pitcher was helped to a considerable extent by double plays early in the game.

Up to the eighth Zahniser yielded only five hits and no runs. With two out in the eighth, Witt, Dugan and Ruth batted in the Hugmen's only two runs. Stanley Harris led the Senators' attack with a double and two singles. Ruth also made three hits, one of them being a two-bagger.

Bush paved the way for the Senators' first run by walking Bluege in the second inning after Judge had been retired. Bluege stole second as Leibold fanned, and scored when Harris hit a slow ball to centre for a single. Harris stole second, but was left with Ruel, who walked, when Zahniser struck out.

Senators Fill Bases.

Peckinpaugh's Texas leaguer in the third was wasted, as Scott was in front of Goslin's terrific liner and Peck was picked off first base by Bush. In the following frame the bases were loaded with Senators, but no runs resulted. A single to left by Judge started it. Bluege walked, and after Leibold and Harris had been disposed of, Zahniser then fanned again.

The Senators gave Bush no trouble in the fifth, but was different in the succeeding session when two runs were scored. Judge opened the frame with a single to centre. Bluege followed with a safety to left and both advanced on Leibold's sacrifice. A Texas leaguer to right by Peckinpaugh scored Judge. Bluege also tallied when Ruel sent Meusel back for a long fly.

Rice's double to centre paved the way for the Senators' fourth run. Witt thumbed Rice's hit to centre and the batter reached third. He scored on Peck's long fly to Witt.

A rap to Scott that Bluege beat out led to the fifth run in the eighth. Bush muffed Leibold's pop fly, but recovered and tossed to Pipp, whose throw forced Bluege at second. Harris sent Leibold to third on a double to centre and the latter tallied when Ruel rammed a single to Scott in deep short.

Double Plays Stop Yankees.

Double plays checked the Yankees in each of the first three frames. Dugan's single over second, with one out in the first, a fly to left by Ruth that fell between Peck and Goslin, and the hitting of Pipp with a pitched ball filled the bases, but Meusel grounded to Bluege for a double play.

Ward's lucky bounder over Peck's head gave him credit for a safety in the second, but Scott rolled into a double play. Peck's drive through the box in the third was nullified when Peck started a dual slug fest at the expense of Dugan.

Ruth drove a long single to centre in the fourth, and, after Pipp fouled out, stole second as Meusel fanned, but was left there when Ward grounded out.

Pipp got no further than first base when he received Zahniser's only pass to open the seventh. Both Hofmann and Bush had been retired in the eighth before the Yankees gave themselves from a shutout. They scored two runs on a triple to left centre by Witt. Dugan's infield single to Peckinpaugh and a three-bagger by Ruth.

Scott got his first after two of his mates had been set down in the ninth. Zahniser then ended it by slipping a third strike over on Hofmann.

HAZLETON ADMITTED TO ATLANTC LEAGUE

Officials Approve Transfer of Bethlehem Franchise—Temporary Schedule Arranged.

Approval of the transfer of the Bethlehem, Pa., club to Hazleton, Pa., and extension of the temporary schedule for another week yesterday occupied representatives of the five clubs of the Atlantic League at a meeting in the office of President John Conway Toole. Lack of public support was given as the reason for the transfer of Bethlehem's franchise, which takes effect tomorrow. Three applications were received for membership in the league, which is seeking a sixth member to round out the circuit. They were from Asbury Park, N. J., and Poughkeepsie and Kingston, N. Y. Action on the applications will be taken at another meeting of the league next Monday, when a permanent schedule for the rest of the season also will be adopted.

SCHANG MAY RETURN TO GAME THIS WEEK

Lugubrious estimates varing from one month to one year regarding the length of time that Wally Schang, catcher of the Yankees, would be out of the game with an injured groin were exposed as exaggerated and false yesterday. Following another examination by surgeons of St. Vincent's Hospital, where Wally is a patient, it was stated on the authority of the doctors that Schang would be in shape to play next Saturday or Sunday, provided that Miller Huggins feels impelled to call on him at that early date.

Reports that the catcher would be operated on for an abscess complication were scored at by the surgeons. The complication has cleared away and Schang is rapidly recovering. But it is not likely that Huggins will press him into service as early as next Saturday or Sunday. The would be pushing matters, and there is no great need for haste. The Yanks are doing tolerably well in the pennant race. Henry Bedrough is catching nicely, even if not hitting the pace of Wally, measurement, and Freddy Hofmann is well enough after his attack of water on the knee to catch in a pinch.

Schang, in fact, is encountering more trouble from the tribe than from the groin injury, which he received from falling on the handle of his bat in Washington on Memorial Day. He hurt his side on the Western trip and his legs are battered and cut by the spiked warriors he met on the road, but even iron will chip slightly under hard usage.

White Sox at Stadium Today.

The able-bodied Yanks will stand by today to repel the first of the Western visitors, who will send the Chicago White Sox to the front for the first storming of the stadium on the Harlem. Being in last place, the minions of Kid Gleason are not saying much, but they gave the Yanks the hardest battle of any Western club on the recent sunset invasion and may repeat, beginning today. Urban Faber and Herb Pennock are slated to do the twirling. The Yanks have lost three straight games, and a good pitcher will give the team a bump that even deeper into their slump.

Following the White Sox will come the Indians, the Browns and the Tigers, in that order and for four games apiece. The invasion ought to give sideline observers a fairly accurate line on what the Westerners are going to do in the little matter of keeping the pennant away from Manhattan.

Social note: Arthur Huston, son of the battling Colonel, will be married tomorrow in Philadelphia, and to be in on the occasion Colonel T. L. will desert the Yankees for the nonce and go to the City of Brotherly Love. After the wedding all the Hustons, including the new young Mrs. Huston, will go to Hot Springs, Ark., for three weeks. Colonel Huston will then come back here for a week before leaving on that grand tour of California.

Giants in Chicago Today.

Getting back to baseball, the Giants begin today a jaunt that may be pregnant with successful possibilities. Opening in Chicago for three games, the champions will then swing to Pittsburgh for four games, to Cincinnati for four and to St. Louis for four, and if they succeed in making a fine showing probably even the most rabid Cincinnatiac will admit to himself (if not publicly) that the race is as good as over. What the Giants will do on the road is the only question still unanswered in the minds of New York fans.

With a lead of eight full games over Pittsburgh and Brooklyn, it will take a lot to reduce the Giants to second place before they get back home on June 22. But the McGrawmen have not been consistent performers in the West, except when a pennant was at stake as in 1921 and 1922, and they may find the Western clubs too strong for them at this stage of the season. Jack Scott's absence may be felt more severely than it has been in the more than two weeks since he fractured his right hand.

BUD LERNER SHOWS FINE PERFORMANCE

HYPERION EARNS BRACKETS

Bud Lerner, the Rancocas Stable's good three-year-old, made his début for the season at Belmont Park yesterday and scored in brilliant fashion. This bay son of The Finn, for which Harry F. Sinclair paid $55,000 to John E. Madden last year, picked up top weight of 124 pounds in the Bayside Handicap at a mile and ran the distance in 1:38 over a muddy track. He gave thirteen pounds to J. S. Dann's Rock View colt Daniel and beat him by half a length. S. McNaughton's Little Colt finishing third, ten lengths back of Daniel. It was a smashing good performance under the conditions and points to Bud Lerner as a strong candidate for the Belmont next Saturday afternoon.

Bud Lerner's stablemate, Zev, also a son of The Finn, and the colt most fancied for the Belmont after his remarkable recent performances, gave the crowd an opportunity to see him in action between the first and second races. With Little Chief, Zev came out for his Belmont gallop. The four-year-old started with him for only three-quarters of a mile, Zev going on for a mile and a quarter in 2:11. Zev appeared in the pink of condition and did not appear a tired horse after his long journey in the mud, and the many horsemen who watched the powerful horse critically pronounced it a fine trial. Zev did the first furlong in 0:12, the quarter in 0:24 4-5, the half in 0:49 1-5, the three-quarters in 1:15 3-5, the mile in 1:42 4-5, and the mile and a quarter in 2:11.

Bud Lerner Rules Favorite.

Only five went to the post in the Bayside Handicap, with Bud Lerner the strong favorite, opening at even and closing at 6 to 5. Daniel being second choice at 12 to 5. The Greentree Stable's Dustabout was also fancied, opening at 6 to 1 and being backed to 18 to 5. Little Colt was held at 7 to 1 and J. E. Widener's Hell Gate at 15 to 1. Sande had the mount on Bud

SOMMER MEDALIST IN MUNICIPAL GOLF

Poinsette a Close Second—Field of Close to 100 Starts at Van Cortlandt Park.

Richard Walsh and C. E. Sommer, junior golfers who represent the Scottish-American Golf Club, were tied for the medal in the qualifying round of the annual municipal links championship, begun under the auspices of the New York Municipal Golf Association at Van Cortlandt Park yesterday. Both players rounded the eighteen holes in 71 strokes, three more than the par of the course calls for. In the play-off for the honor Sommer was the winner, turning in a 75 against Walsh's 77. A field of almost a hundred players competed.

Allan Poinsette of the New York Newspaper Golf Club finished a close second, with a pair of 36s for a 72 total. A stroke in back of him came T. K. Lomas of the Scottish-American, who had a two-stroke margin over J. P. Sahre. The latter withdrew from the match play competition. There were two who had 76s, Howard Juster of Woodhaven and A. Beattie of the Clansmen.

In eighth place, tied at 77, were six players, George Kennedy and B. O. Chilton, unattached; I. Thoren of Brooklyn, F. Flaugh of the Newspaper Club and two Scottish-American linksmen, J. G. Fraser and Joe Ford. Harry Scharff led the 78 group, an 8 at the second hole wrecking his chances so far as the winning of the medal was concerned. Tied with him at that notch were W. Keatley, Newspaper; H. G. Burr, Scottish-American, and A. A. Kittridge and P. Gavin, unattached.

There were four in the 79 division, W. F. Serrick of Gunhill, Hiram Serine of Newspaper and J. Gentile and D. S. Alcott, Scottish-American. The field for the championship division of thirty-two closed at 82, four golfers being tied for the last two places. They were A. Rosenheim and E. Aaron, unattached; J. McCabe of Manhattan and W. F. Farrell of Scottish-American. As a result of the conflict in dates with the metropolitan championship, which opens on Wednesday, some of the players may be forced to withdraw from the event in case they desire to compete in the metropolitan. One of these placed in the choice-making predicament is Harry Scharff.

Walsh, who started out with five consecutive 4s, had a two-stroke lead over Sommer at the first two holes, the latter taking 5s. He had a 5 at the third, however, and a 4 at the sixth, which cost Walsh a 5. Walsh finished out with 3, 4, 5 for a total of 37, while Sommer's figures were 5, 3, 5 for a 36. The latter gained strokes on his opponent at the tenth and fourteenth holes, but got a tie when he negotiated the home hole in 5 to Sommer's 4.

COLOMBES STADIUM TRACK IS READY

Runners Can Now Utilize Course a Year in Advance of the Olympic Games.

PARIS, June 4 (Associated Press).—The running track at the new Colombes Stadium has been completed and is ready for the practice and training of Olympic athletes one year in advance of the date set for the opening of the games. Experts pronounce the track technically perfect.

The work on the stadium itself is progressing according to schedule, and Olympic officials who visited the field yesterday, headed by Baron Pierre de Coubertin, expressed themselves as "very much satisfied." Baron de Coubertin said he believed that the "Olympic village," consisting of about sixty or seventy villas where the athletes of the various nations will live within a stone's throw of the stadium, was indispensable to the success of the games.

"To scatter the athletes over Paris would lead to the worst inconveniences of all kinds," he said.

President Millerand has accepted an invitation to attend a celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of the revival of the Olympics, and will preside at the formal opening.

Two other Americans also played in the tournament. Miss Leslie Bancroft of Boston won from Mrs. Morrison 6—0, 6—1, 6—1. Mrs. Hale was beaten in the second round by Mrs. R. C. Clayton, 6—0, 6—1.

TWELVE AMERICANS ENTERED AT TROON

Field of 222 Golfers to Compete in British Open Championship Next Week.

LONDON, June 4 (Associated Press).—Twelve Americans are among the 222 golfers entered for the British open championship at Troon, Scotland, in which the qualifying rounds, next Monday and Tuesday, will eliminate all but eighty of the entrants. The competitors include 188 professionals and 34 amateurs. The list last year totaled 207. The American entrants are Walter Hagen, holder of the British open championship title; Gene Sarasen, American open champion; Jim Barnes, Pelham Manor, N. Y.; Charles Hoffner, Philadelphia; Johnny Farrell, Quaker Ridge, N. Y.; Tommy Dr. Armour, New York; George Aulbach, Boston; J. Thompson, Richmond, Va.; Macdonald Smith, San Francisco; F. W. Clarke, Asheville, N. C.; Leo Diegel, Washington, and Harry Brown, Mexico City.

Roger Wethered, British amateur champion, and Cyril Tolley, former champion, are the only high-ranking amateurs entered, but almost every professional of note in England and Scotland will compete. The more prominent of these are George Duncan, Abe Mitchell, J. H. Taylor, Ted Ray, Harry Vardon, Alex (Sandy) Herd and James Braid.

The continent is sending some of its best golfers to try for the British title, among them being Aubrey Boomer of St. Cloud, French open champion; Arnaud Massey, former French champion; Jean Gassiat, another French ex-champion, and Angel de la Torre of Madrid.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 4.—The entries for the British open championship which begins next Monday at Troon, has closed with a total of 222.

There is much comment upon the fact that the entry of the famous Scottish-American golfer, Tommy Armour, appears in the draw without the courtesy prefix of "Mr." which is accorded all other amateurs. It is explained in the star that Armour cabled from New York to be entered, but the Royal and Ancient Club stated that if he was entering as an amateur he must do so through the United States Golf Association.

Armour is still a member of the Edinburgh Western Club and cabled for his entry to be made through that club, but the Royal and Ancient Club adhered to its present position that if he entered as an amateur he must do it with the approval of the United States governing body. Armour's entry therefore appears without the prefix which is accorded amateurs, and as from the United States.

The Oxford-Cambridge University tennis team, repeating its visit of two years ago, will sail for this country June 16, according to information received from England yesterday. The collegians are expected to arrive on the Berengaria June 22. They will be captained by J. N. Lowry of Cambridge. From the same school will come also N. D. Horn and C. Ramraswami. J. H. Lizard, A. S. Watt and S. F. Hepburn will compose the Oxford contingent. A. P. Kingsley of Oxford and J. H. Van Alen of Cambridge will sail on a later date, arriving here July 9.

The first group of players, who are expected to compete in the intercollegiate championships, to be played at the Merion Cricket Club in Philadelphia, beginning June 25, will have several days to practice on turf in or near New York before entering the tournament. Following the arrival of Kingsley and Van Elen, the entire Oxford-Cambridge combination will compete in a number of dual matches with various college and tennis club teams throughout the United States and Canada.

It is expected that several of the English collegians will remain in this country and take part in some of the more important U. S. L. T. A. tournaments.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—Golf of which only a champion is capable was played today at Whitemarsh by Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, national women's champion. In the first round of the women's Eastern title event she led one of the most brilliant fields ever entered. To do this she turned in a score of 78, the first total under 80 ever achieved by a woman golfer over the difficult Whitemarsh course.

Her card and par:

Second to Miss Collett at the end of the first round was Miss Alexa Stirling of the metropolitan district, former Atlanta girl, who held the national title five years. Miss Stirling had 37 going out. On the second nine she slipped considerably. In two of the holes she took 7s and made par on only two, taking a 45 coming in, for a total of 82.

DUNWOODIE C. C. IS SOLD.

Golfers Pay $300,000 for 120 Acres of Westchester Land.

Announcement was made yesterday of the purchase of the old Dunwoodie Country Club, one of the oldest golf layouts in the metropolitan district. Golfers, including 140 members of the old club, have purchased the grounds, consisting of 120 acres of land in Westchester County between Yonkers and Mount Vernon. The price was $300,000. The course will be operated as the Dunwoodie Golf Club.

Dunwoodie is seventeen years old and is in excellent condition, especially the greens. It is expected that improvements will be made in the clubhouse and course in the near future, the plan being to lengthen the course. From the standpoint of location, few clubs in the metropolitan district enjoy its advantages. The details of the purchase and reorganization are being carried on by President W. Willard Babcock.

Kumagae Decides to Retire From International Tennis

TOKIO, June 4 (Associated Press).—Ichiya Kumagae, the tennis star, has decided to retire from international contests on advice of his employers at the Mitsui bank. Hereafter he will play only in home matches.

Kumagae ranked from 1916 to 1921, inclusive, among the "first ten" of the United States, where he was a resident during most of that period. He was the first court star from the Orient to flash into international prominence. He was ranked fifth on the American list in 1916, seventh in 1918, third in 1919, fourth in 1920 and seventh in 1921. Through the sensational playing of Kumagae and his compatriot, Zenzo Shimizu, Japan won its way to the challenge round for the Davis Cup in 1921, defeating Australia in the final round, but losing to the United States in the title matches.

INDIA ELIMINATED BY IRISH CUP TEAM

Campbell and McCrea Defeat Fyzee and Jacob in International Tennis Singles.

DUBLIN, June 4.—(Associated Press.)—Ireland came from behind today and put India out of the running for the Davis Cup through the brilliant playing of her lawn tennis stars, Cecil Campbell and Dr. E. D. McCrea. Starting the day with the score two matches to one in favor of the visitors, Campbell defeated Dr. A. H. Fyzee, representing India, in straight sets, 6-4, 7-5, 6-2, and Dr. McCrea won even more decisively from S. M. Jacob of India at 6-4, 6-3, 6-4. Ireland thus qualifies to meet France in the semi-final round of the European competition.

Campbell played an almost faultless game, timing his shots nicely and placing them accurately. In the afternoon match McCrea also gave a fine exhibition. His service was powerful, he covered all sorts of territory and put plenty of variety into his game, leaving Jacob standing time after time with drop shots. Jacob's service was good, but he failed to follow it and finish off the returns at the net.

TEN SURVIVE JUNIOR TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Orser and Einsmann Among Those to Advance in Metropolitan Title Play.

Thirty-three contenders for the metropolitan junior lawn tennis championship began play yesterday on the courts of the New York Tennis Club, Broadway and 238th Street. By nightfall the field had been reduced to ten, with all but two of the brackets filled in the round before the semi-finals. Horace Orser, semi-finalist in the national indoor junior title event last Winter, and William Einsmann are among the outstanding competitors.

Both went through their two rounds yesterday with little opposition, the former defeating R. Sawtelle at 6—3, 6—0, and J. S. Millen at 6—2, 6—2, while Einsmann allowed both H. W. Hertzmann and H. H. Brinckerhoff but one game each. Orser's play was perhaps the more impressive of the two. The Stuyvesant High School star's beautiful forehand drives found openings again and again, and at the net he finished off his opponent's weak returns of his forcing shots with the greatest of ease. Russell Phillips experienced difficulty in eliminating Carl Schuster, who carried him to 6—2, 6—4.

The summaries:

Second Round—Russell Phillips defeated Carl Schuster, 6—2, 6—4; Chester Muller defeated Howard Miller, 6—3, 6—3; Wilson B. Reed defeated S. Daniel Denker, 7—5, 6—3; A. G. TILDEN DEFEATS MURRAY.

Tennis Stars Play Exhibitions at Opening of Ottawa Courts.

OTTAWA, June 4.—Local tennis enthusiasts witnessed tennis of high calibre this afternoon, when William T. Tilden 2d, Samuel Hardy, R. Lindley Murray of Niagara Falls and Willard Crocker, Ontario champion, played singles and doubles exhibitions at the official opening of the Ottawa Tennis and Bowling Club's courts. Tilden and Murray met in singles, the former winning at 6—3, 6—4, 8—1. In the doubles, Hardy and Murray won from Tilden and Crocker, 4—6, 6—2, 6—3. Rain fell during part of the time, and made the courts heavy. Despite this handicap, the men played fast tennis.

KASHIO IS DEFEATED BY DR. ROSENBAUM

BODKIN ALSO IS BEATEN

Seiichiro Kashio, of the Japanese Davis Cup team, the defending title holder in the Brooklyn championship, was eliminated from the tournament being staged on the courts of the Terrace-Kings County Tennis Association yesterday, when he was defeated by Dr. William Rosenbaum of this city in the third round. The score was 6—3, 1—6, 6—3. The first set of the match was played on Sunday, rain causing a halt and a postponement until yesterday. A second seeded star passed from the competition when Royal D. Richey, who is running the tourney, defeated Philip O. Bodkin in three evenly contested sets at 4—6, 6—4, 6—4.

In spite of the thunderstorm that flooded the grounds on Sunday, the Terrace courts were in excellent shape by 4 o'clock in the afternoon, thanks to the industry of the Tournament Committee and the ground keepers, and by nightfall the field was further reduced by thirty. Of the original entry of 172 but twenty-five are left in the play, an achievement in three days that is in keeping with the fine record established in the championship last year.

It was Dr. Rosenbaum's aggressiveness and speed that enabled him to get the better of Kashio, in spite of the steadiness of the Nipponese from the back court. The New York man, realizing that he could not hope to get the better of the other in a baseline driving duel, after losing the second set at 6—1, made his way to the net at every opportunity in the third, and there performed in a manner that was highly effective. His acutely angled volleys to alternate corners of the court taxed the strength of Kashio to the utmost, and most of the efforts of the Nipponese went for naught.

Dr. Rosenbaum was never content to play safely for the points. He realized that he must earn them with hard, well-placed shots. He forced the issue every minute of the third set, driving deep and to the alternate corners and paving the way for his rushes to the net and the finishing strokes. Kashio did not always remain in the back court. He came forward frequently and his work at close quarters was of a high character also. But he was not quite as steady as Dr. Rosenbaum in the exchanges at short range, nor did he find the openings as frequently.

Richey's Speed Strong Factor.

In the case of Richey, it was speed, and more speed, that won for him against Bodkin. The Terrace man was the aggressor all the way, hitting hard and taking all the chances and backing up his forcing shots at the net in clean-cut fashion. Bodkin's beautifully placed returns frequently caught the other out of position, but Richey was never discouraged and maintained the same tactics right up to the finish. So close was the play that the outcome was never evident until the concluding strokes, all three of the sets being decided by the margin of a single break.

S. Howard Voshell of the Pomonok Country Club, the ranking player in the tournament, encountered severe opposition in his match with Caspar H. Nannes, which he won at 6—4, 6—4. The latter played on even terms with the Long Island man all the way, driving off the forehand in impressive manner, showing an effective service, both on the first and second ball, and performing at the net in a manner that was unusually fine. For eight straight games in the first set service counted, until the first and only break came in the ninth, which Voshell won, after which he made his delivery effective in the tenth for the set.

So much speed did both men have on their service balls that the best the receiver could hope ordinarily to do was to get back a defensive return. Nannes erred frequently off Voshell's sharp breaking ball, while the Long Island man occasionally got across a fast return at the feet of Nannes as the latter came in behind his service. These returns, which went usually for aces, made Nannes a bit careful about going forward unless he saw the way clear to get in time. Whenever he reached his objective his work was of a brilliant nature. Time and again he took the other's returns out of the air and sent them back with crossing volley shots that Voshell could not reach. When Voshell shot the ball back wide of him, Nannes leaped to make his stroke and, in spite of the awkwardness of his position, showed fine restraint in dropping the ball over the net with a neat stop volley. It was stealing Jove's own thunder.

Voshell Brilliant at Net.

Voshell met this display of pyrotechnics at the net with some equally brilliant short court work on his own part. Following in behind his service he scored quickly in his accustomed manner with widely angled volleys that caught the other far out of position. The Long Island men came near breaking through in the fifth game, when he led at 30—0, but Nannes took the next three points with his best exhibition of volleying in the match and finally pulled out the game.

The second set was a repetition of the first, with both men playing hard, clean tennis of a character that brought forth repeated expressions of appreciation from the gallery. It was an exceptionally good showing for Nannes, and his playing won much favorable comment.

DEMPSEY RESUMES WORK FOR GIBBONS

SHOWS SOME STIFFNESS

Special to The New York Times.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., June 4.—Spirited exercising which included punching the light bag, shadow boxing and slamming the heavy sandbag suspended from a beam above the centre of the ring constituted the workout for Jack Dempsey here this afternoon when the world's heavyweight champion resumed training in preparation for the defense of his title against Tom Gibbons of St. Paul at Shelby on July 4.

Rain caused a curtailment of the title holder's outdoor work. As a consequence he was forced indoors and sparring was eliminated.

Today's workout was mainly for the purpose of loosening up his muscles, which were slightly stiffened as a result of a week of idleness. He was not so nimble on his legs as usual, his surprising resilience and almost terpsichorean lightness being missing as he danced about in shadow boxing and plunged in, ripping and tearing at the heavy sandbag. Such defects as he showed, however, are of a nature which can be remedied with a few days of work. No one at the camp, least of all Dempsey or Kearns, is worried. In fact, quite the contrary is the case.

"I never saw the champion in better trim at this stage of his training before a bout," said Kearns during the workout, as he looked with unconcealed admiration at Dempsey. "The bout is a month away, four long weeks, and yet I am sure that with a few days of exercising and sparring Jack will be prepared to enter the ring against any man. The champion has matured to an extent that will surprise those who have not seen him stripped for action since the Carpentier bout.

"The time he spent in the mountainous country about Salt Lake City has hardened him considerably. His health is all that could be desired. If he felt any better he would be abnormal. His spirit is high. These are the indications which I want to see in him. They satisfy me that his condition is satisfactory, that he is approaching the fighting edge."

Automobiles Clog Road.

A small crowd made the journey out to the converted Great Falls Park to see Dempsey in action. It came in automobiles which clogged the road about the entrance to the camp. Inside the indoor training quarters the crowd did not fill the place. There was plenty of room for more. But the rain had a deterrent effect on the enthusiasm of others who had planned to witness the champion in his return to training.

Dempsey started his exercising with three rounds of punching the light bag. The rat-a-tat-tat of the inflated leather encased rubber echoed over the training camp, even above the patter of the rain which fell almost without letup during the champion's workout. Dempsey went through this exercise of nine minutes without any indication of arm weariness.

Brushing away the perspiration from his forehead and arms, Dempsey stepped eagerly into his big indoor ring and for three rounds engaged in shadow boxing. Then the champion tackled the heavy sandbag for the equivalent of three rounds and with wicked rights and lefts broke the seams on the side of the gymnasium piece. Dempsey closed his workout with a steady bombardment on the stuffed bag while Timer Luvatis sought with the strength of his compact little body to keep the bag stationary. But the champion's punches kept the bag in motion and several time almost lifted Luvatis off his feet. Then Dempsey chased off through the rain for the house and a rubdown.

The workouts for Dempsey for the rest of the week probably will be confined to this loosening up exercise. Manager Kearns declared that sparring would be limited for the champion until he enters the closing two weeks of his preparation.

Dempsey got in his customary road work, a combination of running and hiking, this morning before the rain started, and for the rest of the time before luncheon and between the noon meal and training time at 3 o'clock, occupied himself playing pinochle. It is only consistent to record here that the champion played up to his camp standard. In the parlance of the card table devotees, Jack "gave the party."

Lively Sparring Exhibition.

The assembled boxing enthusiasts were treated to lively sparring exhibitions among Dempsey's camp partners following the champion's workout. The staff has been augmented by the addition of Frankie Grandetta, Portland flyweight, who probably will be signed soon under the management of Jack Kearns, for a series of bouts in the East. Kearns is impressed with the ability of the youngster and is planning to take him East in quest of a match against Pancho Villa, Philippine flyweight sensation.

Grandetta boxed two spirited rounds with Billy Wells, and then Wells went two rounds with Frank Powers and George Godfrey, negro heavyweight, followed by a two-round clash between Joe Benjamin and Lee Moore, lightweight and featherweight, respectively. Wells, while assisting in the preparations of Dempsey for the world's heavyweight title scrap, is himself in training for ring work in this section of the country before Independence Day. The English welterweight has been matched for a bout in Butte on June 14 against Joe Simonich, and for a bout here against Pete Bross on June 30.

Negotiations also were started this afternoon for a bout in which Joe Benjamin would engage Bobby Harper, Portland welterweight, in Portland, on June 20. An effort also is being made to close a match for Frank Powers, New York middleweight, who is assisting in Dempsey's preparation for the Gibbons battle.

Champion's Father Expected.

Johnny Dempsey, brother of the champion, left camp this afternoon to visit the home of Dempsey's folks in Salt Lake City. The younger Dempsey plans to return in about a week in company with the champion's father. The titleholder has been cheered with favorable reports of his father's health, and is looking forward eagerly to having his parent with him. According to present plans, Dempsey Senior will remain with his son until after the Gibbons bout. Bernard Dempsey, another brother of the champion, who left here Saturday for home, is expected to return within a fortnight.

Local distribution of fight tickets will get started tomorrow, it was announced this afternoon by L. E. Jones, Secretary of the Commercial Club. Jones made the trip to Shelby and returned with the Great Falls quota of pasteboards, which have been expected for the last week.

Jack Burke, Pittsburgh boxer, who is a sparring partner of Jack Dempsey, and Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul boxer, will be rivals in the semi-final bout to the Dempsey-Gibbons battle if present plans materialize. Jack Kearns today announced that this match was practically closed. Kearns said the bout would be scheduled for ten or twelve rounds. Burke is the former national amateur light-heavyweight champion, and has been boxing in the professional ranks for more than a year. Delaney is well thought of in this section of the country. He recently gave Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight champion, a spirited battle in Chicago.

American Trainer Receives Damages on 'Dope' Charges

PARIS, June 4.—William Flatman, American horse trainer, whose license was withdrawn last July upon charges that he had "doped" a horse, today received damages of 20,000 francs against the Racing Society. It was shown in court that the evidence upon which his license was withdrawn was not conclusive. The court, however, was unable to restore the license, as this prerogative lies solely with the society.

SHELBY MAN BUYS 220 RINGSIDE SEATS

SHELBY, Mont., June 4.—Another unusually heavy rain here today failed to interfere materially with the preparations for the Dempsey-Gibbons bout on July 4. Work on the great wooden bowl which will be the scene of the contest went ahead without interruption, and building in the town was abandoned during the severest part of the storm only. The major part of Shelby's $50,000 ticket allotment was distributed during the day and checks or cash received in return.

The individual purchases here ranged from 6 to 220 ringside tickets. L. C. Stevenson, a pioneer oil man and President of the Sunburst Oil and Gas Company, was the largest buyer. He gave a check for $12,100 and in return carried away 220 $50 seats plus the $5 war tax. There were several other individuals who subscribed for as many as 100 ringside chairs.

With the framework of the big arena in place and most of the flooring laid, some idea may be formed as to how it will look when the gates open on the morning of July 4. Nothing like it ever has been built west of the Mississippi. The distance around the eight-sided wooden bowl is 1,710 feet and it is 558 feet across at its widest place.

There will be thirty-two entrances, four on each side the octagon, and the gates are so arranged that not one of them will have to accommodate more than 2,500 persons. Most of the inner gates will be served by inclines, but there will be steps leading up from the outside of the arena to care for ticket-holders in the back rows. It has been suggested that holders of the general admission tickets will be able to see almost as well as those at the ringside because of the fine atmospheric conditions which prevail here.

Vision Unobstructed.

Shelby has an elevation of 3,000 feet and there will be no factory smoke to trouble the general admission customers. It is possible on clear days to see across the Canadian line, thirty miles away, from the heights overlooking Shelby. The seats in the gallery also will be closer to the ring than in Tex Rickard's famous arena at Boyle's Thirty Acres, so that those in the back rows will not need field glasses to follow the tide of battle.

The proper gate number is stamped on each ticket and no one will be able to get in the wrong runway. Each ticket will be checked three times. Federal officers will check them at the outer gate, aisle ushers at the next and section ushers at the last one. All in all, the necessary details seem to have been carefully looked after and there should be no confusion, even though a crowd of 40,000 will be unique in this part of the country. Present indications are that the gathering will be the most colorful in the history of boxing. Followers of the world will rub elbows with the blanketed redmen of the bad lands.

Manager Eddie Kane made a flying trip to the Blackfoot Reservation at Browning, Mont., this afternoon, to present Chief Many Tail Feathers, head of the tribe, with a ringside ticket. The chief and all his braves are said to have petitioned the Federal Government at Washington for permission to attend the big show. Five hundred of these original Americans will pitch camp here in Shelby during the latter part of June to take part in the rodeo, which opens on June 25 and closes July 5.

Plan Big Roundup.

Ray Knight, promoter of the now famous rodeo at Saskatoon, Canada, will have charge of the roundup and stampede, and he has offered thousands of dollars in prize money to attract the leading riders and ropers of the world here. Shelby intends that there shall be no lack of excitement when her visitors arrive.

Word was received here from Promoter Mike Collins late this evening that 2,000 seats, 500 of them ringside, had been sold in Spokane. Collins and Mayor Jim Johnson were due to reach Seattle tonight.

Manager Kane has notified Tommy Gibbons to start for Shelby as soon as possible, and the challenger probably will leave St. Paul tomorrow and arrive here Wednesday. Kane plans to have everything in readiness for Gibbons to start training immediately.

GIBBONS LEAVES TODAY.

St. Paul Friends Plan Send-Off for Dempsey's Challenger.

WHITE BEATS EDWARDS.

Albany Boxer Outpoints Harlem Rival in Oakland A. C. Feature.

In a bout that went the scheduled twelve rounds at the Oakland A. C. in Jersey City last night Jabez White of Albany defeated Danny Edwards of Harlem. This was a mixed contest, Edwards being a colored bantamweight. Notwithstanding the rain, which did not let up until nearly 8 o'clock, a large crowd was present to see the opening show of the season at the Oakland club.

The bout between White and Edwards was full of action from the sound of the bell in the opening round. Edwards immediately showed to advantage. He took the first two rounds, after which White began to get into his stride, having the better of the third. The fourth was even. In all the succeeding rounds the Albany boxer appeared to have the better of the argument. Each weighed 119 pounds.

MISS STARACE WINS RACE.

Miss Theresa Starace, enjoying an allowance of nine seconds, won the 100-yard handicap race for women at the opening of the Municipal Swimming Pool in Brooklyn last night, defeating Miss Lillian Stoddart, 9 seconds, and Miss Gertrude Ederle, scratch, who finished second and third, respectively. The winner's time was 1:17 1-5.

In the 100-yard scratch race for men Ranger Mills of the New York A. C. defeated Harold Florence and George Fisler, both of the Boys' Club. His time was 0:58 3-5.

The 150-yard medley race for men went to Florence. Fredinand Ehrlich of the New York A. C. was second.

CRIQUI ARRANGES EXHIBITION TOUR

By The Associated Press.

Eugene Criqui, France's new pugilistic idol, who toppled the veteran Johnny Kilbane from the world's featherweight throne Saturday at the Polo Grounds, has arranged a five weeks' exhibition tour of New York State and New England before defending his newly won title against Johnny Dundee, New York challenger. This announcement was made yesterday by Criqui's manager, Robert Eudeline, who said details of the trip would be completed tomorrow.

Tex Rickard has entered the field as a bidder for the Criqui-Dundee bout. The promoter informed Eudeline yesterday that he was prepared to make him an offer, but the latter declared he would give first consideration to the proposition of Tom O'Rourke, Polo Grounds matchmaker, who staged the championship bout Saturday.

O'Rourke has not made the Frenchman a definite offer as yet, but it was understood he was ready to promote another featherweight title match on July 26 or Aug. 4 at the Giants' ball park.

"O'Rourke gave Criqui his chance to win the championship, and I feel obligated to sign for a Dundee match with him, and particularly to give him a chance to recoup financial losses on the Kilbane fight," declared Eudeline.

CRIQUI AND KILBANE RECEIVE THEIR MONEY

Eugene Criqui, the new featherweight champion, and Johnny Kilbane, the dethroned champion, paid a visit to the office of Tom O'Rourke yesterday and received their pay for their work at the Polo Grounds last Saturday afternoon. Matchmaker O'Rourke gave out no official statement on the receipts and said he probably would have it ready this afternoon. So the exact sum paid to Criqui and Kilbane will not be made known until the official statement is released.

After Criqui received his money he departed for Manhassett, L. I., his training quarters, to take a short rest. Kilbane, however, was kept quite busy. It was learned yesterday that on Saturday morning Kilbane was served with a summons to appear in court this morning to answer to a suit for $1,000 brought by a citizen of Summit, N. J. It appears that Kilbane originally had planned to do his training at Summit but changed his plans upon his arrival here and went to Philadelphia Jack O'Brien's gymnasium. The New Jersey complainant alleges that $1,000 was spent in equipping the property as a training quarters for Kilbane.

The former champion asserts that he never contracted to train at Summit. It developed, however, that Joe Brannigan, New York representative for Kilbane, selected Summit for Kilbane to train before the former champion left Cleveland. As soon as Kilbane visited Summit after his arrival here he is said to have refused to train there. A friend of the Clevelander said that Johnny thought he was to train at Freddy Welsh's health farm at Summit, but discovered that the training quarters selected for him was just across the road.

Kilbane would make no statement yesterday, but Brannigan spoke as follows: "I never signed with the Summit people for Johnny to train there. I merely told them that the place looked good to me, but it would be necessary to wait until Kilbane arrived before a final decision could be reached. I was surprised when Johnny received the summons last Saturday. Yes, I will accompany Johnny to court tomorrow morning."

Jimmy Wilde started active work yesterday for his fifteen-round bout for the world's flyweight championship, which will be held at the Polo Grounds on the afternoon of June 16 against Pancho Villa, the former American champion. Wilde is doing his training in Jersey City. Frankie Burns, the former star bantam and featherweight, is assisting Wilde. The little Englishman boxed four rounds yesterday.

Villa is doing his training at Pompton Lake, N. J. He has been working for the last week, but will start the real training grind tomorrow.

Matchmaker O'Rourke said yesterday that he received $1,000 from Pete Herman to back Wilde in the coming bout. O'Rourke said that Herman's message read as follows: "Wilde had me beaten up until the time I knocked him out. He is a great fighter. I want to back him against Villa."

MARTIN TO BOX COLETTI.

Meet at Commonwealth Saturday—Special Show Tomorrow.

Two boxing shows will be held at the Commonwealth Sporting Club this week. A special show consisting of ten four-round bouts will be staged tomorrow night. The pairings follow:—Harry Getzel vs. Ray Noonan, Danny Farrell vs. Nick Quagerilli, Otto Goldberg vs. Sid Terries, Lew Snyder vs. Tommy Schiff, Sammy Bienfield vs. Billy Green, Joe Wright vs. Harry Shapiro, Sid Bert vs. Sammy Stearns, Willie Clarke vs. Supper Cohen, Johny Lustig vs. Joe Lumbardi, and Pete Laibeck vs. Abe Becker.

Two twelve-round bouts with featherweights featured will be the attraction for Saturday night. Terry Martin of this city meets Joe Coletti or Poughkeepsie in one feature, and Charley Pilkington of Harlem opposes Kid Butler of New Orleans in the other. Carl Dunne will face Charley (Phil) Rosenberg in a special bout.

LEE BOXES NABLE TONIGHT.

Danny Lee, Harlem bantamweight, and Sammy Nable of the east side will meet in the twelve-round feature bout at the Queensboro Stadium tonight. Nable and Lee met before and the winner of tonight's clash hopes to get a bout with Joe Lynch for the bantamweight championship. Sammy Cohen and Buck Josephs, flyweights, will be seen in another twelve-round encounter. Artie O'Leary, one-time star lightweight, will celebrate his return to the ring tonight after a long absence by engaging Willie Angelo, a rugged athlete. Two other bouts will complete the program.

TODD BEATS RATNER FOR ENGLISH TITLE

LONDON, June 5. (Associated Press).—Roland Todd tonight defeated Augie Ratner of New York on points in a twenty round boxing contest for the middleweight championship of England.

The Referee's decision came as a surprise to many of the spectators, who greeted it with shouts of disapproval. Todd landed the greater number of blows, but those of Ratner seemed much the harder. Ratner showed a great surprise when the verdict of the Referee was given against him.

Todd floored Ratner for an instant in the second round. This was the only knockdown in the fight. The Englishman had a slight advantage over the American in the first half of the bout. In the thirteenth round Ratner opened a cut on Todd's right eyebrow, and during the remainder of the fight always was playing for the damaged spot.

There was good milling in the seventeenth and eighteenth round, with honors even. In the nineteenth Ratner landed three hard rights and lefts to Todd's head without a return from the Englishman. Both men finished strong.

McKEE WINS NAVY SWORD.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, June 4.—The sword of the Navy Athletic Association, presented to the best athlete of the year, has been won by Midshipman Ira C. McKee, of Pennsylvania. McKee is Captain of the basketball team for next year, back on the football eleven and a regular on the nine. The award is of special note as it is only the second time that the sword has been won by any but a member of the graduating class, McKee being a second class man.

Harry A. Bolles of Washington State, crew captain and stroke and tackle on the eleven, will have his name on the Thompson Cup as having done the most to promote athletics during the year.

These captains of athletic teams have been elected for next year: Baseball, Dale Harris, Pennsylvania; field and track, Thomas A. Huckins, Missouri; tennis, C. A. Hartwig, Michigan.

BROOKINS MAY MEET TAYLOR

BOSTON, June 4.—Major Fred W. Moore, graduate treasurer of the Harvard Athletic Association, today wired an invitation to Charles Brookins, Iowa's star hurdler, to compete in the Harvard handicap meet at the Stadium Saturday. If he accepts, an interesting 220-yard low hurdle contest should develop, for J. Coard Taylor of Princeton already has entered the Harvard games. A week ago Taylor won the Eastern Intercollegiate title in 23 4-5 seconds after taking second honors in the 440-yard run. Last Saturday Brookins twice lowered the world's low hurdle record, eventually to 23 1-5 seconds. The Princeton star will not compete in the National Collegiate games in Chicago June 16, hence the only chance for the champions of the East and West to meet will be at the Stadium.

ARMY WINS AT LACROSSE.

SHIP LIQUOR REGULATIONS.

After nearly five weeks' study the Treasury Department has issued a long and complicated set of regulations, in accordance with the decision of the Supreme Court, making all vessels, foreign and domestic, dry within our territorial waters, excepting, of course, the Philippines and the Panama Canal Zone. Mr. WAYNE B. WHEELER of the Anti-Saloon League is notoriously hard to please; but he finds the new Treasury regulations "airtight." Mr. MELLON is a wise and tolerant man, who took ample note of the protests of seven foreign Governments against our legislation conflicting with the laws of some, the customs of others and with a habit of the comity of nations asserted in the past by our State Department; but the Supreme Court has declared the law, and it must be obeyed until it is changed. After 12:01 A. M. June 10 no vessel may enter or leave an American port with liquor for other than medicinal and sacramental purposes.

The only ray of hope for the dissolute wine-bibbers of Europe is found in the section, with its characteristic bureaucratic "Form 1539" and "Form 1410A," which ordains that the medical officer of the Public Health Service—these officers are the new lords of medicinal liquor—to whom application according to the form has been made, is ordinarily to decide according to his wisdom "what "supply of liquor (if any) is needed "for medicinal purposes by such "vessel," yet

> If it be shown that such vessel is, or during its next voyage will be, required by the laws of a foreign country to carry medicinal liquor in any specified kind and amount, the certificate of medicinal need, on Form 1539, will be made to cover such kind and not less than such amount of liquor.

Observe, however, that for a five-gallon permit the master must apply to the State Prohibition Director.

And will the foreign nations whose laws compel their vessels to carry a specified amount of wine or liquor as rations for the crews, and brought in hitherto as part of their sea stores, change their laws so as to turn the ration into the same amount of medicinal liquor? It seems doubtful that they will be content with any such roundabout way of securing what they believe to be their right. While a merchant vessel may bring in liquor as cargo or sea stores, a master who brings in liquor for non-beverage purposes or sacramental purposes, as he asserts, but without a permit, "may "be allowed to retain a reasonable "quantity until" he "has had a fair "opportunity to obtain either a per-"mit or a certificate of medicinal "need, or otherwise satisfy the re-"quirements of the prohibition law "and regulations. Liquor removed "as being an excess of such reasonable "quantity may be returned to such "vessel if a permit or certificate of "medicinal need, which would au-"thorize its possession, be subse-"quently obtained." Otherwise it will be seized.

Presumably the courts will have to decide what "a reasonable quantity" is, and there might be infinite review of the decisions of the Public Health Service medical officers. Anyway, all must pity the poor devils of masters, floundering in a waste of applications and certificates and copies and rubber stamps, and driven from pillar to post, from the medical officer to the State Prohibition Director and the Federal Prohibition Director. Still, nobody can tell how the regulations will work. The makers of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act can't have foreseen or desired these petty vexatious interferences with our friends and customers. Congress ought to end them; but it is probably vain to expect common sense from it in this matter. Most Republican and most Democratic Congressmen are likely to outshout one another in the effort to prove that Codlin, not Short, is the true passionate lover of prohibition for political purposes.

TOO MUCH ADAMS.

Chairman ADAMS of the Republican National Committee may think that he is magnifying his office. In reality he is distorting and degrading it. No predecessor of his would ever have dreamed of trying to do what Mr. ADAMS is attempting. Neither QUAY nor HANNA, neither CORTELYOU nor HAYS, ever took it into his head to lay down the policy of the Republican Party, both foreign and domestic. Chairman ADAMS not only sets about this, but does it in an offensive and intolerable manner. He arrays himself against the President, and seeks to hamper or hamstring the program of the Administration. This may seem to him very clever and enterprising, but to the Republican Party itself it seems divisive, dangerous and altogether insupportable.

This thing cannot go on. Some way must be found to clap an extinguisher upon the irregular and usurping Republican Chairman. President HARDING is reported to have said that it is not for him either to contradict or affirm what the mere head of a political committee may say. But some one, acting for the Administration, must speedily take hold of the affair, lest it grow to an even greater party scandal than it is today. Unless Mr. ADAMS suddenly acquires wisdom enough to suppress himself, the true party leaders must discover means to suppress him.

AN UNFORTUNATE CONTROVERSY.

It is not conducive to morale in the New York National Guard when the personnel of the divisional staff is so critical of the appointment of a new commander that most of the officers send in their resignations, or let it be known that they will follow their old chief into retirement. The State National Guard lost a high type of soldier when Major Gen. O'RYAN resigned to devote himself to his duties on the Transit Commission. Adjt. Gen. CHARLES W. BERRY, his successor, is not a graduate of the Army War College, as General O'RYAN was, but nevertheless BERRY distinguished himself in France as Lieutenant Colonel of the 105th Regiment (the old Seventh) of the Twenty-seventh Division. He was cited for "cour-"age, determination and energy in "battle" and rated by the War Department as a "successful, efficient and highly able officer." As Adjutant General, by appointment of Governor SMITH, it fell to him to reorganize the Guard in accordance with the provisions of the National Defense act. If General BERRY did not do his work well, his fellow-officers maintained reticence. It was not until he was appointed commander of the division that the deeps murmured. His qualifications for the greater responsibility were doubted, but anonymously. It was said that he had not enjoyed the advantages of training in a special army school. He was held accountable for the belief of Governor SMITH that the Guard had deteriorated in morale and discipline during the last two years.

General BERRY was a candidate for Controller in 1920, when the Harding landslide buried the Democratic ticket. Recently he was Chairman of the Kings County Democratic Committee. Perhaps these associations explain a fear that the Guard under General BERRY as its commander may suffer from internal politics. That did not happen when General O'RYAN entered upon his duties, although those opposed to his appointment declared that it was political. The benefit of the doubt should be given General BERRY.

Is the opposition to the new commander of the Guard a temperamental expression of loyalty to General O'RYAN, or is it due to a deep-seated concern for the welfare of the organization? There is plainly resentment because Brig. Gen. JAMES W. LESTER, acting commander in the last two years, was passed over after long and meritorious service. He has elected to resign, although near the retirement age. His friends believe that he had earned the highest post in the Guard. There seems to be no doubt that General LESTER'S action was in the nature of a protest. It is to be observed that Lieut. Col. EDWARD OLMSTED, who was First Assistant Chief of Staff of the Twenty-seventh Division in France—he, too, has resigned—takes issue with General BERRY'S view that staff resignations addressed to an incoming commanding officer are a military courtesy. Colonel OLMSTED says that that is not the case with the higher staff officers:

> For them to resign their commissions merely because of a change of their commanding officer would be a ridiculous absurdity, unless there were other and more impelling reasons for their withdrawal from the service.

Here is an implication that there is a good military reason why higher officers of General O'RYAN'S staff declined to serve with his successor. Colonel OLMSTED maintains that the Guard under the command of General LESTER, assisted by regular army officers, was never more efficient, with greater strength by 9,000 men and improved morale. The controversy does not look like a tempest in a teapot. Mystery will do the Guard no good. If Adjt. Gen. BERRY'S record was of such a character as to raise doubts of his qualifications for the high command, the facts should be brought out. If it can be shown that as adviser to the Governor he wronged any officer or unit, let his critics declare themselves. If the opposition to General BERRY is due to envy and resentment, there should be no difficulty in making that clear. If political influence procured his appointment, the proof should be forthcoming. Nothing could be worse for the Guard than a perpetual feud.

THE KENT ANNIVERSARY.

In his commemorative address on Chancellor KENT at Columbia University last night, Secretary HUGHES had a congenial theme and dealt with it in a manner at once instructive and pleasing. Without too burdensome detail, he traced the growth of JAMES KENT from his humble beginnings to the attainment of his world-wide reputation as a writer on law and a Judge. Nor did the Secretary fail to draw from the ancient arsenal of the Chancellor weapons fit for use in modern warfare. Mr. HUGHES brought out, for example, the fact that KENT, eight years before MARSHALL'S famous decision in Marbury against Madison, laid down the doctrine that legislative acts in violation of constitutional provisions "ought to be absolutely null and void." Moreover, he held that it was the "fit and exclusive province of the courts of justice" to determine whether any law under challenge was constitutionally valid.

Referring to KENT'S labors as an expositor of the law, Secretary HUGHES showed how the problem has changed since KENT'S day. Then there were almost no law reports. Now they swarm in overwhelming numbers. The Courts then handed down few opinions; today, asserts Mr. HUGHES, "there are far too many." No one man can codify or expound the immense mass of judicial decisions in the United States. It would take a hundred Kents to do it. But the bar of the United States through an able committee has set about "the colos-"sal but necessary task of the sys-"tematic, scientific statement of the "principles of the law."

Secretary HUGHES passed lightly over the political opinions and experiences of Chancellor KENT. He was an ingrained conservative who held to the need of a property qualification for the suffrage. At times he was much cast down by the unexpected working of democracy in this country, and even had his moments of discouragement in regard to the Supreme Court of the United States. With something like grim humor, Mr. HUGHES quotes what KENT wrote to Justice STORY on the latter's retirement: "What a "succession of great and estimable "men have you witnessed as Asso-"ciates since you ascended the Bench! "Now what a melancholy mass it "presents!"

Concluding his address on the note of the vital importance of the judicial power in the American system, Secretary HUGHES asked a question which is too seldom considered so seriously as it should be by those who have the appointing or nominating power:

> Who is more entitled to honor than the incorruptible, learned, industrious, impartial Judge? Amid the play of favoritism, the abuses of administrative discretion, the compromises of legislative halls, amid chicanery and dishonesty, disrespect of law and efforts to subvert its enforcement, he stands forth, dependable and steadfast, alike to the rich and poor, weak and strong—the righteous and courageous Judge, the fit representative of democracy commanding its best talent for the performance of its highest function.

THE LITTERED PARKS.

"We should worry!" very likely expresses the sentiment of most of those who leave papers in the parks. The early comers find it easy to think that their mess won't hurt, and the late arrivals, seeing that thousands have left refuse lying about, fall back on the old excuse, "Everybody else has done it, so why shouldn't we?" The result is that the parks—all of them—are now indescribably untidy. It is reported that after Memorial Day more than four tons of litter were cleared out of Prospect Park alone. Certainly a mountain of rubbish can be gathered in Central Park after each holiday. Dr. WILLIAM T. HORNADAY, speaking with the bitterness of twenty years of fighting against this evil, compares those who defile the parks with swine, favorably to the latter, and calls for the creation of a special park police to make them behave. This is one recourse. Another is to provide more and larger receptacles for rubbish. A third is to institute a campaign of education, which can perhaps best be worked through the schools. The children, generally following the example of their elders, are utterly careless and naturally irresponsible. The elders are usually thoughtless or indifferent. If through the schools the children can be given to understand the advantages of clearing up, they may influence the grown-ups.

The mess cannot be left to park officials to clean up. It is necessary to prevent the spreading of rubbish. That it can be done may be seen from the condition of the parks in some of the European cities—notably Paris and Vienna—which are kept in the neatest possible condition and where there is even greater liberty than in New York. In the Bois de Boulogne, outside of Paris, where thousands of Parisian families spend the entire day, there is little or no vandalism. The principal reason for this is, of course, that the reckless spirit does not exist there. The parks are accepted as public recreation grounds and the people have a sense of responsibility for their good order. The same is true in Vienna, where not only the Wienerwald but also the smaller Prater are kept clean through the co-operation of the public.

Not a few but a great many more rubbish containers are needed. Although in theory picnickers should cart away the remains of their meal and their newspapers and boxes, it is too much to expect them to take them home. Without places to throw things it is almost inevitable that people will leave them on the ground. There must also be, as Dr. HORNADAY suggests, park police specially detailed to patrol the popular spots in the parks, not so much to clean up as to warn litterers. Nothing except education can bring home to the individual that he has a very personal responsibility in gathering up his trash and putting it properly in the containers. With such a system once under way it might be possible to create several show places where side by side would be a littered area and a properly policed area, so that all who visited the parks might see for themselves the difference.

Upon the city authorities rests the duty of improving conditions. In their hands lie the educational facilities and the possibilities of taking preventive measures. The fault is not so much with the Park Commissioner, who has been zealous in his efforts to do away with the nuisance, as with those who control the city's purse, and with politicians more interested in Palm Beach, in jubilees and in helping Senator LA FOLLETTE nationalize the railroads than in keeping up the playgrounds of the people.

RUSSIA BACKS DOWN.

Lord CURZON'S diplomatic victory over Russia is complete. In the first reply to the British ultimatum the Soviets yielded to the British demands on the question of reparation for injuries to British subjects and the giving up of the seizure of fishing craft outside the three-mile limit. But the third and most serious British complaint, concerned with anti-British propaganda in Central Asia, was left unsatisfied; Russia proposed merely a conference which would have led nowhere. The British declared that this would not do; whereupon the Russians announce their willingness to "reduce the personnel of the lega-"tions in Afghanistan, Persia and "Khiva," as it appears in the language of the dispatches, and to consult the British on the successors to any of the men removed who may need substitutes.

A demand that a foreign Power submit to external interference in the personnel of its diplomatic service is unusual in form, but the Anglo-Russian trade agreement of March, 1921, stipulated not only that each party would refrain from propaganda against the other, outside its own territory, but expressly that the Russians would refrain from anti-British propaganda in Asia. In their answer to the British note the Soviets insist that they have never violated this agreement. But remarks made by the Bolshevist leaders, in their alternative capacity of leaders of the Third International, are quite different. Whenever there was friction between England and Russia some pious Communist would rise up with a reminder of the extension of Russian influence in Central Asia.

Even those who doubt the wisdom of Lord CURZON'S diplomatic methods cannot withhold the credit due him for calling this bluff, which so often intimidated Mr. LLOYD GEORGE. It had got to be a maxim of British foreign politics that the Russians had to be bought off as the only way to save India. That view has been scrapped, and the Russians have come down. The result is impressive, but the method might not work so well with other nations.

From the Russian viewpoint the aspect of chief interest is the effect of this diplomatic defeat on the standing of the Bolshevist Government. It has been strongest when, as in the war with the Poles, it represented Russian national feeling. Enthusiastic correspondents in Moscow told us last week that the nation was rallying as one man around the Government, and so on. Does it still rally as one man now that the leaders are in retreat? Infiltration in Central Asia is an old Russian tradition, and the Bolsheviki could doubtless arouse much of the old anti-British sentiment by shouting defiance. Their precipitate backdown, it would seem, must alienate much support which, though not necessary to the continuance of their control, would make things easier for them.

While their concession in the dispute with England might be ascribed to love of peace rather than fear of war, it makes more pointless than ever the whole anti-foreign outburst which was worked up in connection with the recent religious persecutions. The sentences of the Catholic priests and the reaction of the Bolsheviki to foreign protests seemed part of a deliberate effort to insult the whole outside world, to demonstrate Russia's self-sufficiency by childish bad manners. Now the insulting notes addressed to England have been formally withdrawn with a sort of apology. For bourgeois or Communist it is certainly poor diplomacy to write notes which have to be torn up and eaten a few weeks later.

A TALL CEDAR OF LEBANON.

Mr. HARDING is the tenth Free and Accepted Mason to occupy the White House, for MILLARD FILLMORE, Mason and anti-Mason, should hardly be counted. The benevolent, protective and fraternal character of American Freemasonry must appeal strongly to Mr. HARDING, and especially its comradeship and good-fellowship. The social and gregarious instinct of Americans is multitudinously ramified into societies and organizations and clubs and leagues of 10,000 names. The American is a "joiner," retail or wholesale. He may smile at the habit in others, but he never ceases to join. That is a social manifestation of his democracy.

The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine number their hundreds of thousands, and are now in possession of the capital. The less resplendent but poetically named Tall Cedars of Lebanon, open to all Master Masons, will initiate Mr. HARDING, Private Secretary CHRISTIAN, Assistant Secretary of the Navy ROOSEVELT and a number of Senators, Governors and Representatives into the Evergreen Forest of Milford, Delaware, next Saturday. It is a beautiful name, befitting most, one would think, an order of Titans. That evergreen tree is, perhaps, distinguished rather by the thickness of its trunk than its height. Whatever its shape, it is a glorious tree and a brother of Mr. KIPLING'S deodars. If it bears a notably dry fruit, that is congruous with the political symbolism which Mr. HARDING and the Republicans seem to have adopted.

Atlantic City Forest has accepted from Evergreen Forest the honor of enforesting Mr. HARDING and the rest of the woodlanders from Washington. Though one be as solitary and grouchy as the Hermit Crab, he can't help finding it a mighty pleasant thing to see the President go to a little Delaware town and plunge into the Evergreen Forest under the friendly eyes of local and visiting Tall Cedars. Everybody who belongs to a "lodge," every urban and village member of something—in short, the mass of the American people—will join in felicitating the joiner. Each American little world is made up of neighbors and friends and visitors. Mr. HARDING stepped from his village, if Marion will forgive the word, to the White House. Saturday he will drop in on some friends in Milford. Before long he will go, always among friends and neighbors and comrades, no matter how churlish or incandescent their politics, on his Alaskan progress.

It's a friendly country, after all, and no bad job to be President, especially on the days when you can get away from the Gnarled Oaks and the Bramble-bushes of politics and rest among the Tall Cedars. If only among the "number of Senators" to be initiated by the Green Tops Mr. MOSES, Mr. BORAH, Mr. BRANDEGEE, Mr. JOHNSON and a few other unfraternal, unsociable and cantankerous specimens of the political cactus could be included!

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

He Found What He Sought.

With acknowledgments for assistance to CHARLES GRANT MILLER that probably could have been much amplified without making them exaggerated, Commissioner HIRSHFIELD presents to what he hopes will be a horrified public the results of his investigation of the textbooks from which the children in our public schools get their American history. Whoever accepts at its face value the showing thus made is likely to be considerably disturbed, and of course all the Anglophobes will do that. Others will see at once that to make his points the Commissioner has resorted to the ancient device of taking sentences out of their context and treating them as the settled opinion of the author, even though, as is obvious in many instances, the dreadful statements quoted are merely those that were made by enemies of this, that or the other American worthy.

All those worthies did have contemporaneous enemies whose denunciations knew no restraint, and none was more bitterly assailed that WASHINGTON and LINCOLN.

It is possible that some of the later compilers of school histories, in their reactions from the myth-making of their predecessors, have gone unnecessarily far the other way and emphasized too much the faults and mistakes of those who rebelled against English rule, but the extent to which this should be done is a matter of opinion and taste, and only Commissioner HIRSHFIELD and a few others will give any credence at all to his theory that the men whose books he condemns are the agents—the paid agents, he implies—of Great Britain and the "international money power" whose activities so often disturb his slumbers and those of Mayor HYLAN.

Only One Victim of Many.

Now we know! CLARE SHERIDAN has settled it! "Lord CARNARVON had to pay the price each one pays who dares to touch the Oriental dead."

So she tells the readers of The World, and, lest any doubt should remain, she writes in solemn warning:

> Other men have paid the penalty before. There is hardly a mummy in any museum in Europe that has not its sinister record for those who crossed its path. In my own family there is the same tale of disaster attached to the relic that a great-uncle brought from Luxor and deposited in the remote Elizabethan home in a Sussex village. Needless to go into details of these stories; their name is legion, and every one of them is traced and proved.

"Every one" is good! But it is not only in England that beliefs like this survive. Almost innumerable Chinese hold them firmly, not with respect to "Orientals" but to their own ancestors, and right here in the United States the danger of offending the dead is not ignored. Yesterday a Times dispatch from Minneapolis told how a contractor who three years ago had unearthed the grave of an Indian chief now is suffering from a severe infection of the right hand.

What could be clearer proof that effect has followed cause or more plainly could show the truth of ancient tales as to the "concoctions and charms" by means of which the Indian medicine men, if they could not prevent the desecration of the resting places where they laid their chiefs, at least could punish the desecrators?

That the death rate among archaeologists and anthropologists has not been particularly high, in spite of their inveterate habit of delving in graveyards that are old enough to interest them, has no bearing, of course, on this question of ghostly penalties. Now and then one of the diggers does die soon after successful researches have been accomplished, and that is quite enough to enable the mystic-minded to say, "We told you so!"

Peace May Still Be Kept.

London statisticians proudly assert, and their American cousins indignantly deny, that in the British capital people both ride and walk faster than they do in New York. Both present elaborate figures in proof of their respective contentions, and the controversy, if carefully tended, might rise to the dignity of an "incident." As yet it does not threaten war, and the chances are that it will be escaped, for, while Mr. HEDLEY vehemently proclaims that his trains are at least as fast as those in the London "tubes," our Mayor, likely as not, will be glad to find in this invidious comparison new support for his conviction that our transit facilities never will be well managed until the city does it.

As for our pedestrians, perhaps they will be glad enough to admit that the Londoners walk faster than they do, for they long have been wearied by the iterated charge that they always move in a rush and a hurry and wear themselves out before their time.

Everybody Talked in English.

An American just returned from France complains with some bitterness that one object of his journey—that of getting some needed practice in spoken French—could not be attained because practically all the Frenchmen he met insisted on practicing their English on him.

And they spoke so much better English than he did French that no sooner did he try to prove his own skill than they politely but firmly took command of the conversation and carried it smoothly along in his own language.

In spite of this report, one still must believe that there remain in France a considerable number of French men and women and children who do not speak English or anything but French. The shops and restaurants of Paris, always much patronized by foreigners, naturally catered to them by having somebody in attendance who could understand them and be understood by them. The war brought British and Americans there in great numbers, and naturally English became the second language of more French folk than before.

This will please many of our tourists, by removing difficulties of travel, but it does have the disadvantage that the stranger who wants to learn spoken French has far fewer tutors than in the old days.

Says Allies Have Won at Last.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Where are those benevolent, practical authorities who were so loudly anxious to volunteer their self-styled "expert advice" to France and "to determine Germany's capacity to pay"—or not to pay? Now that foreclosure and reorganization of defaulting Germany are imminent, we are hearing nothing of those plausible slogans and catch-words "stabilization of the mark," "intervention," "mediation," "benevolent neutrality," &c. Even "French imperialism" and "Black troops on the Rhine" have been shelved or "pied." The quiet courage and independence of France and her Allies, their dignified tenacity and honorable diplomacy may have served to change the minds of certain types of howling politicians and industrialists who evidently dreamed their ideas about Europe or got their hints from Berlin. The Allies seem to have won the war at long last.

Aliens as State Charges.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Does your correspondent, E. P. Wheeler, know that it cost the State of New York last year $4,500,000 for insane aliens in civil hospitals? And that most of the socially inadequate persons on whom the States spend 8 per cent. of their total outgo have never contributed one penny to the support of the States in which they live? Still he doesn't hesitate to remark that "the United States can well take care of those few who fail." If, as Mr. Wheeler says, 670 people are living so comfortably to the square mile in foreign lands, why are they coming in such hordes to our land? M. M. BOGGAN.

Pennell for Permanent Exhibit.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The city authorities have erected an interesting, though temporary, exhibition building in Park Avenue for the city's silver jubilee. Why would it not be an excellent scheme to make this permanent and in it give all exhibitions? It is perfectly easy and would be very inexpensive to carry the idea out. It would be a magnificent memorial, and it would pay. JOSEPH PENNELL.

ON JUNE WEDDINGS.

Oh, what a morning for the links,
Or in cool woodsy ways to tarry!
A plague upon the wretched jinx
That makes my friends choose June to marry!
Al fresco joys are not for me,
No booky paths may I be treading,
Because, in spite of plaint and plea,
I must get ready for a wedding.

And what of bids to cards and teas?
I have to turn them down—regretting.
To spend the bride-month overseas
Would surely save a lot of fretting!
Tonight Diana gives a dance
(N. B., the bitter tears I'm shedding!)
And I shall be there? Not a chance!

I haven't time to eat or drink,
Nor go (if 'twere my habit) sporting;
I haven't time to write or think—
Not even time to do some courting!
I let my bills remain unpaid
Despite the rumor that is spreading,
('Twill have to spread, I'm much afraid!)

Except this rite, wherein a ring
Makes one of two roads late divergent,
I haven't time for anything,
However pleasureful or urgent!
'Tis June that lands me in the plight
Which all the other months I'm dreading,
For late and early, day and night,

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In signing the Mullan-Gage law repeal bill Governor Smith has tended to set at naught the enormous material benefits issuing out of prohibition. In spite of lax enforcement, the material and social gains incurred through prohibition have been so great as to warrant the Governor's veto and a declaration that he would hold the city officials responsible for proper enforcement.

Although prohibition in various States of the Union prior to the national law had proved of the utmost value, yet when the spectre of national prohibition loomed over the Hudson there arose a wail of prophecy regarding its supposed dire effects on New York's real estate. It was tearfully and vociferously predicted that realty would go plumb to Gehenna; that mortgage security would be undermined; that we would have 10,000 vacant unrentable stores and similar evil results. The liquor interests and the hotel owners were as solicitous in 1919 of the "double jeopardy" (or triple or quadruple) in which real estate was to be placed as they have been of the individual lawbreakers of today.

As prophets of the evil effects of prohibition on realty they have proved good booze sellers and hotel keepers. What has actually taken place is that virtually every saloon corner which became vacant has been rented to other lines of business at 100 to 200 per cent. over the saloon rents. The amount of money which went to the saloons (estimated at $700,000,000 in New York) has been diverted to wearing apparel and the numerous other trades dealing in necessities and luxuries.

The retailer is the last link in the chain of manufacture and distribution, so that, working backward from the retailer to the jobber, manufacturer, mill and factory, it is obvious what an almost incalculable amount, spread over the entire country, has been diverted from liquor to industries of all kinds, catering to both the inner and outer man.

Governor Smith has chosen to ignore the material benefits arising out of prohibition, and he certainly has disregarded the hopes and devout wishes of the mothers of growing children, to whom prohibition appealed with tremendous force as a protection to their sons and daughters, New York's future citizens.

Probably no men are in closer touch with our millions of tenement dwellers than realty men, who collect rents and manage tenement property. These men, regardless of personal predilection, agree that prohibition has been productive of added creature and home comforts to a degree all but unbelievable, yet Governor Smith is willing that the gimmlli keeper shall again come into his own and deprive the tenement dwellers, especially the mothers and children, of their new-found comforts and conveniences.

The writer has before him a batch of letters from applicants for saloon corners, and since the passage of the Mullan-Gage law repealer realty men have had numerous applications for saloon properties.

While it is a well-known fact that Tammany has been the ally, protector and guardian of the liquor interests, it hardly seemed possible that Governor Smith, with his intimate knowledge of conditions among the poor and lowly, with the knowledge that his own city had benefited greatly through increased assessed values due to prohibition and a host of other good results arising therefrom, would sign a bill which means a recrudescence of the abominable gimmlli. But evidently the Tammany influence, which demands implicit, blind, unreasoning obedience to its mandates, was too strong for "Al" Smith.

From the point of view of the greatest good to the greatest number, the reasons for the retention on the statute books of the Mullan-Gage law far outweighed the minor reasons for its repeal, and it is a matter of the keenest regret that our Governor saw fit to approve the repealer. However, it will not be long before it will be restored in an equally vigorous form. Tammany has paid its debt to the liquor interests, which is perfectly right and proper and logical, as Tammany is always punctilious in paying its debts, but the benefits of prohibition will result in new legislation, Tammany notwithstanding, and the petty temporary triumph of the booze interests will disappear in the triumph of civic decency.

COLOMBIA'S LIQUOR LAW.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Allow me to inform you of the conditions of the liquor issue in this country, to show the contrast with prohibition in the United States.

The sentiment of the people in general is for limited prohibition. The principal issue here is the use by the lower classes of beverages fermented and not distilled, of high alcoholic content, which are easily prepared and sold. Against the wishes of the people the local governments encourage the consumption of these beverages on account of the revenue. In some towns of this department the people have absolutely refused to allow the opening of liquor stores against the orders of the Alcaldes or Mayors.

In the last Congress a national law was approved, whose principal points are:

Liquor stores are not permitted to sell any strong liquor between 6 P. M. and 6 A. M., nor on Sundays and feast days. No liquor will be sold in any theatre, circus or dance hall. The price of distilled liquor made in the country will not be less than $1.80 for 720 grams. On imported liquor the prices will be higher. The number of licensed saloons in any locality will be according to the inhabitants. Beer and wines are allowed, but not with more than 4 per cent. of alcohol. Importers of wines must show a certificate that only pure grapes are used, with the alcohol resulting from the natural fermentation and without any artificial components. Artificial wines are not allowed to enter the country.

Bucaramanga, Colombia, April, 1923.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The opening of more play streets has become an important question in New York City. In order to grow up to be strong and healthy citizens our children must have recreation. When they play in the streets now there is great danger from traffic. Therefore, children must have grounds where they can enjoy their sports in safety. I propose that all school blocks and side streets which are not important thoroughfares should be open only for children. The bad conditions now swelling show how lax the Hylan Administration has been in a matter which vitally concerns every citizen. Action is what is needed, and it is up to all of us to demand it. M. HULL CHIDES ADAMS IN LEAGUE RETORT

Would Tell Stand to Harding or Hughes, but Hints Chairman Might Be Reversed.

AVOIDS DICTATING TO PARTY

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Cordell Hull, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, responded this evening to the statement aimed at him last night by John T. Adams, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, as a contribution to the incident which has resulted from the action of Secretary Hughes in having the Republican Committee withdraw its public attack on the good faith and honesty of the European Allies in their dealings with the United States over the payment of American occupational costs in Germany.

While full of irony, Chairman Hull's rejoinder is generally considered to be on a dignified plane. He resents the effort of Chairman Adams to have him tell how the Democratic Party stands on the League of Nations, and retorts by repeating his accusation that Mr. Adams and the Republican national organization are opposing President Harding and Secretary Hughes in their espousal of American participation in the Permanent Court of International Justice.

Chairman Hull, however, gives an outline of what he believes will be the attitude of the Democratic Party in the national platform of 1924 in regard to international questions.

"The 1924 Democratic platform will no doubt reflect," he says, "the impartial non-partisan views of Democrats, and intelligent Republicans as well, by proposing a practical application of the doctrine of International co-operation embracing all the fundamentals and essentials of the foreign policies of the recent Democratic Administration to conditions as they may then exist."

Calls Adams a Dictater.

Mr. Hull insists that the Democratic Party, unlike the Republican Party, is not seeking to inject partisan politics into international affairs. He accuses Chairman Adams of assuming the role of dictator to his party and the Republican Administration.

Apropos of Chairman Adams's effort to have him tell where the Democratic Party stands on the League, he offers to answer questions from President Harding or Secretary Hughes, but declines to pay attention to Mr. Adams's inquiries, because "I have no assurance that statements made by Chairman Adams will not be recalled by Secretary Hughes."

This is Chairman Hull's statement:

"Chairman John T. Adams of the Republican National Committee cannot dodge or evade the issue he has raised within his own party through his open opposition to the foreign policy of President Harding and Secretary Hughes by interrogating me on the attitude of the Democratic National Committee concerning the foreign policy of the Democratic Party. Unlike Chairman Adams, I do not recognize the authority of any one to write party platforms except the national party convention.

"Dominant Republican national leaders played politics with our foreign affairs during 1919 and 1920, and the irreconcilables have endeavored to do so since that time, while most Democrats and a vast number of patriotic Republicans, on the other hand, have earnestly tried to keep our foreign policies free from vicious partisan politics. I shall pursue this non-partisan course, and shall not co-operate with any Republican leader in injecting cheap politics into foreign questions, nor shall I accede to Chairman Adams's proposal that I proceed to define a platform for Democrats.

"The 1924 Democratic platform will, no doubt, reflect the impartial non-partisan views of Democrats, and intelligent Republicans as well, by proposing a practical application of the doctrine of International co-operation, embracing all the fundamentals and essentials of the foreign policies of the recent Democratic Administration, to conditions as they may then exist.

Would Answer Harding or Hughes.

"Chairman Adams has been so denunciatory of one-man Government that it is rather surprising to see him in the rôle of dictater not only to his party but to the incumbent Republican Administration. It is equally surprising that he should wish to add to his present troubles by seeking a controversy with me. If his questions came from President Harding or Secretary Hughes, whose functions under the Constitution make them responsible for the Administration's foreign policy, the questions would be worthy of serious discussion, but I have no assurance that statements now made by Chairman Adams will not be recalled by Secretary Hughes.

"I have given no advice to the Republican National Chairman. I have only sought to discourage him from going so far in his opposition to the World Court policy of the National Administration as to do any appreciable injury to that policy and to endanger his position as Chairman. To prove that I had only a friendly motive, I hereby nominate Colonel Adams as Chairman of the Republican National Committee in 1924 and to have full charge of the 1924 Republican campaign.

"In the meantime, I shall refuse to be diverted by any wiggling and wabbling on his part, or attempt by him to distract attention from the failures of the Harding Administration or the blunders of the Republican National Committee, but shall continue to discuss all outstanding issues, including the high cost of living, inequality of taxation in favor of the very rich, tariff extortion and profiteering, coal extortion and profiteering, sugar extortion and profiteering, appointments to office of men accused of offenses against the law or convicted of crimes; high transportation costs, Newberryism and Daugherryism, repudiation and violation of the Civil Service law, wholesale waste proposed by the Lasker-Harding ship subsidy, agricultural depression and bankruptcy as a result of Republican policy and failure to give relief, and a general display of ignorance and incompetency by the Republican National Administration.

"In conclusion, I wish to thank Chairman Adams for having revived a subject of such interest and importance to the American people, although I regret that he exp

HER SISTER HONOR MAID

Hutchinson of Baltimore, and who recently returned from Coblenz, and Miss Mildred Stillman, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Stillman of 35 East Thirty-ninth Street, took place yesterday in the Chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church, the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks officiating.

Miss Ruth Stillman was her sister's maid of honor and Dr. Alfred Stillman, a brother of the bride, was the best man. Captain Joseph Glasgow and Captain Allen Kingman were the ushers. A small reception followed at the bride's home.

Mrs. Hutchinson is a sister of Mrs. Henry M. Polhemus and Walter N. Stillman, who married Miss Constance Pratt.

Captain Hutchinson was appointed to the United States Military Academy at West Point from Maryland in 1917. He was made Second Lieutenant of the 24th Cavalry and later First Lieutenant. He served as Captain 1918-19 in the Field Artillery with the rank of Captain and later in July, 1920, was raised permanently to a captaincy and for almost three years thereafter he served with Major Gen. MISS LITTAUER WEDS WM. E. DOELLER HERE

Miss Catherine Louise Littauer, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. William Littauer of New York and Washington, D. C., and William Eldon Doeller, whose wedding was put off in Paris last January owing to parental disapproval, were married last Saturday afternoon in this city.

The ceremony was quietly solemnized in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church by the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks at 2:30 o'clock.

Evidently some secrecy was attached to the marriage, for a dispatch from Columbus, Ind., last evening stated that the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Hattie Doeller, had received a telegram to the effect that her son had been married in Philadelphia.

If the young couple obtained their marriage license at the Municipal Building here on Saturday it was not announced, probably owing to the rush of weddings on the second day of June.

Miss Littauer and her daughter sailed from Paris for this country late in April, and it was rumored then that the wedding would take place in Washington, D. C. This was some time after the suit which the parents filed to prevent their daughter marrying Mr. Doeller was withdrawn, it being understood that Miss Littauer had promised not to marry for several months. It was said that the parents' objection to Doeller as a son-in-law was more or less on the grounds that he had not sufficient means of supporting a wife.

Mr. Doeller arrived here early in March and remained absent on his return. Cable dispatches from Paris when he sailed had stated that he was returning to America to get a job and prove to the elder Littauers his ability to support the young woman who had promised to marry him. Mr. Doeller was a Lieutenant in the American Army during the war and was formerly an automobile salesman.

SIMON WOLF DIES; LAWYER-DIPLOMAT

NOTED AS PHILANTHROPIST

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Simon Wolf, lawyer, diplomat and author, died tonight at Atlantic City from an attack of heart disease. He was 86 years old.

Born in Hulsweiler, Rhenish Bavaria, Oct. 28, 1836, Mr. Wolf experienced as a child the burdensome conditions of Jewish disfranchisement which was then prevalent in Germany. The impressions of childhood left an indelible trace in his soul and though brought to America by his grandparents as a lad of twelve, he never for a minute forgot the sufferings of his European coreligionists.

Up to his twenty-third year he engaged in business as a clerk, salesman and bookkeeper for his uncles, Abraham and Elias Wolf, in the village of Ulrichsville, Ohio. Later he went into business on his own account for a short time, forming a partnership with Marks S. Mayer, his brother-in-law, and Adam Baum. But his inborn oratorical talent and high aspirations caused him to leave the field of business, and in 1862 he began reading law with Judge Joseph C. Hance of New Philadelphia, Ohio.

Shortly after, he entered the Cleveland Law School from which he was graduated with high honors in 1861. The same year he was admitted to the bar. He then formed a partnership with Alexander L. Neeley. For a year they practiced law together, then Wolf went to Washington, D. C., where he had resided ever since.

In 1867 he married Caroline Hahn of Suffield, Ohio. They had six children, two of whom died in infancy. His third son, Adolph G. Wolf, was made Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Porto Rico. One of his daughters became the wife of Mayer Cohen, his law partner, and another, Mrs. Gotthold of New York, is a well known artist. A third daughter has distinguished herself in literary work. Mrs. Wolf died in 1901. A year later Mr. Wolf married Amy Lichtenstein, a niece of the Hon. Julius Bien.

His Political Career Eventful.

The political career of Simon Wolf was strikingly eventful. At the age of 19 he was already an ardent Democrat and led the political debates in his home town. When slavery became an issue he joined the Unionist ranks, from which subsequently the Republican Party sprouted. He knew and was intimate with Lincoln.

In 1867 President Grant appointed Simon Wolf Recorder of Deeds for the District of Columbia. It was through Wolf's influence that the Rumanian Mission at Bucharest was created, and it is said that more than fifty appointments were made by President Grant at his request.

In July, 1881 he was appointed by President Garfield Minister to Egypt. In May of the following year he resigned because of impaired eyesight.

Beginning with President Lincoln, Simon Wolf had enjoyed the confidence and personal friendship of every President of the United States, of every Secretary of State and many other prominent officials at Washington. He himself has told of his activities in "Presidents I Have Known."

Tireless Worker for Jewish Uplift.

He was a tireless worker for Jewish uplift. He was the founder and President for twenty-five years of the Hebrew Orphans' Home in Atlanta, for which he himself raised $150,000. He was President of the Washington Hebrew Congregation and was active in the formation of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. Last January at the convention of that body in New York Mr. Wolf was elected Vice President.

He was twice President of the General Convention of the B'nai B'rith, and after the death of Leo N. Levy, became President of the order. After the Kishineff pogroms of 1903 it was at Mr. Wolf's initiative that the memorable protest meeting at Washington was arranged and the conference with Roosevelt and Secretary Hay held. The famous protest note sent by Mr. Hay to Rumania was also the result of Mr. Wolf's constant appeals to President Roosevelt and Secretary Hay.

In 1906 Mr. Wolf published "The American Jew as Patriot, Soldier and Citizen," in answer to challenges to the Jews of America to prove their claims to having fought for their adopted country. He wrote a biography of M. M. Noah, a one time High Sheriff of New York, and a biography of Commodore U. P. Levy. His "Presidents I Have Known" recently went into its second edition.

Mr. Wolf said that he was the first public officer to give a colored man a clerkship. The man was Frederick Douglass and was appointed by Mr. Wolf after he had been rejected by the Typographical Union. In Washington Mr. Wolf's friends are of all classes, creeds and parties. The late Father Walter of St. Patrick's Catholic Church there once said: "The best Christian in Washington is Simon Wolf, the Jew," a tribute which Mr. Wolf was always proud of.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 4.—A decree of divorce was granted today in the Paris courts against Schuyler Livingston Parsons, New Yorker, who was married to Miss Betty Pearson on May 8, 1920.

Mr. and Mrs. Parsons came to live in Paris last year and took an apartment in the Rue Boissière, where Mrs. Parsons is still living. Her counsel in court today told how Mr. Parsons had left that address some months ago and had since lived at a hotel. He had refused to answer all summonses to appear in the Reconciliation Court and had made no attempt to defend the suit.

Judgment was given in favor of Mrs. Parsons, with property settlements in accordance with American law.

Mrs. Schuyler Livingston Parsons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Pierson Jr. of New York and Newport, was the eldest of three sisters, all noted for their beauty and among the most popular members of New York society. Some time after her marriage, Mrs. Parsons gave up a great many of her social activities with the avowed intention of studying sculpture. In September, 1922, her friends discovered that she had become the pupil of Miss Renée Prahar in the latter's studio at 45 Christopher Street and was devoting herself to preparatory work in technique and proportion. Late in the year she sailed for Europe to continue her studies.

Mr. Parsons is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler Livingston Parsons of New York. He was graduated from Harvard University in 1918 and served with the American Red Cross in France during the war. He is a member of the Union, the Knickerbocker and the Racquet and Tennis Clubs of New York.

With his sisters, Mrs. Richard Wharton and Mrs. Evelyn K. Hollingsworth, Mr. Parsons shared an estate of about $2,000,000 left by his father. Since his marriage he has maintained a city home at 15 West Fifty-fifth Street and a country place at Islip, L. I.

ART JURY B SAPPROVES STATUE OF WANAMAKER

Mayor Moore Rejects the Philadelphia Decision and Says Rhind's Work Will Go On.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—The Philadelphia Art Jury has disapproved the John Wanamaker statue of J. Massey Rhind of New York and its proposed location on the City Hall Plaza. The decision, however, will not be accepted as final by Mayor Moore, Chairman of the Wanamaker Memorial Committee.

The Mayor today announced emphatically that the work on the statue and pedestal would go forward and that he was prepared to contest the decision of the Art Jury on the ground that a quorum had not been mustered at the meeting May 28 when the resolution of disapproval was passed.

Meetings of the Art Jury, which in the past have been secret, will be open to the public in the future, the Mayor stated. He commented thus on the report of the jury:

"It is true that members of the Art Jury, at a meeting May 28, which I was unable to attend, passed a resolution disapproving the preliminary design and proposed location of the John Wanamaker memorial statue. When Andrew Wright Crawford, Secretary of the Art Jury, notified me of that resolution I was very much surprised. I do not take the resolution to be a finality and can state definitely both as Mayor and as Chairman of the Memorial Committee, that it will not impede the work upon the statue or pedestal. The 300,000 or 400,000 contributors of small amounts to this popular movement cannot thus slightingly be disregarded nor will they.

"I was present when this outburst of Mr. Grafly was made, and moved that his report be filed, thinking that would be the end of it. In his so-called report Mr. Grafly opposed the work upon the ground that Mr. Rhind was working under a time contract, which contemplated the completion of the memorial next December. He also seemed to be obsessed with the notion that no artist could work under a time limit and that the consideration in the contract with Mr. Rhind would not be productive of good art.

"I will take the matter up at the next meeting of the Art Jury and will see that the meeting is an open one and that reporters are present if they so desire."

The members of the Art Jury who attended the meeting on May 28, and, in the Mayor's absence, passed the resolution of disapproval were John Frederick Lewis, President; D. E. Stotesbury, Paul Cret, architect; Charles Grafly, sculptor, and Eli Kirk Price, Park Commissioner.

WOMAN AUTOIST KILLS CHILD; HAD NO LICENSE

Magistrate Charles Oberwager held special court in the West 100th Street Police Station last night to arraign Mrs. Benjamin W. Litwin of 153 East 165th Street, the Bronx, whose car an hour earlier struck and killed Theresa Bogert, a 13-year-old school girl, in Riverside Drive at 108th Street. The girl lived at 938 Columbus Avenue. Mrs. Litwin admitted she did not possess an operator's license, according to the police. Her husband, a dress manufacturer at 636 Seventh Avenue, furnished $1,000 bail, on which Magistrate Oberwager released Mrs. Litwin for examination today in West Side Court on a charge of homicide.

The Bogert girl was crossing Riverside Drive with two girl friends and Miss Gladys Reardon, a public school athletic instructor. Miss Reardon had the other two girls by the hand and drew them back just in time to avoid Mrs. Litwin's car as it shot by, police reported. Theresa, however, was struck by the front fender and thrown further in the path of the machine, the right wheels passing over her body. Witnesses told the police the car rolled eighty feet before Mrs. Litwin could bring it to a stop. Mrs. Litwin herself told the police, they said, the accident had unnerved her.

Lewis Mannhelmer of the Narragansett Hotel took the Bogert girl to St. Luke's Hospital in his automobile, but she was found dead on arrival.

MARY L. BAKER IN LONDON.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, June 4.—When the Mauretania docked today at Southampton Mary Landon Baker hid herself until the other passengers had landed. Then Mary, the most unobtrusively dressed woman aboard, walked down the gangplank, looking to the right and left at the reporters.

"I have nothing to say," she reiterated when the reporters assailed her with questions. "I expect to stay a long time in England. I am on a holiday tour."

Teddie Gerard, who has come to London to appear on the stage, was Mary's boon companion during the crossing. Teddie said it was all off with Allister McCormick.

The reporters noticed that Mary replied to all questions in good American nasal tone, having lost her Piccadilly accent during her sojourn in America. With reporters all around, Mary, a tiny figure dressed in blue, had a hard time with seven huge trunks at the customs office.

When she arrived at Waterloo, London, Mary was met by a young man, who took her in a taxi to the home of Lord Wellesley in an aristocratic part of London. Wellesley is a brother of the Duke of Wellington. Lady Wellesley is said to be an American. For the last fortnight elaborate preparations have been proceeding for Mary's arrival.

Mrs. Elliott Again American Citizen.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 4.—Mrs. Maude Howe Elliott, daughter of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, author of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," is once more an American citizen. Though born in this country and a stanch American, Mrs. Elliott through her marriage to John Elliott, a British subject, in Rome twenty-seven years ago, lost her American citizenship. Mrs. Elliott has now been granted naturalization by the Superior Court of the State, action on her petition having been taken today, along with many foreign-born petitioners. Mrs. Elliott took advantage of the recent act of Congress permitting American-born wives to do this.

DELMONICO RELICS GO UNDER THE HAMMER

Delmonico's, dismantled and forlorn, yesterday began to give up its interior decorations and furnishings, when James F. Silo began the first day's auction of the restaurant's effects.

Beginning at the servants' rooms, laundry, kitchen passageways, &c., contents of the roof garden and the ballroom were sold, but there was not much to interest private buyers even in the oval dancing platform or in the large mirrors. The ballroom's big crystal chandelier went to I. M. Spaniman of Vienna for $125. It is understood that the chandelier is to go into a private home.

The baby grand piano of the west ballroom brought out more competition and went to Bernard Stein as agent for $400. A rug man of Syracuse paid $320 for a large Agra carpet. Those were some of the higher prices. Electric fixtures, brass beds and springs, bentwood chairs and even damask hangings have not much sentimental value even in a historical place.

Today's sale will be more of a souvenir day. It includes china and dozens upon dozens of glasses.

CHARLES F. PIDGIN DEAD.

MELROSE, Mass., June 4.—Charles F. Pidgin, author of fiction and former Chief of the State Bureau of Statistics of Labor, died at his home here yesterday. His best known book ("Quincy Adams Sawyer") was published in 1900.

Charles Felton Pidgin was born in Roxbury, Mass., on November 11, 1844. He was graduated from the English High School in Boston in 1863. From 1863 to 1870 he was engaged in mercantile work. Thereafter he turned to journalism. For several years he was connected with Boston, Philadelphia and New York papers.

In 1878 he was appointed Secretary of the Massachusetts Bureau of Statistics of Labor. Later he was made Chief Clerk, a position which he retained until 1903, when he was commissioned Chief of the Bureau.

As a statistical writer, Mr. Pidgin contributed many articles to the reports and bulletins of the Massachusetts Bureau of Statistics of Labor, and other statistical publications. In 1885 he published "Practical Statistics of the Statistician at Work," the first work of its kind.

During these years spent as statistician, Mr. Pidgin devoted his evenings to literary work. He wrote the words to about sixty songs which were set to music by well known composers, and the librettos for "The Electric Spark," a comic opera; "The Courtin'," a comic opera, upon which the story of "Quincy Adams Sawyer" was founded; "Cambyses or the Pearl of Persia," a cantata; and "Mercedes," a grand opera.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 4.—Benjamin Hoppin, scientific explorer and former Yale instructor, died Saturday in Baddeck, Nova Scotia, where he had lived in retirement for years following a breakdown in health. He first gained fame when he accompanied Professor Marsh of Yale into the West in search of fossils and later as a member of the arctic expedition which left this country in the ship Miranda to explore the polar regions.

The polar expedition, which included Professor Brewer of Yale, James D. Dewell, prominent merchant, and other well known persons, was the centre of world-wide attention when the ship sank in the far north but a short time after starting, all aboard were rescued by a fishing boat.

Mr. Hoppin was the son of the Rev. James M. Hoppin, professor of art at Yale, and was graduated in the class of 1872.

He became instructor but spent considerable time in research work. After a breakdown in health, he made his home in Baddeck, where he engaged in research at his leisure.

AGAINST DEPORTING U. S. CITIZEN'S SON

Mayor of Albany, Where the Boy's Parents Live, Telegraphs Protest.

YOUTH FAILED IN LITERACY

Is 17 Years Old—Law Demands That All Immigrants Over 16 Pass Test.

Lorenzo Decarlo, 17-year-old son of an American citizen living in Albany, is to be deported to Italy on Thursday by the Fabre Line steamship Patria because he failed to pass the literacy test demanded of all aliens entering this country as immigrants.

The case has attracted the notice of William S. Hackett, Mayor of Albany, who is taking an interest in the matter in the hope of preventing the youth from being separated from his parents. Mayor Hackett last night sent this telegram to THE NEW YORK TIMES:

Editor NEW YORK TIMES:
Lorenzo Decarlo, aged 17, is to be deported to Italy June 7, despite the fact that his father, an American citizen, his mother, sisters and brother are residents of Albany, N. Y. He did not pass the literacy test. I ask that you join Albany in protest against this un-American and inhuman act, to the end this boy may remain with his heartbroken mother and father. WILLIAM S. HACKETT,
Mayor of Albany.

When the matter was brought to the attention of Robert E. Tod, Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, last night he said that the United States immigration laws demanded that every immigrant over 16 years of age should pass the literary test and those who failed to do so were to be deported. He said that there were about five hundred of these cases concerning the literacy test pending, and that he could not carry them all in his head. He added that he did not recall the Decarlo case, but would look into it at Ellis Island today.

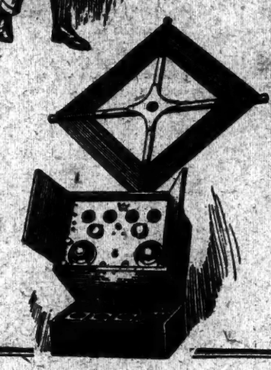
Good-By, Antenna!

—and Good-By, Storage Battery, too!



THE biggest advance made in radio last winter was the indoor loop as used on De Forest's Reflex Sets, which made the American public finally independent of the out-door antenna strung all over the house.

The second big advance in radio is the development of the De Forest dry cell vacuum tube, so that now you can operate any De Forest Reflex set entirely on dry batteries.

The De Forest Reflexes are ideal sets for summer use, because it has been discovered that static is directional, just like broadcasting, and just as you can cut out the broadcasting you don't want to hear by turning the loop, you cut out practically all of the static in the same way. Radio is now as great a source of pleasure and profit in the summer time as it was last winter. This summer you can carry 3000 radio miles in one hand.

The D-7-A Reflex Set, at $125, has cross-Continent range on the indoor loop, and uses either the usual type of A storage battery and B battery, or dry cells exclusively. The D-10 Portable type, at $150, has cross-Continent range on the indoor loop; operates on either wet or dry batteries, the same as D-7-A; and has the added advantage of portability since it has all the dry battery cells inside the cabinet.

De Forest sells only direct to the public, through authorized agents. If you don't know where you can find De Forest sets, write us and we will give you the address of the De Forest agency nearest you.

DE FOREST RADIO TEL. & TEL. CO.
Jersey City, N. J.

Why You Should Have A De Forest Reflex This Summer

The New York Times says, "The Reflex Circuit has several advantages over the Regenerative Circuits generally used."

De Forest makes the ONLY Reflex Radio Receiver.

De Forest Reflexes use the Two-Foot Loop Aerial.

Other Manufacturers "Claim" distances up to 1500 Miles for Sets of about this price.

You don't want to be chained to a storage battery this summer.

All De Forest Reflexes operate either on storage batteries or dry cells—and the new Portable Reflex has the dry battery cells inside its cabinet.

De Forest Reflexes are the easiest long distance sets to operate.

NOTE: All distance reception in radio is subject to atmospheric conditions. The De Forest Reflex is known as the cross-continent portable, because its many 3,000 mile records on indoor loop. (Distance operations on request.) According to conditions and in the hands of average operators however does vary in reception performance from 1,000 to 3,000 miles.

WITH tobacco, as with wine, it happens that in certain years Nature outdoes herself.

This is what happened down in the Ricoro plantations in the La Plata district of Porto Rico. Just the proper condition of the soil—just the exact proportions of rain, sun and warm tropic breeze—produced a tobacco crop magnificent in richness, mildness and bouquet.

The Ricoros now in the United Cigar Stores are made of this vintage tobacco, and we honestly believe that Porto Rico has never produced such delightfully smooth, mild and fragrant cigars.

We urge every lover of truly fine tobacco to 'discover' them. There is no advance in Ricoro prices—even for these rare vintage cigars. And besides—Ricoro is imported duty free, so you save the difference.

Why Should a $10,000 Executive Wait—

In a large measure the value of your records depends on how quickly you can get information from them. On how up-to-the-minute that data is.

The Kardex method makes record information instantly accessible. It reduces the labor and time required to post records by at least one half. This means not only faster records—it also means less office expense.

Kardex has been applied to every type and kind of record. A Kardex specialist will be glad to show you how Kardex can be applied to your present record systems. Accountants everywhere are recommending Kardex and our men will gladly work in co-operation with them.

WOMEN'S LABOR LIGHTER

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 4. — President Harding, in two speeches at ceremonies held in Potomac Park today, emphasized the importance of better highways and better homes.

In his first address, which he made in accepting, on behalf of the Government, the Zero Milestone, marking the place from which the national system of highways begins, he spoke of the development of roads as tending to weld the country and symbolize its unity.

The President's second speech was at the opening of a reproduction of the Long Island cottage of John Howard Payne, author of "Home, Sweet Home." In this he predicted a great "advancement in the mechanical appurtenances of the home" which would "represent a real emancipation of women." The change, he believed, would cause women to take a greater part in many things.

The Zero Milestone is the gift to the Government of the Robert E. Lee Highway Association, under the auspices of which association is being constructed a trunk highway connecting Washington with the Pacific Coast, the route of the road being through the Southern and Southwestern States. At San Francisco the Lee Highway again meets the Lincoln Highway, and there another stone similar to the one erected in Washington and to be known as the Terminal Stone is soon to be dedicated.

The President began his speech on roads with a reference to the golden Zero Stone erected in the old Roman Forum, from which was measured and marked the system of highways which gridironed the Roman Empire. The stone dedicated today, he said, was comparable to the golden milestone of the Romans and was a permanent testimonial of the wide ranging units of the American highway system.

"Our country," the President continued, "has been more dependent upon the development of the internal highways than any other in all history, because our vast continental area is so ill supplied with those arms of the sea which have always kept the countries of Western Europe in close touch with that great universal and common high road, the open ocean. To us, coming late in the drama of human development, it was particularly necessary that wonderful highway construction should be accomplished in an almost inconceivably short time.

"On the whole, we have made a wonderful progress, as is attested by the far more than our interests possess approximately half of the world's whole mileage of railroads. But in the matter of rural roads tributary to these we have until very recent years made a far less impressive advance. Within two decades, however, marking the beginning of the motor age, our advance in this respect has been phenomenal, making it most fitting that a recognized centre of the highway system should at this time be set up.

"It is appropriate, too, that our golden milestone has been placed here in the national Capital, the spiritual and institutional centre of the nation. From it swift converge, as it will converge, the ceaseless tides whose movement will always keep our wide-flung population in that close intimacy of thought and interest and aim which is so necessary to the maintenance of unity and nationality.

"There is another reason why this particular location should have been chosen for our golden milestone. It marks the approximate meeting place of the Lincoln and Lee Highways; of the northern and southern systems of national roads. From it we may view the memorial to Lincoln and the home of Lee. It marks the meeting point of those sections which once grappled in conflict but no ware happily united in all time in the bonds of national fraternity, of a single patriotism and of a common destiny.

"As we shall extend and improve our highways and more and more adapt them to the methods of transport which this age has so marvelously developed for us, we shall strengthen year by year the ties of mutual interest and interdependence which unite all our sections. Every year of our development in this epoch of universal transportation makes it more unthinkable that suggestion of disunion shall ever be tolerated among us.

"We have all come to realize, with the growth of motor transport, in the open country, that a broad plan must be kept always in mind, aiming to make the improved rural highways complementary to the railways.

Highways for National Defense.

"The importance of a perfected highway system as a measure of national defense has been profoundly impressed upon us and must not be overlooked. The amazing mobilization of the forces which only yesterday were fighting for civilization was possible in no small part because the roads built by the Caesars were still available for such tremendous movement. If in time comes when our own country has need for a like mobilization in the national defense a perfected system of highways will be one of our most powerful bulwarks.

"The Lee Highway Association, in presenting the Government with this monument is making an important contribution to the co-ordination of highways. There is not in existence at present a single road from Coast to Coast which can be used unimpeded throughout the entire year. So, in the spirit of patriotic ambition for a national highway unification, this association has planned to connect Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York with a boulevard and to continue that boulevard from the Lincoln Temple to the Lee Mansion by way of the Arlington Memorial Bridge, thence by way of Manassas battlefields into the heart of the South, and thence to the Pacific."

While the President was speaking a squadron of sea airplanes from the Naval Air Station at Anacostia, soared above the crowd, the noise of the giant motors almost neutralizing the effect of the amplifiers which had been installed to carry the voice of the President to all parts of the park. Secretary Denby, who was on the stand with the President, communicated by wireless telephoned with the Anacostia station and ordered the immediate recall of the machines.

The interruptions today recalled that on the occasion of the dedication of the Lincoln Memorial the audience was unable to hear parts of the President's speech because of the noise made by an army airplane above the crowd. As a result of that incident, regulations were issued forbidding aviators to fly over out-of-door crowds. It was said tonight that the naval aviators who figured in today's episode may have to face a board of inquiry.

Secretary of War Weeks was the master of ceremonies at the exercises. The stone was unveiled by Colonel Sharrill, the President's military aid, while Dr. S. M. Johnson, President of the Lee Highway Association, formally presented it to the Government. Just before the exercises began the Transcontinental Shrine Caravan arrived and its commander, Bernard S. McMahan, was presented to the President and Mrs. Harding.

In the audience which heard the President were hundreds of Shriners who jumped to their feet and shouted when President Harding at the beginning of his speech addressed them as "Fellow Nobles." The President, who is a Noble of Aladdin Temple of Columbus, Ohio, did not wear his fez. He is expected, however, to wear it when he reviews the Shrine parade tomorrow morning.

Freeing Woman in the Home.

From the Zero Stone exercises the President proceeded to another part of Potomac Park, where was dedicated the "Home, Sweet Home House" built by the General Federation of Woman's Clubs in connection with the Better Homes Movement.

In a brief speech there the President said that the movement for better homes was a movement for a better United States. The greatest industry in America, he added, was the home with its 20,000,000 women managers.

"The common man of yesterday," said the President, "was a serf, a peasant, bound to tasks whose significance he did not know, and for whose results he had small care. The common man of today is a citizen, a voter, a sovereign, truly a participant in determining the ends and destiny of the State.

"It is the purpose of the Better Homes Movement to make possible a like advance in the status of womankind. We are going to have such advancement in the mechanical appurtenances of the home as will represent a real emancipation for women. With that emancipation we shall see women taking a new, a larger and vastly more significant part in those great determining activities of life which henceforward must mark our way toward realizing the best ambitions of social organization. This movement is concerned with all the problems which confront the spirit of family life.

"The men and women responsible for this movement have sensed a need; and the reality of that need may be measured by the response of the American people to their call. That response is interpreted not only by this occasion, but by the fact that in several thousand communities of America the organized women are today conducting demonstrations presenting living examples of better homes.

"The movement is not confined to our own country. Since it came into being two years ago it has spread far beyond our borders. Canada, Australia, the Philippines and several other nations today have delegates in America studying this national movement, this great demonstration. Because they have been leaders of such a wide and significant interest, we wish to congratulate all of the devoted men and women who have contributed to this movement."

The President will speak again tomorrow. He will make the principal address at the official opening of the Shrine Convention in Keith's Theatre.

RUHR WORKERS RESTIVE OVER MARK'S FALL

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUESSELDORF, June 4.—As expected the Ruhr workers are again showing distinct signs of unrest owing to the situation created by the sudden fall of the mark and the consequent rise of prices in commodities. Meetings were held in nearly all centers yesterday to discuss their future attitude. No decision was arrived at and no votes taken, but the tone of the speeches forbodies no good unless temporary relief is afforded by the employers in addition to the wage concessions of last week. The quick rise in prices has rendered any 50, or even 100 per cent. increases ineffectual. The former just about counter balances the later.

One thing is omnious enough in itself. Despite the fact that the men returned to work practically all the mines, steel and iron works, strike committees have not been disbanded. One cannot, therefore be accused of undue pessimism when predicting that fresh troubles are likely very soon.

Some trade strikes continue to spread further. Certain categories of municipal workers whose return to work was announced somewhat prematurely, when they saw the trend of events—the fall of the mark, resulting in a rise in all prices—preferred to remain out.

This applies to Dusseldorf and Cologne gas and electricity plants, for instance, which continue idle. As far as Dusseldorf is concerned, the municipality has been able to supply at least the centre of the city with light and run a few street cars. This is due to the fact that part of the current here comes from the Reichsholz power station, situated in the British zone. This station, together with that at Goldenburg, supplies practically the whole Ruhr both with light and power, and should the workers there strike the situation would become so serious it might well be termed a catastrophe.

The French yesterday seized the printing plant in Dusseldorf of the Tageblatt, an important Catholic journal here. The reason given is that the owners refused to print the newspaper which the French military authorities intended to publish daily in the German language in order to refute false news spread by the Germans, and also to publish various decrees and orders of the Army of Occupation.

Last week the owners of the Tageblatt were approached to this effect and asked to print the paper at a rate profitable for them. They refused flatly. Now their works are seized.

No difficulties will be placed in the way of the Tageblatt printing daily elsewhere, as the French do not wish to suppress the journal, but they needed a printing plant to bring out their own paper.

Another German has been caught redhanded in acts of sabotage. An organized gang some nights ago tried to blow up the lock regulating the Rhine-Herne Canal. Surrounded by a detachment of French troops while in the act of laying a powerful mine, all were able to escape thanks to a thick, high undergrowth of bushes, excepting one member of the gang, who proved to be a highly important capture. A German officer—with the very appropriate name of "Bosch"—he was found carrying a trip containing a supply of high explosives and a number of extremely important and compromising documents, divulging the workings of the German Government organisations for plots against the French. The capture was kept secret, as it was expected to lead to important results.

Mrs. O'Grady Asks to Retire; Probation Officer for 18 Years

After serving the city for more than eighteen years as probation officer in the Magistrates' Courts, Mrs. Ellen A. O'Grady, who for almost three years was Fifth Deputy Police Commissioner, has asked to be retired from her duties on the ground of disability. Mrs. O'Grady said at her home, 247 New York Avenue, Brooklyn, that if her application was granted she would leave for the Adirondacks to spend several months in rest.

Mrs. O'Grady was assigned to the New Jersey Avenue Court in 1907, when it was opened with John F. Hylan, now Mayor, as presiding Magistrate. It was from watching Mrs. O'Grady's work as probation officer that Mayor Hylan conceived the idea of appointing her as a Deputy Police Commissioner. Mrs. O'Grady resigned that office, which carried a salary of $6,000, because she said that she was not given a free hand to act as she thought best.

$66,000,000 SCHOOLS DELAYED BY STRIKE

Walkout of Bricklayers, Now in Third Week, Imperils Entire City Program.

START A SPECIAL INQUIRY

Competition of Speculative Builders a Factor as Bids Decline in Number—Conference Today.

Alarmed by the possibility of a virtual halting of the $66,000,000 Hylan school-building program because of the labor shortage, a special committee of the Board of Estimate has called a meeting for 2 o'clock this afternoon at the City Hall to investigate the situation.

The shortage of bricklayers has badly handicapped the work on twenty-one school buildings being erected at a cost of $36,000,000. Bids for the balance of $30,000,000 worth of buildings have been held up, pending a solution of the difficulty on the schools under construction.

A survey by builders of the twenty-one new school buildings under construction has revealed that the projects ...re but 30 per cent. manned by bricklayers. It was said that the school program had already been delayed five months by the shortage of bricklayers. Dr. John A. Ferguson of the Board of Education recently estimated that only 10,000 new sittings would be ready in the Fall instead of 40,000. He attributed the delay to the competition of speculative builders, who have been paying bricklayers $4 and $6 bonuses above the regular $10 daily basic wage. Contractors at work on school buildings, he said, could not afford to compete with speculative builders.

According to the builders' survey, 200 bricklayers were at work on the 21 school buildings on which at least 600 men should have been busy. The delay in putting up the brick work retards the other mechanics. Inquiry among contractors on school work revealed that no bricklayers who went on strike on May 21 on the buildings of the Mason Builders' Association, went to work on new school buildings. The contractors on school buildings are paying $12 a day to bricklayers but the mechanics are receiving $14 and more on other work.

Bids Are Few.

The education authorities have also become alarmed over their failure to receive bids for the erection of new school houses. Recently when plans and specifications for the new buildings were announced and bids requested the education officials received but 3 or 4 bids on a building, whereas they had been accustomed to receiving ten or a dozen.

Plans for twenty new buildings have been rushed to completion by a special corps of draughtsmen, but the Board of Education is holding up its request for bids until some progress is made in untangling the present situation.

The meeting in the Board of Estimate chamber today is the result of action by Mayor Hylan, who appointed a special committee to investigate the school building program and to speed up construction. He was requested to name the committee by William J. Gompert, architect in charge of school construction. The committee had several conferences with builders who had not heretofore bid on school work, but no definite operation was sought. The committee also met builders who had erected many school buildings and they were asked to state why they had failed to file bids for new work.

The committee will hear officials of the Bricklayers' Union and the heads of some of the large construction concerns. No attempt is being made by Mayor Hylan's committee to settle the bricklayers' strike, but it was said in building circles that a possibility of the Mayor offering his services as mediator might be one of the results of the meeting. In this connection it was recalled that Mayor Hylan acted as mediator in the bricklayers' strike of 1920 and awarded the mechanics an increase of $2 a day in wages. Up to that time the men had been receiving $8 a day.

The striking bricklayers will not be represented by a lawyer, Chairman of the Executive Committee; John F. Gray, Secretary, and John J. Donnelly, Business Agent of Local 34. Among the firms that will be represented are Fredmeier & Hanna, M. S. Kelley Company, Concord Construction Company, P. A. Clark Company, James MacArthur Company and the Putnam Construction Company.

Pay Presents Problem.

One aspect of the situation with regard to schools is puzzling the educational officials. There is no way in which they can compel their contractors to pay more than the basic $10 scale to bricklayers and there are few bricklayers they can employ without going far above that figure. Most of the men now laying brick on school buildings are old employes in the service of the contractors for many years.

Builders working on school construction have informed the Board of Education that they would be bankrupted by paying present competitive wages and have in effect stated that they would delay work until prices receded. The Board of Education is not allowed to give bonuses to encourage the contractors to meet the present emergency, and there is no penalty clause in the contracts which would cause a loss on the part of the builders by falling behind schedule.

The special committee of the Board of Estimate hopes to obtain from today's meeting information concerning the advisability of letting the new contracts for $30,000,000 worth of school construction.

Chairman Fogarty and Secretary Gray of the bricklayers' Executive Committee declared yesterday that the reports of a brick shortage were "employers' propaganda," and announced their intention of investigating the brick market to check up on the reports.

The strike of bricklayers entered its third week yesterday. The men walked off the buildings of the Mason Builders' Association on May 21 after having been refused a basic $12 daily wage for two years. The employers offered a daily wage of $10 for three and a half years and announced their intention of continuing the payment of bonuses until Jan. 1, 1924.

More Brick Arrives.

Nine additional barges with 3,500,000 brick reached New York yesterday. Most of the material was sold at $20 a thousand "alongside" and $23.50 "on the job."

It was learned that one of the importers of Holland brick is Henry C. Irons Jr. of Henry C. Irons & Sons, 101 Park Avenue. Mr. Irons said he had contracted for 10,000,000 Holland brick to complete the $5-a-room apartment houses being erected for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in Queens. Mr. Irons said that Dutch brick could be brought to this market at the rate of 4,000,000 every ten days. The Waalsteen Company, on the Waal River, Holland, have a capacity of 600,000,000 brick a year, he added, selling mainly to European buyers and getting rid of their surplus to America.

The Electrical Contractors' Association conferred yesterday with the Electrical Workers' Union on the latter's request for an increase of $1 a day for the mechanics. The request was referred to the Council on Industrial Relations of the Electrical Industry, an organization of employers and employes. The requested wage increase effects 4,200 workers.

The reported proposal of brick manufacturers to curtail the supply of brick because of the American Construction Council's suggestion that banks refrain from advancing loans to speculative builders was scouted by the council yesterday.

Lawyer Left $500 to His Pair of Parrots; Court Sets Aside All But One Item of Will

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday confirmed a decree of the Surrogate's Court setting aside all but one provision of the will of George H. Hart, theatrical lawyer. The will had a provision for a trust fund of $500 for the maintenance of two parrots.

The clause relating to the parrots read: "I give and bequeath my two parrots to the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, with the request that they shall never be separated, and treated tenderly and in a manner worthy of the aims and pretensions of the society."

Alexander Pfeiffer, attorney for nieces of the testator, argued before the court that the will attempted illegally to care for the parrots, and that the will was void because it sought to care for five relatives in one trust fund, in which the bulk of the estate was placed. Mr. Pfeiffer contended that a single trust fund could not be drawn legally in favor of more than two persons.

The provision which was held valid by the Appellate Division bequeathed to the Society for Ethical Culture the testator's library, valued at $12,000, to be used by the society to establish classes for sex education among children.

The estate is valued at more than $50,000. The case was brought before the Surrogate originally by the United States Trust Company as an executor seeking guidance of the court.

ALIEN GUARANTEES GRANTED BY TURKEY

They Are to Follow the Cases of Foreigners in Turkish Courts and Advise the Ministry.

LAUSANNE, June 4 (Associated Press).—The British, French and Italian Governments having approved the formula for judicial guarantees relating to foreign residents in Turkey, the Near East conference tonight accepted it formally, and Turkey will make a public declaration agreeing to appoint four foreign advisers without interfering with the functions of the magistrates. The advisers will be authorized to follow all cases and make recomendations to the Turkish Ministry of Justice; they will receive complaints and must be informed promptly of all arrests and domiciliary searches. In deference to Turkish susceptibilities the Allies have agreed that there shall be no special mention of foreigners in the declaration, which applies to all residents in Turkey.

The Allies originally demanded that the advisers have the power of veto in connection with the arrest of foreigners; but Ismet Pasha insisted that the declaration as a spontaneous act of the Turkish Government showed how far Turkey was prepared to go to insure justice; that it was done for their own sake, as well as for foreigners, and was not according to foreigners any special rights.

Joseph C. Grew, the American representative, then arose and said he believed the Turkish declaration was intended to inspire confidence in the ability of Turkey to administer justice and secure to foreign citizens and companies the fundamental rights enjoyed under the best modern system of other countries. He was glad that Ismet had seen fit to specify some of the measures which Turkey planned to introduce.

"I venture to make one general observation, that the really important consideration is the largeness of the spirit in which the entire judicial system of Turkey is to be administered in the future. It is not one thing to establish more than Ismet Pasha that is in the interest of Turkey itself to interpret the terms of the declaration in the most liberal spirit. On the administration of justice within her borders more perhaps than on any other factor, will depend the economic future of Turkey and friendly relations with other countries."

The second distinctive feature of tonight's session was Turkey's announcement that Armenians now outside of Turkey would not be allowed to return unless able to prove to the satisfaction of the authorities that they intended to accept the Turkish régime and live as good citizens.

Ismet said it was imperative to exclude persons who had caused trouble in the past and suspected evil-doers.

General Pelle, French High Commissioner in Constantinople, pleaded for the right of 100,000 Armenians, at present in French Syria, to return; but Ismet refused, unless their good intentions could be established. A few days ago several talks with Ismet on the subject afterward, and the Turkish leader assured him that the decision concerning the Armenians would be interpreted liberally. Only those who would not agree to abide by the law would be permitted to return to their homes in Turkey.

The difficulties and delay which the negotiations at Angora for fixing the status of Christian missions in Turkey are encountering led the Allies today to ask Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation at the Peace Conference here, to consent to the insertion in the treaty of a protective clause of some kind insuring the rights of the concession holders.

No agreement was reached. Ismet insisting that the concessions should be dealt with on an entirely separate basis at Angora.

The Allies, it is known, are loath to sign a peace at Lausanne while the concessions problems remain unsettled. These include the French railroad concession, with which the Chester grant is said to be in conflict.

LONDON, June 4.—The Rome correspondent of the Central News says that, according to the Epoca, Gabriele D'Annunzio is on his way to Turkey to join Mustapha Kemal Pasha. D'Annunzio left Rome by airplane Saturday for an unknown destination.

CLOSE POLLING IN IOWA.

DES MOINES, Iowa, June 4.—Returns from 160 out of 233 precincts in the Eighth Iowa Congressional District give Hiram K. Evans, Republican, 10,200 votes, and J. H. Daughton, Democrat, 8,913.

Evans and Daughton were candidates to fill the unexpired term of Horace M. Towner, who resigned to become Governor of Porto Rico.

BARS THE PUBLIC FROM ARMS DEBATE

REDUCTION PLAN UP TODAY

Report on Lord Robert's Project for Mutual Guarantees Between States Is Expected.

GENEVA, June 4.—By 12 votes 7 Lord Robert Cecil's motion to have the debates of the League of Nations Commission for the Reduction of Armaments open to the public was defeated today at an open session here. Lord Robert said he wanted all the world to know what the commission was doing, what it was trying to do and what was preventing it from accomplishing all it wished to do; but the majority went against him. Among his supporters were three Labor members of the commission, on which nineteen countries are represented.

René Viviani of France, who has presided at former meetings of the commission, not being present, it was necessary to elect a new President, and it was expected that Lord Robert would be chosen. But there again he had a rebuff, Signor Schanzer, a former Foreign Minister of Italy, being elected.

The task which the commission has set for itself is the preparation for submission to the next meeting of the League of a plan of mtual guarantees between States which will render the reduction of their armaments possible. At the last session, in February, Lord Robert Cecil offered a plan for a general mutual guarantee, on which a subcommission will report tomorrow. There is also a plan, submitted by Colonel Requin, providing for mutual guarantees of assistance, and another proposal by Lord Robert for the demilitarization of certain frontier zones where trouble is likely to occur if they are left without restrictions of armament.

GENEVA, June 4 (Associated Press). The League of Nations Commission for the Reduction of Armaments presided over today by Signor Schanzer of Italy, took note of the measures of the secretariat respecting armament statistics and the effects of chemical warfare. The commission adopted the proposal of Colonel Requin of France, to request the council to ascertain whether it would be possible to invite the eight governments which were represented on the naval conference in Washington to communicate to the commission the views of their experts on chemical warfare.

The commission also took cognizance of the recent action of the Council of the League to learn the views of the American Government as to its co-operation with other Governments for the control of traffic in and private manufacture of arms and decided to ask the council to invite others States, not members, to give their views on the subject.

The commission received two other communications, one from Senor Urrutia Gas of Chile and the other from Senor Urrutia of Columbia. The first dealt with the results of the Pan American conference at Santiago, setting forth that the resolutions were in harmony with the work of the commission of the League, and that the discussion at Santiago were animated by the same spirit, sought the same results, met the same obstacles and inspired the same hopes.

The communication from Senor Urrutia had to do with the convention concluded in Washington in February by the five Central American States for the reduction of armaments.

"A remarkable example was set at that conference by the five republics of Central America," said the communication, an observation which brought cheers from the commission.

POINCARE TO AVOID DECISION IN BELGIUM

He Plans to Spend Only the Afternoon in Brussels Tomorrow Talking Reparations.

DEMANDS RESISTANCE END

No German Offer Will Be Considered Until Then—Anxious Over Baldwin's Plans.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 4.—Little decisive action toward settlement of the reparation problem is to be expected from the meeting of Premiers Poincaré and Theunis in Brussels on Wednesday. However, it may be that the result of the meeting will be to brighten the prospects which would attend the meeting later of all the allied Premiers.

It had been expected that by the time the French and Belgian Premiers met, a new and better German reparation offer would have been presented. Not only has it not come, but indications from Berlin are that Germany is as far distant as ever from the frame of mind which would make likely an amicable arrangement with the French. Written promises to pay, regardless of the sums named, will not bring a Berlin bargain with the French, for the basis of Poincaré's policy is that before the details of any proposal can be dismissed, German resistance in the Ruhr must cease, which means that Germany must acknowledge defeat.

As yet there have been no reports that Chancellor Cuno is walking about in sackcloth and ashes, and there are no widespread indications that the majority of Germans are wearing that costume.

The Belgians are showing an increasing desire to make concessions to the English point of view, especially since the present conduct of the Ruhr contest is seriously damaging their trade, and there is also the fact that since Belgium has been partly paid off by Germany they have not the same interest as the French in a long-drawn-out occupation of the Ruhr district.

When the last German offer came the Belgians wished to consult the British before replying, but Poincaré dissuaded them. Will he be able to do likewise with respect to the next German offer? It is doubtful. With the French and Germans seemingly as much at loggerheads as when the Ruhr was first occupied six months ago, it might seem that the situation offered an opportunity to the British Prime Minister, who as Chancellor of the Exchequer arranged for the payment of the British debt to America. However, in the Continental game of avoiding payment of debts the French commander of England is not only surrender of the English claims on Germany but cancellation of the French debts to Britain. It requires little imagination to see the domestic criticism that might be directed toward Baldwin if, after having committed England to pay what she owed, he went into the business of annulling what is owing to his country.

Speculate on Baldwin's Stand.

Premier Bonar Law in January offered to cancel the French debt to England if England maintained her 22 per cent. of German payments and if the reparation total was cut to 50,000,000,000 gold marks. The French refused that and their position is that they will consent to a cut to 50,000,000,000 if both England and America cancel their debt, or consent to a sum of 50,000,000,000 plus whatever America asks France to pay, provided always that England and France collect from France has absolute priority on German payments.

The question, then, would seem to be whether Baldwin will make any greater sacrifice than the law offered. He has as yet given no indication of intending to do so.

The basis of French hopes has been that their increasingly bad financial situation would persuade the Germans to accept the French terms. But the dollar is worth four time as many marks today as when the French went into the Ruhr, and Germany hasn't yet given way or changed its Government. The French count that their reasoning is still good, and they have only to wait until Germany gets sunk deep enough in the mud. Whether the rest of the world wants to wait until that happens remains to be seen. At the present writing the only hope of intervention seems to be from London. There isn't much the United States can do so long as Washington refuses to consider reduction of the allied debt.

Premier Poincaré is taking with him to Brussels his Ministers of Finance and Public Works and all their experts, while General Degoutte and High Commissioner Paul Tirard will come from the Rhineland to assist at the conference. Poincaré seems to believe it possibis that he will be able to settle the matter under discussion in the course of a single afternoon's talk, for his intention is to return to Paris on Tuesday night. If this is so, then there appears little chance of the proposals made two weeks ago by the Belgians being even quickly discussed.

At best the proposals made by the Belgians are likely to be referred to the experts for discussion but not decision, though they already had been long and carefully discussed by Belgian experts before they were submitted. The French admit that some points in the Belgian plan are worthy of very careful consideration and likely to prove eventually helpful toward solution. But the Quai d'Orsay is not yet anxious that these proposals should have official form or be presented to the world as a joint Franco-Belgian plan. If they were so presented the other Allies would have to be invited to join in the discussion, and appearance at least would be given to the claim which the Germans would certainly make that their passive resistance had won.

That situation is what Premier Poincaré is most anxious to avoid. He does not want any discussion before the German General Staff is ready, and it will be for that reason that the conference at Brussels probably will be prevented from developing a constructive settlement.

Baldwin Predicts Settlement.

PARIS, June 4.—Premier Stanley Baldwin of England, in a statement to the Petit Parisien, says:

"I had the good fortune last Winter to succeed in setting the delicate question of the Anglo-American debt. If the European questions now pending are approached in the same spirit, I do not see why we cannot manage to settle them also.

"In any case you can count on me to do my part with the greatest determination. Perhaps at the beginning we will meet with temporary checks, but I am certain that in the end success will crown our efforts."

Says Britain Sticks to January Offer.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, June 4.—Marcel Ray, who is the personal representative in London of Louis Loucheur, the head of great French steel interests and France's richest man, is seeking to sound British opinion for his chief, and it is reported that he had an interview with Premier Baldwin as well as several Treasury Department officials. He was told that Great Britain adhered to the Bonar Law figure on reparations of January last, but that she does not propose to do anything until the new German offer is received, which it is hoped will be this week.

It is understood that Ray also learned that Great Britain under Baldwin's régime is not likely to be as complaisant regarding Premier Poincaré's policy as it was under Mr. Bonar Law, and that it is more likely to oppose French extremism if it is convinced that Great Britain is making a reasonable offer.

In the meantime Treasury officials are busy bringing up to date British information as to Germany's ability to pay, and it is expected that Mr. Baldwin will be ready with a plan when the time comes. It is denied, however, that he is contemplating a visit to Vienna to consult M. Poincaré, as has been stated in some quarters.

A Trainload of Chocolate Started Westward From Here

Without an officia escort of boys and girls to see it start, and without a person to cheer it on its way, a solid trainload of chocolate started West last night over the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

In this single shipment, the largest of its kind on record, representatives of the Lehigh Valley Railroad said, there were 1,250,000 pounds of chocolate, shipped by a candy company in Stamford, Conn., to candy manufacturers in the Middle West. This mountain of sweetness will be used, it is said, in covering some five million pounds of chocolate candy, enough to provide every boy and girl in the United States with a small bar.

SCULPTOR TO PASS ON GOTHIC ART HERE

VIEW OF A PUPIL OF RODIN

George Grey Barnard, the sculptor, said yesterday that before the recent controversy arose over Gothic art sent to this country in recent years he had received a letter from the President of a French art society which is investigating the Louvre statues under suspicion asking for his opinion on works of Gothic art imported into the United States by various prominent collectors.

This letter showed the very definite desire on the part of French authorities on art to clear up the situation which was then developing, Mr. Barnard believed, and he said that he would be glad to act for the French society in any way that would aid in settling the controversy. He added that dealers in New York were getting together to challenge criticism of the sculpture in their studios and to maintain that they dealt only in genuine antiques. Such action had become necessary, he said, as the result of the controversy which has cast suspicion upon all antiques.

Further charges that the statue of St. Paul in the Metropolitan Museum is spurious, as maintained by Paris critics, and that the "Seated King" is probably not original, were made yesterday by Alexander Finta, Hungarian sculptor and pupil of Rodin, who was director of sculptural work of the Rio de Janeiro Centennial Exposition. He recently went to the Museum and examined the statues in question carefully.

"There are two principal ways to test the age of a statue," said Mr. Finta. "One is the manner in which the statue has been worked and the other is the reaction of the material of the statue to penetration by chisel.

"The texture of the surface of a statue is not only an indication of the age, but is also an open book to the very soul and the temperament of the artist. This texture is a better test as to the authorship of a statue than the form or the lines or the proportions of its details, because when the original master worked upon the statue, he did so with a feeling of certainty, hands that did not tremble, and the feeling of surety can be noticed upon the statue. If, however, an assistant were asked to work out details or to add to it, the uncertainty of handling, the feeling necessitated by following some one else's ideas are very evident. This texture to the expert is as sure proof of certain facts about the statue as the very handwriting of a person.

"The other method of testing a statue is by the way it reacts to penetration. The struggle for life exists in the cases of stones, too. With time they acquire a hardening film, a crystallized cover which surrounds the original object. This hardening, in the case of old statues, is even, uniform, while in the cases of imitations, where the age is supposed to be hidden by a covering of fluorine, this hardening is never uniform and in no case can it ever be imitated by chemical preparations.

"Regarding the 'Seated Figure,' of which Mrs. Michael Dreicer complains, I am convinced it is original. It is not a man's figure, as it was said to be, but that of a woman. I believe it is St. Anna's statue, teaching the child Mary. Although the face is chiseled away, it is obvious that the direction of the eyes is downward, the look in the eyes expresses benevolent teaching.

"The Apostles in that age were always shown to be looking upward, seeking God, and the fact that the figure is looking downward would show that it is a woman's figure. I believe that the technique of the statue is definitely bold, indicating originality. I believe that the 'Annunciation' and 'The Virgin and the Child' are also original.

"On the other hand, the statue of St. Paul, credited to Claus de Werve, is so perfect in all its details, its surface has been worked so thoroughly, that the very texture of the statue has been worked away, that I cannot but consider it an imitation. I hold the same opinion of the 'Seated King,' although an expert examination would require a longer period."

REPORTS ART FRAUDS PREVALENT IN FRANCE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 4.—Tomorrow an examining magistrate will be appointed by the Seine Court to inquire into the charges which have been made by the Duc de Trevise, President of the French Society for Safeguarding National Art, relative to the substitution in the Church of St. Sauveur of a modern copy for a twelfth century statue of the Virgin and Child.

That this strange case is only one of many which have occurred during recent years in France is now alleged. In an interview today the Duc de Trevise said:

"There is scarcely a week passes but a correspondent reports to us the disappearance of some work of art, either mysteriously or fraudulently, from our churches and country districts. This case which we have brought before the courts is not an isolated one. There is methodical pillage going on, well organized by some important group.

"No single individual could be guilty of the curate of a church that we would give him a perfect reproduction for his statue. He must have in his employ good copiers, good means of transport, and above all a good market a long way off where the originals after having been sufficiently camouflaged will not be detected.

"In all the cases we have discovered there was nothing left to chance. We are convinced that the organization which has been manipulating these thefts, substitutions and forgeries is rich and powerful, but the time has come for its exposure in the interest of French art.

"The exposé of the Kings of Parthenay, now in the Louvre, has interested me greatly.

"From the widow of a sculptor I have had confirmation of the extent to which he put his talent to the work of restoration carried often far beyond the legitimate. There is a great wrong being done, not only to those museums which spend money on art, but to those who study art, and I am glad that the Minister of Arts has asked for an inquiry which may soon bring the whole question to light."

FOSDICK RESIGNS; CHURCH HOLDS HIM

PRESBYTERY MUST ACT NOW

RESIGNATION SENT MAY 24

Assailed Preacher Wrote That He Did Not Wish to Give Up His Post.

The First Presbyterian Church announced yesterday that it had refused to accept the resignation of the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick from its pulpit.

With the announcement it became known for the first time that Dr. Fosdick had offered his resignation on May 24, as the result of the vote taken by the Presbyterian General Assembly at Indianapolis on May 23, condemning his liberal utterance from the pulpit and directing the New York Presbytery to compel the preachers in the First Presbyterian Church to conform to Presbyterian doctrines.

Dr. Fosdick, who is an ordained Baptist clergyman, as well as being a Professor of Practical Theology at the Union Theological Seminary, said in his letter of resignation that he did not wish to give up his post, but was willing to do so if the best interests of the church would be served.

In its reply the Session, the governing body of the church in spiritual affairs, complimented Dr. Fosdick on his work and declared that protests against his sermons were due to the misinterpretation of some of his statements, which had been separated from their context.

With Dr. Fosdick's church on record in his favor, the New York Presbytery must face a delicate situation when it meets on June 11 to consider the directions of the General Assembly to take action on his preachings.

Dr. Fosdick's Letter.

Dr. Fosdick's letter of resignation, as made public by Mr. Tifft, read as follows:

Mr. Henry N. Tifft,
Clerk of Session,
15 William Street,
New York, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Tifft:

I hereby hand you my resignation as stated preacher at the First Presbyterian Church. The action of the General Assembly in Indianapolis is such as to present a perplexing problem which concerns my preaching. I am very desirous that I shall never in any way be an obstacle to the best interests of the church. Those interests are paramount, and to protect them I wish you to take my resignation in your hands so that the session may act upon it at any time, severing my relations with the church.

Let me add, for the just expression of my position, that personally I have no reason to desire the severance of these relations. I am strongly

GEST POSTPONES ART THEATRE PLAN

PRODUCER GOING ABROAD

Max Reinhardt Will Be Brought Back to America in the Fall.

Morris Gest announced yesterday that he had abandoned, for the present at least, plans for the new art theatre which he had hoped to have had finished for the opening of the coming season.

Prevailing conditions in the theatrical world and the strife in the building trades were given by Mr. Gest as reasons for postponing the project.

Announcement of plans for the theatre was made early last Winter by Otto H. Kahn at a dinner at the Colony Club. A patron of the arts had advanced $350,000 to Mr. Gest, a site had been selected and a real estate company had arranged a loan of $1,000,000 to cover construction costs when Mr. Gest reached his decision to halt all preparations for starting actual work.

"I am sailing for Europe next Saturday on the Olympic to meet Max Reinhardt in Salsburg, Austria," said Mr. Gest yesterday. "Until I confer with Mr. Reinhardt, I have nothing to announce regarding the productions which he will direct next season, except to state positively that he will return to America in the Fall, having accepted my proposition to make several productions here next year.

"All stories regarding the theatre which we will use are rumors only. No contract has been signed.

"The Moscow Art Theatre will return to Russia, sailing next Thursday, June 14, on the Laponia for Hamburg, en route to Moscow. Constantin Stanislavsky, the Director, has invited me to visit Moscow as the guest of the company and it is possible that when I go to Berlin I will make the trip by airplane to Moscow.

"The principal object of my trip abroad, aside from business reasons, is to visit my parents, who are now in Berlin. My father and mother were in Odessa when the war broke out and I have not been able to see them in a great number of years. They suffered terrible privations during the war. They were able to leave Odessa last Winter and are now in comfortable circumstances in Berlin and it will be a great joy to visit them and to know that they are well and happy again.

"I feel that the day is coming when America will stand at the head of the world as the foremost theatrical producing nation. This is due, not only to the passing of the art centers of Europe because of the war, but also because of the great ambition of American producers who seek to put forth their best efforts regardless of monetary matters. The coming season, I believe, will witness a great revival of the artistic in this country. One feature of prime importance is the remarkable interest shown in plays of a religious nature. The theatre is secondary only to the church as the greatest medium of religion. I believe the day of salacious plays is over."

PLANS ENGLISH 'RING' CYCLE

George Blumenthal, who brought the Wagner Opera Festival from Berlin to Hammerstein's Manhattan last Winter, made public last night a plan for an English "Ring" cycle, which he has proposed in co-operation with Melvin H. Dalberg, director of the Berlin company's tour next season. According to this plan, Wagner's "Ring of the Nibelung" will be sung on four Friday afternoons, from Dec. 28 to Jan. 18 next, with the same stage production used in the German Ring cycle on Thursdays of the corresponding period at the Manhattan. It will also have the services of the State Symphony Orchestra under Josef Stransky.

Mr. Blumenthal said he had established headquarters with that orchestra at its offices in Carnegie Hall and had invited the co-operation of native American or English-speaking artists such as Florence Easton, Louise Homer, Orville Harrold, Clarence Whitehill, John Charles Thomas and others, for the English Wagner productions.

VIENNA, June 4.—Hostile demonstrations came near wrecking the first appearance in Budapest of Maria Jeritza, now star of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, since her return from America when students in the gallery hooted a performance of the Richard Kavalier because of the fantastic price charged.

All of Mme. Jeritza's performances are on a $4 scale, prices unprecedented in Hungary. Police protected the singer on her way home.

By JOHN CORBIN.

The Players' Revival.

THE SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL, a comedy in five acts and eight scenes by Richard Brinsley Sheridan. Revived by the Players, and Club at the Lyceum Theatre, Dec. 4.

Sir Peter Teazle	John Drew
Sir Oliver Surface	Tom Wise
Joseph Surface	Henry Hull
Charles Surface	Charles Richman
Sir Benjamin Backbite	Henry E. Dixey
Crabtree	Etienne Girardot
Sasha	Rosa Rosanova
Carlos	John Craig
Sir Harry Bumper	Reinald Werrenrath
Moses	Albert G. Andrews
Rowley	Albert Bruning
Trip	Ernest Lawford
Servant to Sir Peter Teazle	Grant Mitchell
Servant to Lady Sneerwell	Walter Hampden
Servant to Joseph Surface	Frederic Wilson
Lady Teazle	Ethel Barrymore
Lady Sneerwell	Viola Fumble-Cooper
Mrs. Candour	Charlotte Walker
Maria	Carrol McComas

According to a wit of Dick Sheridan's own vintage, the Boston Yankee Doodle "swore he could not see the town there was so many houses." The more or less Yankee Doodle of contemporary Manhattan was in a similar plight last evening on the occasion of the Players' revival of Sheridan's "School for Scandal." The play was not the thing. A glance at the playbill will tell why. One seems to have heard of a revival of "Hamlet" with a cast ranging from Edwin Booth as the Prince to Joseph Jefferson as First Gravedigger, but never in more recent memory had there been such an aggregation of distinguished talent and of popular favorites long and wisely loved.

Lest we forget, let it be recorded at once that Walter Hampden was Lady Sneerwell's valet and that Francis Wilson was Joseph Surface's butler, with the line on the order of "My Lord, the carriage waits." Grant Mitchell as Sir Peter's valet had no lines at all. There were plaudits for the most versatile of our young Shakespearean and scenic artistes for the late Frederick Lewis. Grant Mitchell mutely triumphed in his own tradition by evoking laughter as admiring as it was decisively friendly.

How shall one be right by the various stars in the galaxy? Ethel Barrymore was so forgetting, though all moment occurred in the first scene. Under her touch, that miniature vixen, Snake, took on an intensity of characterization, a touch of imagination, that are not always found in Miss Barrymore. The Backbite of Harry Dixey, the Crabtree of Etienne Girardot, the Rowley of Albert Bruning, the Trip of Ernest Lawford and the Lady Sneerwell of Viola Fumble-Cooper had their touches of distinction, which was the distinction of an artist tried and true. One and all were taken to the very hearts of the audience.

The focus and luminous centre of the occasion was of course the Sir Peter and Lady Teazle of John Drew and Ethel Barrymore. Their welcome was tumultuous, and each made a dear little speech that said merely: "I love you all, and thank you." But there was more in the performances of both than such familiar effects in the beloved companion of memorable hours.

"The Drews is all good actors," and, in spite of occasional and manifest shortcomings, each put his own seal, the stamp of feminine creation upon these great parts at one of the most hackneyed and most richly illumined of the post-Shakespearean comedy.

Mr Drew was not always sure of his lines, and he sometimes fell short of his Sir Peter's mellow humanity and choleric rages. In these respects his performance will certainly gain in repetition. But there was a light of the spirit in this Sir Peter which I, returned to think it has never known before—and which is, indeed, a new note in Mr. Drew's own gamut.

It was most clearly evident in the screen scene. When Lady Teazle stood forth and made a clean breast of her folly, putting down Joseph's hypocrisy with plain talk, Sir Peter faced away from her with a countenance that was rigid of muscle, yet transfigured. It was the face of George Washington, and it was lighted by an inward intensity of personal love, the chisel of Houdon. But it told the whole story of a rich nature illumined through suffering. Admirable comedian though Mr. Drew has always been, he has never before so clearly shown the touch of greatness.

Miss Barrymore's performance was surer in detail and more fully rounded. In the last few months decades have fallen out of her calendar. This was the Ethel of old, with eyes of dancing merriment and poetic languor, with a smile that slanted at the corners into haunted, mysterious regions of feminine humor and intimate endearment. But it was not the old Ethel, either. Acquired Here was Lady Teazle herself.

The generations have rediscussed until it is threadbare the question of which is the truer interpretation—the original one of Mrs. Abington or the coquettish girl of Mrs. Jordan, who was only playing the fine lady. Miss Barrymore somehow managed to be both, and to convince one that the heroine of Sheridan's imagining was the same. There is country wholesomeness and robust spirit, but it was part and parcel of a nature so abundant and of an intelligence so fine that it encompassed also the not very mysterious wiles and distinctions of the city maiden.

Doubtless there have been productions of this sterling and ever-vivacious comedy that more completely embodied its spirit; but the Players have managed to get under it in a pleasing and most happy variety of luminous points.

EQUITY HAS $110,923 TO UPHOLD SHOP POLICY

Plans for Possible Struggle With Managers in 1924—Emerson Again Head.

The entire regular ticket for officers and council members of the Actors' Equity Association was elected yesterday at the tenth annual meeting of the organization at the Hotel Astor, at which plans in general for the coming year were announced.

The officers elected to serve during the next year were: President, John Emerson; First Vice President, Ethel Barrymore; Second Vice President, Grant Mitchell; Recording Secretary, Grant Stewart; Treasurer, Frank Gillmore. The following new council members were elected, to serve three years, replacing those whose terms have expired: Edmund Breese, Frederic Burt, Will Deming, Lee Ditrichstein, Malcolm Duncan, Elsie Ferguson, Henry Hull, Doris Keane, Otto Kruger, Bert Lytell, Bruce McRae, Ralph Morgan, Rollo Peters, Edith Gayer, Joseph Santley and Ernest Truex. Alexandra Carlisle and Paul Harvey were elected council members to serve until the annual election of 1924, to take the place of members who have resigned.

Assets of $110,923, of which $58,000 is in cash, were reported at the meeting by Frank Gillmore, Executive Secretary and Treasurer. A gross gain of $13,091 acquired in the last year was shown in Mr. Gillmore's report, read in connection with Equity's plans for strengthening its stand in anticipation of a possible struggle with the managers after June 1, 1924, when the present agreement between Equity and the Producing Managers' Association expires.

The activities of the Association during the last year, according to the report, include work at the legislative centres opposing the pending Texas "anti" law on tent shows, the pending South Carolina bill to place an additional 10 per cent. tax on theatre tickets, and the bills in Wisconsin and Albany legalizing Sunday performances.

SCULPTORS SHOW WORK.

Six Artists Represented in School's Winter Term Exhibition.

Visitors will find much of interest in the exhibition of the work of the Winter term of the School for Sculpture, 9 East Fifty-ninth Street, founded by the late Solon H. Borglum and now carried on under the direction of W. Frank Purdy, with instructors Mahonri Young, Anna Vaughn Hyatt, Laura Gardin Fraser, Brenda Putnam, Frances A. Kent and Louise Durant, which is continuing in the spirit of its originator.

Six pieces which represent work done this last season by as many artists are a delightful "Toucan," a bird with a heavy bill, which lends itself admirably to sculpture in bronze, a garden piece by Frances A. Kent; a "Lioness" is by Hester Brancroft; "Brownberry," a horse, by Eliza Talbot; both in plaster; "Unawarened" is a bronze by Helen Rand, and a bronze "Pluto" standing on one foot is by Helen Robinson. Another bird, a delightful little plaster in simple lines, is "Preening," also by Miss Robinson. A quaint iron fire back is by Jane Sage White.

There are also on exhibition models in relief, the "Wars of America," in the form of four squares, decoration for the New Canaan War Memorial, which is to be in the form of a runic cross.

The Solon Borglum Memorial Scholarship, which goes each year to that pupil of the best work in structure, was awarded to Mary L. Tarleton. Three Bessie H. Hunts Memorial prizes, which will be awarded today, are to go one for the best work in animals shown, "Beginning of a Self-Made Man," a nice boy in bronze by Emily Jewell, is to be given as an award to the "man who has done the most for children in New York City."

The exhibition will be continued through June 9 from 2 to 6 P. M. daily. An innovation is to be made at the school this year and there will be a Summer term in the city studio, Mr. Borglum considered a Summer school in Silvermine. The school in the city will accommodate many pupils who might not find it possible to go out of town.

Love in China.

THE RAGGED EDGE, with Alfred Lunt, Miriam Seegar, Georgie MacQuarrie, Orrin Tilden Frank, Charles Lane, Charlotte Ives, Fang and others. Adapted from Harold MacGrath's story by Forrest Halsey, directed by Raimon Wright. Atmospheric background, particularly of oriental interiors. At the Capitol.

"The Ragged Edge," as the photoplay being presented this week at the Capitol is entitled, possesses the redeeming feature of being a story of adventure in China and the South Sea Islands. And after having seen pictures of Palm Beach, Los Angeles, San Francisco, New York and Long Island, it is refreshing to return to Celestial settings. On a warm afternoon the comfort of the players in the picture serves as an inspiration along the Good lines. Every . . . I am feeling cooler and cooler." When the water is shown rolling on the beach of the supposed South Sea island a gentle zephyr that really comes from one of Mr. Rothafel's fans causes one to forget the wilted collar brought about through hastening to the Capitol.

But trying to keep track of the tale hidden in "The Ragged Edge" brings out beads of perspiration on one's brow. The sub-titles are exasperatingly trite, so that one must forget that they lack subtlety in order to keep cool.

The settings of the Orient with great doors and gates, pleasing interiors and interesting narrow roadways are competently done and the photographing is quite artistic.

Alfred Lunt plays the part of Howard Spurlock. In the opening scenes he staggers around gripping a big roll of bills, first offering them to the hotel manager to keep for him, and then reconsidering his decision and taking them with him on a trip through Canton, inviting assault and robbery. Howard discovers that the Oriental cocktail is quite potent. His walk is wabbly, and eventually he is laid up, very ill. A sweet young thing, Ruth Endicott (played by Miriam Palmer), a missionary's daughter who does not know the least thing about fashions, turns up at an opportune moment in her mother's 1873 bustle model. She decides to nurse Howard back to health, and succeeds. To show his gratitude because scandalmongers have been busy in the hotel, Howard takes her for his bride. He does not seem enthusiastic about the marriage, but this is merely because he thinks he is unworthy of her.

There is a detective searching that part of the world for Howard, who purloined money belonging to himself, but which his wicked stepfather refused to give up. Ruth and Howard leave for some South Sea island or other, where they live in apathy, their sole amusement being washing a dog. One day, while Howard, who is an author, is busy in his South Sea island downtown office, a beachcomber appears from a cockle-shell boat, having stolen it right from the Spurlock home. He attacks Ruth, and Howard, having a premonition something is wrong, hastens to her. The first three rounds go to the beachcomber, well played by Christian Frank. Howard, game to the last, getting his teeth, finally gets in the knockout, and the villain staggers forth to the sands, and, after cutting a native, flops into his fifty cracks.

Then the detective, who has been searching all the islands in the neighborhood for Spurlock, appears. Of course he is with Howard's Aunt Emma. They only wanted to find Howard Spurlock to tell him that just as his wicked stepfather was calling for the police he crumpled up and died. So as there was nothing more to worry about, Howard told Ruth that he loved her.

Mr. Lunt is fair in his part, but suffers from too much obedience to the director. In the fight with the beachcomber you can tell almost where he's going to fall. Lunt is pale when he's ill and pale when well. Miss Palmeri has beautiful eyes, and, considering her limited screen experience, she is quite good. Charles Fang is interesting and convincing as Ah Gum, and Mr. Frank as the beachcomber enters into the spirit of what he has to do with zest. Despite shortcomings, this photoplay is moderately entertaining.

WOULD WIDEN HIGH BRIDGE.

Board of Trade and Transportation Suggests Improvements.

A suggestion not only to save High Bridge, but to widen it for vehicular traffic and improve its approaches, was made yesterday to Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, by the New York Board of Trade and Transportation. Murray Hulbert, President of the Board of Aldermen, has made a similar suggestion. Immediate decision in the matter was said to be important, because the War Department has notified the city that unless a decision is made by June 15 the money authorized by Congress for improvements in the Harlem River will be diverted to other projects.

Piers of the bridge obstruct river traffic, and the Federal authorities are understood to be unwilling to improve the river unless the piers are removed. The New York Board of Trade and Transportation made these suggestions:

"Remove from the river two or three piers as may be necessary to clear the stream of such obstructions; retain the bridge structures at both ends as they now exist; span the space between these two abutments by such proper structure as the engineers may advise, the head room depending upon the character of the structure used, to be made 100 or more feet above high tide; widen the present pathway on top of the bridge by extending it out on both sides to afford room for vehicles."

HIGH YIELD?

Yes—but what about next year? And the years to come?

Well located electric light and power companies have shown more consistent earning power, independent of changing business conditions, than any other industry.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

So far as concerns the business done, yesterday's stock market was with two exceptions the smallest of any full business day this year; the two days which fell below it being those which marked the lapse into complete indecision in the middle of last month. This might seem to indicate return of the perplexity which then prevailed regarding the business future, but which was seemingly swept aside by the next week's vigorous recovery on the Stock Exchange. It would probably be admitted even in business circles that it is not easy at the moment to predict the exact course of trade during the balance of the year.

What may be called the psychological influences—the impulses which made middlemen and retailers overplay their market in 1920 but which this year have inspired a dread of repeating that experience—may be the altogether dominant factor. But it is also not yet clear to what extent the large requirements, accumulated by the "underconsumption" after 1920, have been provided for by the record-breaking production and distribution of the first quarter. The feeling that this question can be answered only by the test of a full season's retail markets no doubt has a part in the present hesitation, in and out of the Stock Exchange.

In the day's narrow market, the action of prices was conflicting. Different stocks moved simultaneously in opposite directions; in the end there were numerous advances of a point or more but numerous equally substantial declines. On the whole the advances predominated; notably so in the railway shares, which were distinctly strong. It is hard not to be hopeful of the transportation outlook with the extraordinary weekly reports of traffic loaded. But even these stocks closed below the day's best prices.

Prices on other markets were more or less reactionary. Cotton was firm for "old-crop delivery months" but declined for more distant deliveries; the spot price going to the lowest figure in more than two weeks, 1¾ cents below the highest reached in the late recovery of May. Another 2-cent decline carried wheat under the previous low price of the year to date. The German mark abruptly recovered its loss of the last two business days; the dollar bringing 67,700 marks at yesterday's closing price, as against 80,000 on Saturday. For this the natural explanation was used by the Reichsbank of its foreign gold balances to arrest the sweep of the decline. "Stabilization" has been abandoned, but the purpose of preventing a runaway decline is evidently still entertained. Except for the mark, the day's trend in European exchange was downward.

The average decline of ⅝ of 1 per cent. in prices, reported by Dun's Review as having occurred in May, would hardly seem at first glance to measure the recent reaction. The June 1 average as given is in fact less than 1 per cent. below the year's highest monthly average, that of April 1. It so happens, however, that the advance in prices was not checked until later in April; also that a number of commodities, notably cotton and copper, reached their low point of reaction early in May and have subsequently recovered. Professor Fisher's "weighted" weekly index number has indicated a decline of 4¾ per cent. between the high point of April and last week, following an advance of 7⅝ per cent. since the middle of January.

Last week's London Economist average of British prices showed a decline of about ⅝ of 1 per cent. in May, following an advance of 4 per cent. since the beginning of the year; which does not suggest any very great difference in net result from that of the American average. In considering the familiar argument that our recent "import surplus" is a result of relatively higher prices here than in Europe, it is worth while to observe that the British average even now stands 72 per cent. above July, 1914, while our own is 50 per cent. higher than at that date; the discount from gold parity in the exchange value of the British currency being barely 3 per cent.

MONDAY, JUNE 4, 1923.

Stock Exchange call money was steady at 4¾ per cent., a fractional advance over Friday's final rate. Time money started the week bid and offered at 5 per cent., unchanged from quotation ruling last week, but in only few instances were there any sizable trades reported, and these were for the short dates, with little interest on the part of borrowers in longer maturities. Commercial paper market was quiet and without change at 5 per cent., while acceptances showed no variation in discount on bills, but a slight easing in call loan rate to 4¼ per cent.

On the same basis the highest London price for gold for the year to date was 106 on Jan. 30. The highest price since open trading in gold was reanimated at London in September, 1919, was 149⅝, on Feb. 6, 1920; the lowest, 102⅜, on Feb. 21, 1923.

FOREIGN EXCHANIE.

On a comparatively light volume of business several of the leading European exchanges fluctuated rather nervously yesterday, the French, Italian, Danish and Belgian rates showing weakness and lower levels, while sterling, marks and guilders ranged from steady to a few points improvement.

The weakness in Italian remittances has been very generally attributed to the seasonal purchases of wheat and to offering of bills on Rome by Greek merchants who desired the return of balances to Athens, the drachma having recently pushed up to the year's best price at 5 cents. The decline in French and Belgian checks is undoubtedly the result of an impending German reparations offer. Paris sagging to 6.40½ cents from 6.47⅝ on Saturday, while Antwerp dropped to 5.55 cents from a previous 5.58. German marks reacted favorably, moving up more than 2 points to 14⅞ ten-thousandths of a cent, and representing a covering movement by previous sellers for the decline. Sterling was firm at $4.62⅝.

The Scandinavians were weak, Danish featuring by a decline to a new low at 18.32 cents, Norway and Sweden being less affected. Lower silver prices in London and New York continued to work to the disadvantage of the silver countries, all Eastern currencies showing marked depreciation.

In the subjoined table the quotation on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

Although the movement of prices on the Stock Exchange was more or less irregular during the greater part of yesterday, the strength in certain specialties gave the industrial group a steady appearance. The railroad stocks generally were higher, under leadership of the dividend-paying issues. At the start of business a firm tone prevailed. This continued until around noon, when certain stocks in the oil group were again under pressure, as a result of the numerous reports circulated about the Street to the effect that the efforts on the part of leading producers to curtail production were not meeting with the success desired. Although sharp declines were recorded in many of the oil stocks, especially in the case of California Petroleum, Marland Oil and Pan-American, these losses were offset by gains in other sections of the list, thus enabling the industrial average to show a slight gain for the day.

A New Reparation Offer?

International bankers, who had their ears close to the cables yesterday, professed to be extremely optimistic about the turn the reparation controversy is likely to take in the next two or three weeks. The correspondents in London of some of the big Wall Street banks were gossiping over the cables that they fully expected the reparation problem to be settled by the turn of the half year. On this side, the belief was expressed yesterday that the leader of the movement for settlement is not a German nor a Frenchman but an Englishman, and that England's new Premier has turned his attention to the settlement of this problem in a business-like way, which may possibly produce results. One banker, who has recently returned from Europe, declared yesterday that there has never before been so much international "sounding out" among the principal nations of Europe as is going on at the present time. Comment was made in Wall Street that if Premier Baldwin were to succeed in smoothing over differences in this matter, his own political fortune would be made.

Tariff Forecasts.

Three distinct theories have their supporters in Wall Street regarding the trade movement for the rest of 1923, that business activity will reach a greatly increased scale in the Autumn because of the present pause, that the present reaction will continue in the later months, and that a quiet but substantial and profitable volume of trade will be the outcome, lasting longer because not pressed on a scale which might upset the money or labor market.

A High and a Low Record.

Two stocks of like character moved decidedly in opposite directions yesterday. These were Davison Chemical and General Asphalt. One advanced to 29, a new high record for the current year to date, while the other sold down to 33¾, a new low record for the year. In connection with the rise of Davison Chemical, reports were circulated about the Street that the company was making progress in disposing of rights for the licensing of its "silica gel" process for refining petroleum products. The companies mentioned are Pan-American Petroleum and Royal Dutch. Pan-American is known to have made proposals for the rights to erect an experimental plant to test the value of the process, but officials of the company insist that no contract has been made and none will be made until the experiments have been completed. Little was known regarding the cause for the break in General Asphalt, but the theory was advanced that the heavy oil production in this country might affect the company's properties in South America.

The Banking Attitude.

It may safely be said that, in the opinion of the majority of bankers, the money market is thoroughly sound and that little change is to be anticipated in the position of either the member banks or Reserve banks before early Fall. One of the most conservative bankers in the Wall Street district declared yesterday that the feeling in conservative circles is more satisfactory than at any time this year. "Commercial paper offerings are light," he said, "but notwithstanding the activity in production and trade now sustained for a good many months, there is no pressure for credit." Probably never before in the view of this banker has so large a volume of business been handled with so small a percentage of borrowed capital. The banks are still carrying large holdings of bonds too, to keep their funds employed, and the strength of the bond market of late is a sign that they are not unloading.

Electrifying the Railways.

When Governor Smith on Saturday signed the bill for the electrification of the railroads in New York City he put the next step in the plan up to the railroads; but judging from the comment in railroad circles yesterday, the railroads are still in doubt as to what it will be. The reason for this hesitancy is the great number of serious obstacles that must be overcome if the roads carry the letter of the law into effect. One of these is the matter of grade crossings, a third-rail system being out of the question unless provision has been made for such crossings, it was said in railway circles yesterday. Furthermore, the railroad men add, there is the question of raising between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000, the estimated cost of such an improvement. The law makes it compulsory for the work to be completed not later than Jan. 1, 1926.

More Rumors About California Petroleum.

About every ten days a new rumor circulates regarding possible developments in the affairs of the California Petroleum Company. Each of these rumors is connected with the possibility of Pan-American Petroleum Company sooner or later turning up as owner of the property. In official circles these reports are discredited, and the statement is made that the linking up of the two companies is due in part to the fact that a prominent banking firm on Broad Street, which has been buying the stock in large blocks of late, happens to be the banking representative for both companies. Yesterday's report in the financial district was that California Petroleum, shortly after the official exchange of the $100 par stock for four shares of $25 par stock, would declare a 50 per cent. stock dividend, and that as soon as this was consummated the Pan-American Petroleum Company would offer one share of its B stock for two shares of California new stock.

One for the Book.

A correspondent sends in a clipping from a newspaper published in Cardiff, Wales, giving an account of the winding up of the affairs of the Kestell Steamship Company, from which he infers that managers and boards of directors may still learn a few tricks from their more conservative brethren in the old country. The Cardiff news item sets forth that in liquidating the corporation, Directors made provision for the payment of 10 per cent. of the gross assets to the management "as compensation for the loss of managerial office, of which sum 1 per cent. is to be allocated and apportioned to such officials and members of the management staff as the Directors and Managers may decide."

An Indication of Strength

In 1922 the Natural Gas Division of Cities Service Company served a population of 1,658,000 and sold 38,600,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas, which is approximately ten per cent. of the total supply of natural gas distributed yearly in the United States.

CUBA MAY BUY BACK FIFTH OF BOND ISSUE

BANKERS HERE OPTIMISTIC

Move Attributed to High Prices Cuban Planters Received for Sugar Crop.

Because of the great improvement which has taken place in Cuba in the last few months, due in the main to the high prices planters received for their recently harvested crop, preliminary conversations have been inaugurated for the repurchase of approximately one-fifth of the bonds sold to New York bankers by the Republic of Cuba early in the year. It is generally believed in the financial district that the amount of the original $50,000,000 issue to be taken back by Cuba will total approximately $10,000,000, which would clean up all but a small part of the undistributed portion of the issue.

To provide opportunity for negotiations along this line and for additional distribution of bonds, as buyers inquire for them, the life of the banking syndicate, headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., which underwrote the issue has been extended to Sept. 1, 1923. It had been originally planned by the bankers to close the underwriting syndicate and distribute the unsold portion of the bonds to the underwriters on or about June 1, but the manner in which Cuba has recovered in the four months the bonds have been on sale has brought about a new turn of affairs, and it is likely that Cuba will be able to do with $40,000,000 instead of the $50,000,000 originally scheduled.

A comparison of sugar prices today and those of mid-January, when the bonds were offered for sale, presents a graphic illustration of the improvement which has taken place in the Republic's principal crop. In January, when the bonds were issued, contracts for the delivery of Cuban raw sugar during July were selling at 3.60 cents per pound. The same contracts sold yesterday in the New York market at 5.20 cents. They were considerably higher before the Government's suit against dealing in sugar futures—the resultant boycott by purchasers tending to unsettle and frighten the market. Of course, the higher price for sugar has worked only sympathetically in the case of revenues for the Cuban Government, but it has greatly increased Cuba's receipts from taxation and, in other ways, has produced a period of prosperity on the island.

The issue of Republic of Cuba External Sinking Fund Gold bonds bear 5½ per cent. interest and are redeemable at par after twenty years from issue, as a whole only. They were offered for sale during early January by a syndicate of bankers, including J. P. Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the National City Company, the Guaranty Company of New York, Bankers' Trust Company, Harris, Forbes & Co., J. & W. Seligman & Co., and Dillon, Read & Co. at prices to yield about 5.55 per cent.

Approximately one-half of the issue was taken by investors in the first week or so that the books were open, and since then, there have been sales of the bonds by the underwriters every day or two. Thus, practically all except $10,000,000, in round numbers, have been distributed and are in the strong-boxes of investors. The issue has been listed on the New York Stock Exchange and the bonds have never dropped below their issuance price of 99¾ and have sold up to 99½. The market in them, of course, has been entirely a nominal one.

Negotiations for the return to Cuba of $10,000,000 of these bonds are for the moment in the preliminary stage but bankers familiar with the issue and with the improved conditions of Cuba, were optimistic yesterday that the deal would finally be consummated.

LAST OF VICTORY BONDS ARE COMING IN SLOWLY

Redemptions Last Week Large, but 'Country Holders' Are Taking Their Time.

The redemption of Victory notes called recently by the United States Treasury, went ahead more rapidly last week than had been expected, according to information obtained yesterday from sources in close touch with affairs of the Government's Treasury. The New York district reported a relatively rapid and large amount of Victory notes turned in, it was said, while those districts in which a large part of the population lives on scattered farms is meeting with more difficulty, due in a measure to the greater difficulty in getting word of the call to all holders.

In the case of New York, it was further explained, the bulk of the notes were held for "large accounts," holders of which were eager to get their money—now drawing interest no longer—and to convert it into interest-bearing paper. Many "small" holders," it was said, seemed quite content to let their savings rest in Government paper, which they regard as "safer than a bank," even though no further interest is accruing.

One result of this tendency, which reacts to the benefit of the taxpayer, is the fact that the Treasury Department saves a considerable sum of interest though still retaining the money which properly belongs to the hoarding noteholder and doing so in many cases for several months or so. Eventually the funds accumulated to redeem the "Victorys" will be called for, except in cases where coupon bonds have been lost or destroyed.

FORD EMPLOYES GET 5% EXTRA DIVIDEND

BANK INCREASES ITS RATE

Announcements of Distributions Include Parke Davis and Loose-Wiles Co. Payments.

New dividend announcements yesterday included initial payments, extra dividends and disbursements on account of cumulated dividends.

The Ford Motor Company yesterday announced an extra dividend of 5 per cent. and the regular semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent. on the investment certificates sold by the company to its employes. The dividend amounts to 8 per cent. and covers the first six months of the current year.

Directors of the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Company declared a dividend of $7 a share on the second preferred stock, payable Aug. 1, 1923, to stockholders of record July 18. The dividend covers the period from Feb. 1, 1920, to Feb. 1, 1921. At the same time the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. was declared on the first preferred stock, payable July 1 to stock of record June 16.

Directors of Parke Davis & Co. have declared an extra dividend of 75 cents a share on the capital stock, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share. Both dividends are payable June 30 to stockholders of record June 20. Three months ago an extra dividend of $1.25 a share was declared, and six months ago the extra dividend amounted to $1 a share.

An initial dividend of $1 a share was declared on the capital stock of the Cuyamel Fruit Company, payable June 28 to stock of record June 15.

The Columbia Bank increased the semi-annual dividend rate on the capital stock by declaring a disbursement of $5 a share payable July 1. This places the stock on a 10 per cent. annual dividend basis, against a previous rate of 8 per cent.

American Smelting and Refining Company Directors will meet June 12 for dividend action on the common stock. According to reports in the financial district, resumption of payments is expected.

KARDOS WROTE ROMANCE.

Called It "Within the Walls of Wall Street," Says Bankruptcy Witness.

Attorneys for L. Barton Case, trustee in the bankruptcy of the former Consolidated Stock Exchange firm of Kardos & Burke, which failed with liabilities of $1,500,000 in February, 1922, sought to trace undiscovered assets at a hearing yesterday before Referee Peter B. Olney, at 68 William Street. The principal witness, Harry J. Murray, of Stamford, Conn., who was cashier for Kardos & Burke at the time of the failure, denied that he had turned over any shares of stock to any one on the day preceding the failure.

"I didn't have a chance to turn anything over," Murray said. "The failure was a shock and a surprise to me."

"Did you receive any funds from Louis M. Kardos Jr., prior to the bankruptcy?" Attorney Benjamin Bulmer, attorney for the trustee, asked. Bulmer told the referee that he was trying to prove that assets of Kardos & Burke had gone into the firm of L. R. Beatty & Co. Murray replied that he had received nothing from Kardos. Murray said Kardos was not associated in any way with L. R. Beatty & Co.

"Kardos had a desk in the office of L. R. Beatty & Co.," he said, "and the only thing I heard of his doing there was the writing of a romance called 'Within the Walls of Wall Street.' He had a desk in the office only a short time."

Murray said he knew nothing about a financial statement said to have been submitted by Kardos & Burke to the Consolidated Stock Exchange in September, 1921.

The hearing was adjourned to June 11.

MERCANTILE MARINE TO PASS DIVIDEND

DEFICIT SHOWN FOR 1922

The semi-annual dividend on the preferred stock of the International Mercantile Marine Company will be passed at the next meeting of the Directors. P. A. S. Franklin, Chairman of Directors, told the stockholders at the annual meeting yesterday that the Finance Committee had decided last week to recommend such action to the Directors because of the existing situation regarding earnings and the uncertain outlook.

In answer to questions, Mr. Franklin said it would be difficult to make a forecast of the shipping situation. Business, he added, is worse than last year, and earnings will continue poor until the world situation improves and trading conditions approach normal, he said. Any improvement in the European situation is expected to be immediately reflected in the company's earnings.

The preliminary statement of earnings for 1922 was made public yesterday. It showed a deficit from operations of $1,266,785, compared with a surplus of $5,197,847 in 1921. The detailed report follows:

Net earnings, including insurance fund surplus for 1922, after deducting operating and general expenses, taxes and interest on debenture bonds of subsidiary companies	*$7,071,140	$14,085,056
Interest on I. M. M. Co. bonds	2,256,253	2,158,725
Depreciation on steamers	5,948,660	6,117,950
Net result	†$1,269,783	$ 5,797,347

*For proper comparison with results of previous years the earnings of the British companies have been converted at $4.85 per £ Sterling.

"From the foregoing figures," says the report, "it will be seen that the actual operation of all the steamers and business of your company and its subsidiaries for the year 1922 resulted in a profit of $4,714,877.07 after deducting all expenses, taxes and bond interest. However, against this profit must be charged the full depreciation on the steamers, amounting to $5,984,660.85, after which the estimated net result shows a loss of $1,269,783.78 for the year.

"The International Mercantile Marine Company, from the dividends received from its subsidiary companies out of their earnings for the year 1922 and prior thereto and from the operation of the steamers it owns directly, shows an estimated profit, as below, amounting to $5,899,743.92 for the year 1922 after deducting all expenses, bond interest and depreciation on the steamers directly owned.

Total net earnings of I. M. M. Co. plus dividends from subsidiary companies after deducting taxes and general expenses	*$6,534,838	*$8,329,509
I. M. M. Co. bond interest	2,256,253	2,158,725
	$4,098,584	$6,175,885
Depreciation on steamers directly owned	998,584	998,584

"The marked decrease in the consolidated earnings for 1922, as compared with 1921, was largely caused by the decrease in the movement of third-class passengers, both east and westbound, due to the immigration laws and the unsettled conditions in Europe, which heavy loss of business was only slightly compensated for by a very moderate increase in the movement of first and second-class passengers.

"In addition to this unfavorable passenger situation, the freight business has been exceedingly bad, there having been a reduction in the volume of general traffic moving all over the world, but particularly between the United States and the United Kingdom and Continent of Europe, and also more active competition including that of government-owned steamers with a consequent reduction in freight rates to a point where in many cases the actual cost of loading and discharging the cargo was hardly covered.

"It has unfortunately been impossible to materially reduce the cost of operating the steamers, largely due to the cost of fuel and the high cost of labor, both afloat and ashore.

"We regret exceedingly to inform you that the business for the first four months of 1923 shows even less satisfactory results than for the corresponding period of 1922, due to the continuation of the same conditions as outlined above, and a supply of tonnage far in excess of the present requirements of either the passenger or the freight business moving. We feel that it must be recognized that until the political situation in Europe materially improves and the present serious economic difficulties are remedied business cannot be expected to begin to approach a normal condition, and until that is accomplished the movement of both passengers and freight will be seriously interfered with, which is most prejudicial to the business of your company.

"We are holding our full share of traffic in the important trades in which we are established, and our steamers are all being maintained in excellent condition, so that we are in strong position to take advantage of any improvement when it comes."

MINING CO. STOCK CHANGE.

BOSTON, June 4.—Shareholders of the Calumet and Hecla Mining Company voted today to increase the capital stock from 100,000 shares to 800,000 shares of the present par value of $25. The new stock will be distributed to shareholders in the ratio of eight new shares for one of the old stock.

The increase is said to be the first step in the proposed merger of the Calumet Company with four subsidiaries, the Allouez, Algonac, Osceola and Centennial.

It was voted also to declare the present stock, of which $12 a share has been paid in, fully paid, and the new shares were declared fully paid. This is the first change in the company's capital since it was incorporated in 1871. In that time it has paid, including the $10 dividend due on June 10, a total of $170,150,000 in dividends, or $170,150 a share.

PONDER NEW LAW.

Roads Face Vast Expenditure Here Under Electrification Act.

Railroads affected by the Electrification bill signed on Saturday by Governor Smith, providing for the electrification of all trackage in New York City, were undecided yesterday as to just what their next move would be. The law, it is estimated, if made effective, will cause the expenditure of between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000 by railroads entering New York, between now and Jan. 1, 1928.

The roads most seriously hit by the law are the New York Central, with its west side track; the Long Island, with its freight trackage on Long Island, and the Baltimore & Ohio on Staten Island.

"What can we do?" said a representative. "It is not merely a matter of putting down a third rail and turning on the current. There are many grade crossing on our railroad where a third rail would be a source of great danger to the lives of pedestrians. That is out of the question.

Provision must be made for handling this problem and many others before the work can proceed. Permission to eliminate the grade crossings was not provided in the bill and must be obtained from some outside source."

It is understood there will be a meeting of the board of the Long Island Railroad on Wednesday, at which some action may be taken.

Ulster & Delaware Report.

The annual report of the Ulster & Delaware Railroad Company for 1922, showed a deficit after interest charges of $112,870, compared to a net of $5,726 in 1921 on the $1,000,000 outstanding capital stock. On Dec. 31, 1922, the profit and loss surplus was $780,455, against $1,096,321 the previous year, while current assets at the end of last year were $838,372, and current liabilities $358,822, leaving a net working capital of $299,550.

NATIONAL CONDUIT WOULD REORGANIZE

Minority Bondholders' Aid Is Asked for Plan to Keep Up Value of Stock.

SEEK HIGHER BID FOR PLANT

One Proposal by Protective Committee Calls for Formation of a New Company.

Charles R. Meston, Chairman of the Stockholders' Protective Committee of the National Conduit and Cable Company, Inc., has sent a letter to the minority holders of the company's first mortgage 6 per cent. ten-year sinking fund gold bonds requesting them to join with the stockholders' committee "to work out a reorganization to save a reasonable value for your bonds and, if possible, some equity for the stock."

Mr. Meston points out that the committee in January offered the bondholders securities with a par value of $1,105 per bond, which, in its opinion, would have had a present cash value of something more than $900, whereas the bondholders recently have been offered $700 for each $1,000 bond.

The letter sent to the minority stockholders says, in part:

"The last printed report shows net quick assets of more than $2,000,000 on Jan. 1, 1923.

"The plant, according to this report, has a book value of more than $6,000,000. In order to realize only $700 per bond this plant would have to be sold at about $1,050,000, which would appear to be an extremely low figure.

"On the basis of this statement, if the plant sold for from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 the bonds would pay from $800 to about $850 per $1,000.

"We ask the minority bondholders to join with us in taking steps to see that a reasonable bid is made for the plant if it is put on sale, so that their interests will be protected and, if possible, some equity obtained for the stockholders.

"The plan under consideration by the Stockholders' Protective Committee provides:

"(a) Acquisition at foreclosure sale of the plant by a new company, to be capitalized substantially as follows: $2,000,000 7 per cent. first mortgage bonds, 2,000,000 shares 7 per cent. preferred stock and 300,000 shares common stock.

"(b) An exchange by the present minority bondholders of their present bonds, with coupons attached, for new 7 per cent. first mortgage bonds of equal amount, and an underwriting of any bonds not taken by the minority bondholders.

"(c) An issue of 7 per cent. preferred stock to provide working capital and an underwriting of the issue.

"(d) An issue of new common stock share for share to the present common stockholders on the payment of $3 per share cash subscription, and an underwriting of any common stock not taken by the present stockholders."

Illinois Traction Merger Completed.

FREE OF PENNSYLVANIA PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX

BUSINESS: The Suffolk Anthracite Collieries, which is being organized under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, for the purpose of acquiring the property and assets of the Suffolk Coal Company, will own and control the operation of approximately 525 acres of anthracite coal lands, part of which is owned in fee, the balance under lease on very advantageous royalty. The colliery, which is modern in every respect, is electrically equipped and comprises breaker, separator, washery, power house, machine shop, electric locomotives, narrow gauge railway lines and all appurtenances necessary to the successful operation of the mine. The property is located at Avoca, near the City of Scranton, Pa., in the northern fields of the anthracite coal region. The colliery is producing and shipping, at the present rate, in excess of 300,000 tons annually. In the opinion of Mr. Charles Enzian, C.E., M.Sc., prominent mining engineer, who has made an extensive examination of the property, it contains a total of more than 6,400,000 tons of recoverable coal, exclusive of any which may be recovered from the culm banks, which are estimated to contain a high percentage of coal.

SECURITY: The Bonds will be a direct obligation of the Company, and will be secured by a first (closed) mortgage on all of the property now owned or hereafter acquired. In the opinion of Mr. Charles Enzian, the property has a value in excess of $4,000,000, or more than FOUR TIMES the total amount of bonds outstanding under this mortgage.

The Company covenants that no dividends on the Common Stock shall be paid until the sum of $250,000 has been set aside as a reserve for contingencies.

SINKING FUND: The mortgage will provide a sinking fund of 30¢ per ton on all coal mined and shipped, with minimum payments of $67,000 annually, to be used to retire Bonds quarterly at not to exceed 107½ and accrued interest, which minimum payments will be sufficient to retire the entire issue at or before maturity.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: Proceeds of the sale of this issue, and of the two classes of capital stock will provide funds for the purchase of the property, the installation of improvements to the mining plant, and adequate working capital.

CAPITALIZATION: Upon completion of this financing, capitalization will be as follows:

	Authorized	Outstanding
First Mortgage Sinking Fund 7% Gold Bonds, due June 1, 1938 (this issue)	$1,000,000	$1,000,000
8% Cumulative Preferred Stock (par value $100)	1,000,000	750,000
Common Stock (no par value)	10,000 Shares	10,000 Shares

EARNINGS: The report upon the operations of the properties for the three years and four months ended April 30, 1923, made by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Company, public accountants, indicated that the net earnings for this period, before depreciation, depletion and Federal Taxes, were at the annual rate of considerably more than THREE TIMES the sinking fund and maximum interest requirements of this issue.

GENERAL: The Coal Sales Company, of Scranton, has contracted to purchase the entire output of the Company for a period of ten years, at a price to be based upon the average current price received by five of the largest independent coal mining companies in the district. The operating management of the Company will continue with the same personnel which has successfully operated the mine during the past three years and four months. The property is strategically located, being served directly by the Delaware & Hudson and Erie Railroad systems.

All legal proceedings are subject to the approval of John B. Caldwell, Jnr., Esq., of Philadelphia, for the Bankers, and H. R. Van Deusen, Esq., of Scranton, for the Company.

B.R.T. PLAN RATIFIED BY TRANSIT BOARD

Merger of New York Municipal and Consolidated Companies Also Approved.

FINAL STEPS NEXT WEEK

The Transit Commission gave its formal approval yesterday to the reorganization of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. This action removed the last legal obstacle to the reorganization and marks the end of the receivership, which has lasted for four and a half years. According to members of the Reorganization Committee, the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company may be succeeded by the recently incorporated Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation as the holding company of the B. R. T. system early next week.

The commission also approved the merger of the New York Municipal Railway Corporation into the New York Consolidated Railroad Company. The latter company operates the B. R. T. rapid transit lines. The New York Municipal Railway Corporation, the stock of which is owned by the New York Consolidated, was organized in 1912 to conduct contractual relations with New York City in its lease of subways. The merger of the two companies is part of the reorganization plan.

The name of the new company to be formed by the merger has not been made public. A meeting of the B. R. T. Reorganization Committee yesterday authorized the Purchasing Committee to buy the New York Consolidated Railroad Company when it is offered for sale today. Approval of this purchase by the United States District Court is expected on Thursday, in which case articles of incorporation of the new company will be filed at Albany on Friday. This will pave the way for a meeting of the temporary directors of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation next week, when permanent directors, including three to represent the public, will be chosen.

Predicts New Receivership.

Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson predicted last night the B. R. T. system would again go into a receivership if the reorganization plan went through. Mr. Nicholson criticised the commission, declaring that it never should have permitted the continuation of a holding company, such as the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation, over which it would have no jurisdiction. Mr. Nicholson also asserted that the capitalization of the reorganized system would be excessive, that the new company would have difficulty in meeting fixed charges and that its tendency would be to skimp service instead of improving it.

The commission based its action in approving the reorganization plan and the merger on a thirty-page opinion by Commissioner Le Roy T. Harkness. Mr. Harkness said that the capitalization of the B. R. T. system at present, including bonds, stocks, notes, certificates of indebtedness and accrued interest, amounted to $271,447,435, on which there were annual charges of $10,242,271.

"Under the reorganization," he said, "it is proposed to issue $92,697,207 of new 6 per cent. bonds and to reinstate and assume $46,512,000 of existing underlying bonds. This would make a total funded debt of $139,209,207 with an annual interest charge of $7,970,492. This annual cost will be increased by sinking fund charges on the new 6 per cent. bonds, to begin not later than Jan. 1, 1927, which will add in the neighborhood of $600,000 a year.

"The proposed capital stock issues are to consist of $23,955,407 of non-par value cumulative preferred stock (with the right in liquidation to participate to the extent of $100 per share) and 766,530 shares of no par value common stock. There must also be considered (unless and until exchanged for new securities) $1,065,300 par value of stock of New York Consolidated, Nassau Electric and Coney Island & Brooklyn Railroad Companies now held by the public.

"This would make a total of funded debt and preferred stock of $184,250,423, and in addition 766,530 shares of no par value common stock. The plan contemplates an eventual issue of not to exceed 850,000 shares of no par value common stock, but present necessity has been shown for only 766,530 shares, and further issues up to the total of 850,000 shares will be decided upon specific future applications. Similarly, consideration is given only to issues of other stock and bonds presently to be issued and leaves further issues to future consideration.

"Through the exceptionally heavy payment required of stockholders amounting to $35 per share, new money to the extent of about $24,000,000 will be raised. The larger part of this will naturally be exhausted in the payment of claims (receiver's certificates, note and bond holders, tort creditors, reorganization expenses, &c.), but $5,000,000 is to be reserved for rapid transit improvements and the balances for working capital. This reserve for rapid transit improvements and for working capital is not represented by bonds or notes, and therefore to that extent strengthens the new company.

"It should also be kept in mind that a great part of the B. R. T. debt was incurred for the new rapid transit lines. In 1918 the City of New York did not have sufficient debt-incurring capacity to finance the entire project. The B. R. T. contributed to the cost of construction and paid the entire cost of equipment to a very considerable extent, having in mind the provisions of the contracts, this represented an indirect method of borrowing by the city. Through this method the city's subway properties have been greatly extended and the public has had a great measure of relief that otherwise it could not get. The bond proceeds have been expended under public supervision and direction. For these reasons the Transit Commissions have taken the position that there existed a very special and the strongest kind of a moral obligation on the part of public officials to safeguard this investment with principle and accrued, unpaid interest, this rapid transit participation now amounts to $80,369,995, and its adjustment absorbs $65,867,270 of the new bond issue and $10,501,866 of the new preferred stock issue."

"1. Termination of receiverships. It does not need argument to show that while at times receiverships are necessary, their continuance is fraught with loss to all concerned. And, in the case of public utilities, this loss falls heavily on the public itself because not only is the service bound to be impaired by insolvency, but improvements and additions must be curtailed or prevented. By extreme efforts, $18,000,000 of receiver's certificates were floated to finance improvements. But this was only part of what was needed on an intensively operated railroad system serving a rapidly growing population. As a specific illustration, the Commission has been embarrassed for months through the inability of the receiver to finance the purchase of more cars. The simple truth of the matter was that the money wasn't on hand and couldn't be raised. Under the reorganization $5,000,000 cash and a $50,000,000 prior lien mortgage to take care of future needs are provided for rapid transit capital expenditures.

"2. Long Time Financing—The whole B. R. T. subway financing was based upon the issuance of nearly $80,000,000 six year 6 per cent. notes, which during the war were replaced by three-year 7 per cent. notes. A company with such a disproportionate issue of short-time securities outstanding is bound to be in a precarious position. This condition is remedied and the situation safeguarded by refunding these notes into long-term bonds carrying 6 per cent. interest.

Payment of Tort Claims.

"3. Payment of Debts. (a) Receiver's Certificates and Accrued Interest—Receiver's certificates aggregating $12,000,000 and now carrying 8 per cent. interest are paid off. Unpaid and accrued interest amounting to $27,000,000 is paid in part and the balance adjusted, thus clearing the way to paying current bond interest. (b) Tort and Contract Creditors—Claims of tort crediters estimated at $2,200,000 are to be paid in cash in full. Claims of general contract creditors amounting to $1,600,000 are to be adjusted.

"One of the striking features of this reorganization is the payment in full of the tort creditors, most of them sufferers from the Malbone Street catastrophe. Under the usual application of the law, tort creditors are wiped out in foreclosures and full loss thrown on a class of the community usually least able to bear it. It is not so in this case—they are to be paid in full. That is a fine, human application of the power of a Federal Judge in a receivership, and full credit therefor must go to Judge Mayer for his initial insistence on this course, and to the several prior lien committees which acquiesced and cooperated.

"4. Provision of New Money—As already pointed out, stockholders are to supply $26,000,000 of new money for the purposes of the reorganization, of which $5,000,000 is to go for rapid transit needs, and the balance after paying claims and expenses, to provide additional working capital. This, with the new $50,000,000 prior lien mortgage, should put the new company in a strong financial condition, especially on the rapid transit side.

"5. Public Participation—A voting trust agreement, put in evidence, provides for three representatives of the public on the Board of Directors. This is valuable as affording the presentation of the public point of view directly to the directorate and thereby increasing public confidence in the company and its policies.

"6. Further Readjustment—This readjustment and the settlement of the legal questions that have abounded during the receivership paves the way for pressing to a conclusion the commission's plan for the readjustment of all the transit lines in the city.

"7. Bettered Service and Restoration of Transfers—Over and above all, from the standpoint of the riding public is the opportunity the reorganization gives for bettered service and the restoration of transfers as and when net earnings increase. * * * The strength of the new company under wise management should steadily increase and as it increases its power and that of the commission to insure improvements in service will likewise increase."

Replies to Critics.

Mr. Harkness discussed the objections put forward by the city, which included opposition to a holding company, failure to consolidate the surface line properties, the receipts over expenditures and the valuations placed upon the company's properties by the commission.

"While I cannot agree with the legal conclusions urged by the Corporation Counsel, I am in accord with the principles underlying them," Mr. Harkness said. "All companies dealing with public utilities, holding companies or otherwise, should be subject to regulation under the Public Service Commission law. In the course of his testimony Gerhard M. Dahl, a member of the Reorganization Committee, stated very clearly his view that holding companies were necessary and beneficial, but that they should be confined to their proper function, that of aiding the financing of the subsidiary companies, and should abstain from operation. That is the policy the commission believes and expects will be followed. Furthermore, Mr. Dahl while on the stand agreed with my criticism of the practice of issuing intercompany certificates of indebtedness."

Mr. Harkness said that the absence of the Brooklyn City Railroad Company, the B. R. T.'s lease of which was abrogated during the receivership, was unfortunate. He pointed out that this company might, however, come into the reorganization in the future.

Regarding the alleged overcapitalization and lack of sufficient margin of receipts over expenditures, Mr. Harkness said that a reasonable margin was indicated.

"It is also urged that this margin would be greatly reduced if the company were compelled to provide what the Corporation Counsel claimed to be the standard of service required by the contract with the city and by provisions of law," Mr. Harkness continued. "This claim that the company has not been living up to its obligations is a contention unsupported by evidence."

In discussing methods of valuation, Mr. Harkness held that in this case, original value less cost of putting in first-class condition was a reasonable method of calculation. On this basis the valuation of the B. R. T. properties was fixed at $164,902,680.

Criticises Board's Action

"The Transit Commission handed down its decision approving the B. R. T. reorganization with amazing speed," Mr. Nicholson said in criticising the Commission's action. "The hearings which began on April 11, were concluded late Thursday evening and the late forenoon on Friday was taken up in a conference on the case; the summer week-end intervened and early Monday morning an opinion of thirty typewritten pages was handed down.

"The outrageous overcrowding and manifest inadequacy of service so painfully obvious to riders in Brooklyn is wholly ignored by the Commission, and, in effect, said to be quite satisfactory to the Commission and all that the public should get.

"The financial discussion is the opinion is of a piece with that regarding service. The city's principal contentions were that the securities that would be issued under the plan would far exceed the fair values of the properties, and, secondly, that the earning power under the company's city contracts and franchises was not sufficient to support the extremely excessive fixed charges resulting from the plan.

"In the valuation the commission included properties which the city showed beyond a shadow of doubt were obsolete and worthless. This applied to large quantities of power plant properties, to antiquated cars, dilapidated buildings and elevated structures. All these facilities, however, were appraised at an excessive value by the commission and have been plastered over with bonds mostly at an interest rate of 6 per cent.

"If the new system is held to its contract and franchise obligations, it will be thrown back into a receivership in a very short time unless it is exceptionally fortunate in the decline of operating expenses. Under the best of circumstances, however, the most that the public can expect, even if operating costs decline materially, is a continuous struggle by the company to meet the fixed charges. There will be a constant skimping of service, a saving of maintenance and replacements, and the public will pay the cost through inconvenience endured until the expiration of the contracts or the recapture of the rapid transit properties by the city."

City Votes Down Payroll Requests —Hylan Orders Inquiry.

Payroll requests of the Transit Commission, totaling $800,000 for July, August and September, were held up yesterday by the Board of Estimate, sitting in Committee of the Whole. Not content with holding up the appropriation, which the commission under the law creating it has the right to compel by application to the Appellate Division, Mayor Hylan directed Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield to investigate the commission's payroll needs and said the city would establish a special bureau to "keep tabs" on the commission and its methods of checking up rapid transit service.

Presumably action by the board on the commission's payroll requests will await Mr. Hirshfield's report or an order of the Appellate Division. William G. Fullen, of counsel to the commission, told the board that the only result would be a delay in paying the hundreds of engineers, draftsmen, clerks and other employes of the commission, and that the board's action would not affect the Commissioners and their immediate staffs, who are paid by the State.

The Mayor and Controller Charles L. Craig had their usual tilt, when the Controller remarked that Hirshfield lacked the moral courage to visit the Transit Commission.

Who Will Serve Your Heirs?

A WIDOW recently expressed appreciation of her husband's foresight in naming this Company executor under his will.

"My husband often told me that I should go to the Guaranty Trust Company for financial advice if anything should happen to him," said the widow, "and, in view of the many problems in the settlement of the estate, I realize how much trouble and worry his thoughtfulness has saved me."

In appointing this Company executor, this business man placed at the disposal of his widow and family an organization which was able both to liquidate advantageously his partnership interest and later to suggest investments adapted to the family's changed circumstances.

This man had made it easy for his widow to seek the impartial advice of this Company on many perplexing business matters.

Are not the problems which your executor and your family will have to solve of sufficient importance to warrant your consideration of this Company as executor of your estate?

We shall be pleased to send you, on request, a copy of our booklet, "Choosing Your Executor—Some Points to Consider," which discusses many of the factors a man should consider in providing by his will for the protection of his family.

THE
OF NEW YORK

ONE year ago today the Capitol National Bank of New York opened its doors to the public—a new bank with a new ideal of service.

Six months later nearly $6,000,000 had been deposited. Now at the end of a year, deposits have risen to nearly $12,000,000.

This advance has been unusually rapid and—more important—surprisingly regular, amounting to approximately one million dollars each month.

There is just one reason for this kind of growth: a steadily increasing appreciation, on the part of the public, of that new ideal of friendliness and cooperation which the Capitol National constantly expresses in tangible service.

OLD COTTON GAINS BUT NEW CROP LOWER

July Advances 10 Points, While October Loses 19, in an Irregular Market.

The course of cotton prices developed considerable irregularity yesterday. An early decline carried late months to new low figures for the movement, but July displayed greater resistance and later a half cent recovery occurred. The fact that weather seemed to sustain confidence in crop improvement during June caused selling, though very little American cotton is pointed toward Liverpool and that market proved steadier than New York. Operations proved heavier than usual, large blocks of cotton changing hands at various times during the session. An increase in the July premium to nearly 3 cents over October became a feature of the day. July closed at an advance of 10 points, compared with a decline of 19 on October.

Though many were not surprised at the failure of Liverpool to meet the drastic decline in American markets the latter part of the week, the quantity of cotton for sale on the opening was unexpected. Instead of opening 30 to 40 points up, owing to the comparative steadiness abroad, July opened only 20 points higher, October about unchanged and December at an actual decline of a quarter of a cent. Selling was in the main directly attributable to over-Sunday weather developments. Not only were there heavy rains in parts of Texas, where wanted, but, outside of showers in a few sections where not desired, the map showed clear, warm weather. As compared with conditions during the greater part of May, this represented a decided change in the situation and a great deal of cotton came out in early trading. For a time, several large buying orders in October on a basis of 23 cents resisted pressure, but it was not long before a break into new low territory for the movement occurred. October ran through 23¾ cents to 22.70, while that month in New Orleans touched 23 cents before the decline altered.

This carried October in New York out of line with Liverpool. The difference increased to over 250 points compared with about 200 points, the average recently. In view of the fact that spot sales abroad jumped to 14,000 bales, the largest transactions in many months, and new crop positions ruled relatively steadier than due, an active covering movement developed later in the session. With prices down 1¼ cents in a few days and the whole growing season ahead, many large covering orders were executed. This eventually caused a rally of half a cent which brought October back around 23¼ cents.

An improved stock and grain market helped cotton while a demand for July contracts advanced the July premium over distant positions. Above 26 cents for July, there was selling out of July contracts against purchases of both October and December, causing more erratic price changes during the afternoon. Several large swapping orders were executed between July and new crop months. One house sold over 15,000 bales of July, covering October at the same time. Despite this July realising, the improvement continued with July gaining slightly from the day compared with a loss in new crop positions. Exports amounted to 16,000 bales, with the total about 750,000 bales behind last season to date.

WHEAT PRICES DROP BUT CORN HOLDS ON

CHICAGO, June 4.—Wheat showed a heavy undertone the greater part of the day, and, while sustained for a time by the strength in corn and local buying, the longs found support absent when they tried to cover and the finish was at the low point, with net losses of 1½@1¾ cent. In the aggregate, trade was not large and the market continues to reflect the lack of a broad speculative interest.

A local man returned from outside markets, says that the leading speculators in the Southwest, as soon as they found that the government had asked for a statement regarding individual interests of 1,000,000 bushels or more, started to sell out immediately.

The rapidity with which prices faded away, with September getting into new low ground on the present downturn, resulted in much bearish comment after the close, and the trade is looking for a fair run of hedging sales against new crop grain to come into the pit within a week or ten days, as harvesting will start in parts of Oklahoma within that period with favorable weather.

Foreign demand for wheat continues slow, with sales of 180,000 bushels hard winter via the gulf at 10 cents over Chicago July, for last half August loading. Sales of around 200,000 bushels Manitoba were also reported.

Three Canadian provinces have a prospective crop of 300,000,000 bushels, 75,000,000 less than last year, according to the Clement, Curtis & Co. report, and the indicated crop of all wheat for North America, of 1,125,000,000 bushels, is about 125,000,000 bushels less than in 1922.

A decrease of 1,210,000 bushels in the visible supply brought the total down to 32,981,000 bushels, against 34,191,000 the previous week and 26,841,000 last year.

Commission houses and local bulls were good buyers of July corn early and caught the pit element oversold, and, when the visible supply statement was posted showing an unexpected decrease of 2,660,000 bushels, there was a general rush to cover, which carried the price up 1¾@2⅛ from the low point, with old crop futures closing ⅝@¾ cent higher, while December, representing the new crop, lost ¼ cent for the day.

Outside markets continue to draw grain away from Chicago, even though the Southwestern feeder demand has fallen off, and corn was weak based on the July quotation, being relatively cheaper than old corn brought in from other points in the interior. The after-planting movement is nearly as large as expected, and is already practically over in parts of Central Illinois. Corn planting is being finished much later than usual in the Central West.

The visible supply is down to 6,734,000 bushels, against 9,394,000 the previous week and 27,046,000 last year, and shows a reduction of about 24,000,000 bushels, as compared with the high point in March.

Primary points received 1,023,000 bushels for the day; week ago, 1,254,000; last year, 883,000. Shipments were 406,000 bushels; week ago, 508,000; last year, 905,000.

Corn receipts were 736,000 bushels, week ago, 712,000; last year, 2,106,000, and shipments, 782,000 bushels; week ago, 404,000; last year, 788,000.

OIL TAX EVASION DENIED.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey yesterday issued a statement saying that its Argentine subsidiary, the West India Oil Company, had in no way evaded its tax obligations with the South American Republic, as reported in a dispatch from Buenos Aires. F. D. Asche, Vice President in charge of foreign properties, said the company had not committed any irregular act or defrauded the Government," and it was said that the charges against the company were based upon a decision of the lower courts and that an appeal would be taken from this decision. Mr. Asche's statement said in part:

"Briefly summarized, the charges are:

"First, with respect to the West India Oil Company, that during the period between 1917 and 1932 it has imported as fuel oil, which would be duty free, a Mexican crude oil which contains light products that are dutiable. The West India Oil Company denies it has committed any irregular act or defrauded the Government in these transactions.

"Second, with respect to the Compania Nacional de Petroleos, Ltd., that it has obtained a greater amount of kerosene and naphtha from the crude oil imported than would ordinarily be obtained from crude oil by the usual processes of refining, and therefore, that the crude thus imported was not a straight natural crude oil. All of the crude oil thus referred to came from the Texas and Louisiana fields in the United States, and from Peru. Mr. Asche states that on every barrel of this crude oil imported into Argentina, the import duty fixed by the Argentine law was paid and that this was natural crude oil as produced and did not contain any admixture of kerosene or naphtha."

BUSINESS FAILURES DECREASE IN MAY

LIABILITIES ARE $31,765,102

Show Drop of 38 Per Cent. From April and 20 Per Cent. From May of Last Year.

Another curtailment, in the number of business failures in the United States was made during May, according to Bradstreet's summary. The total is the smallest reported since last September, and with that exception is the smallest in two years. The extent of the liabilities shows up even more favorably than does the total of suspensions. These in the aggregate are the smallest for any month since August, 1920, when the business boom which culminated in that year was at its peak.

According to Bradstreet's record there were 1,467 failures in May, a decrease of 10 per cent. from the shorter month of April and of 11-per cent. from May last year. There were only seven more failures in May than in September last year, also a shorter month. Liabilities in May totaled $31,765,102, a decrease of 36 per cent. from April, and of 20 per cent. from May last year. Dun's Review reports an increase of ten failures in May as compared with April, but shows a decrease in the total liabilities.

Dun's classification of failures in May follows:

The index number of average commodity prices on June 1, as published yesterday by Dun's Review, showed a decrease of a little more than ¾ of 1 per cent. during the month of May. From the high point of the present year, reached on April 1, the decrease shown was ⅞ of 1 per cent. Prior to May 1, there had been no decrease in any month since last August.

As compared with the low point reached in the reaction of 1921, the June 1 average shows an increase of 13 per cent.; the increase over a year ago is 12 per cent. Compared with the high point of 1920, there is a decrease of 27¾ per cent.; compared with the average of July, 1914, there is an increase of 50 per cent.

Of the seven groups of commodities, for which separate averages are compiled in the report, an increase was shown last month in the clothing and textiles group and in miscellaneous food. All other groups declined. Breadstuffs as a group lost 1¾ per cent. in price during the month; textiles and clothing as a group gained 3 per cent.

ROAD'S NET INCOME SHOWS DROP IN 1922

LAY DECREASE TO STRIKES

Statement Gives Assets as $96,584,-330—$689,934 Spent for New Equipment.

The Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railway Company showed a net income for 1922 of $602,676, after the payment of interest and taxes. This is equivalent to $2.79 a share on the $22,051,100 preferred stock outstanding, as compared with net income of $2,116,712, the previous year, when the company was operated by the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad Company. Of the 1921 income, however, $119,976 was due to Federal lap-over charges.

This decline in income is attributed to the shopmen and coal strikes, in the report President W. J. Jackson made to stockholders. The report, in explaining the loss said:

"The general business depression which prevailed throughout 1921 continued during the first three months of 1922, and although the shut-down of the mines served by this company was expected on April 1 with the expiration of the wage agreement, the coal tonnage during January, February and March was below the average for the same months of other years when the wage agreements of the miners expired on March 31.

"For 1921, bituminous coal was 38.57 per cent. of all freight handled; for 1922 it was 30.0 per cent. The difference represents a decrease of 1,543,840 tons."

	1922.	1921
Operating revenue	$24,731,547	$27,086,148
Total operating expense	21,134,726	20,944,404
Balance of income	602,676	2,116,712

For the year 1922, assets of the company were given as $96,584,330, against $96,054,178 in 1921. Of this amount the total current assets were $5,969,889, including $1,009,703 cash on hand as compared to $3,131,299 at the close of the previous year, when the total current assets were $10,378,728. Materials and supplies on hand at the close of 1922 totaled $2,262,652, against $3,223,706 the previous year.

New equipment was purchased during the year, according to the report, to the amount of $689,934.

CHEMICAL COMPANY FAILS.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, June 4.—Inability to recover from the financial losses during the short 1920 business depression resulted, today in the appointment of a receiver for the Joslin Schmidt Company, chemical and fertiliser manufacturers, with plants in Cincinnati, Reading and St. Bernard, Ohio.

Edward A. Hoelscher, brought here from the Armour plant in Chicago some time ago in the hope of rehabilitating the company, was appointed receiver.

The petition was filed by the American Oak Leather Company, was consented to by the Joslin Schmidt Company.

The company, organized in 1907, has capital of $900,000. The liabilities are given as $359,000 on 8 mortgages held by the Equitable Trust Company of New York, $58,000 money and "some unliquidated claims.

According to the papers it has raw material worth $85,000, and $60,000 due on accounts and notes. The lands, buildings and equipment were appraised in 1919 at $1,500,000 it is alleged, but are now carried on the books at $1,129,-242.21.

ANNOUNCE MOTOR MERGER.

Winton, Haynes and Dorris Cos. Combining With Capital of $19,000,000.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 4.—Stockholders of the Winton Company today approved the plan to merge with the Haynes Motor Company, Kokomo, Ind., and the Dorris Motor Company, St. Louis, Mo., into the Consolidated Motors Corporation, with a capitalization of $19,000,000, it was announced by George H. Brown, Secretary-Treasurer of the Winton Company. The Haynes stockholders also have ratified the proposal.

Through the consolidation all of the Winton Company's liabilities will be cleared up, Mr. Brown said.

If the shareholders of the Dorris Company ratify the plans, the amalgamation will bring together two of the oldest automobile manufacturers in the United States. Elwood Haynes is said to be the first American designer of a gasoline-driven vehicle, while Alexander Winton is claimed to have made the first sale of an automobile in this country.

Mr. Haynes drew public attention to the automobile in the early nineties when he drove the first "horseless carriage" on the streets of Chicago and was promptly fined and cut by city officials. In 1894 he had so perfected his experiment that he was able to drive his machine seven or eight miles in an hour without a stop. Mr. Winton's first recorded sale was in 1896.

Where Fibre Garments Gain.

One of the reasons advanced yesterday for the slump reported in real silk garments in certain quarters of the trade, especially in novelty sweaters and kindred merchandise, was that the greater skill used in the production of fibre silk articles now is bringing out things made of this material that compare very favorably with the real silk goods as a smaller cost to the consumer. In numerous instances it was asserted yesterday fibre silk garments of good workmanship have fooled the buyers themselves, so closely did they simulate real silk. The improvement in manufacture is primarily due to the improved machinery used in making the fibre goods. Not only can these machines be used for making real silk articles, if desired, but they make up fibre things in combinations of two, three and four colors, adding greatly to the appearance of the merchandise and making it a greater competitor of real silk goods.

Spurt in Bathing Suit Demand.

Manufacturers of bathing suits have say that there has been a notable increase in the volume of business placed during the last week or ten days, the warm weather acting as the quickening factor. One well-known wholesaler said yesterday it was no longer a question of selling the goods, but rather one of filling the bunched demands that are being made. Worsted and cotton jersey suits are the leading ones called for, with a pronounced trend toward the brighter colors and fancy stripings. Lines for the next season will be opened about July 10, it is understood, by those manufacturers who sell to the jobbing trade. Some of the leading manufacturers who sell retailers mainly, it was said yesterday, will open their lines on Aug. 15. The present status of the yarn market is given as the reason for the action of the latter in delaying their showings.

Gray Goods Very Quiet.

The local gray goods market had not recovered yesterday from the shock of the cotton crop report, with the result that business was at a low

STATES LEVY MILLIONS ON MOTORING IN WEST

New Taxes on Gasoline or Car Licenses Will Net Texas $8,000,000, Indiana $3,000,000.

CHICAGO, June 4 (Associated Press).—Millions of dollars will be forthcoming from the pockets of motorists in a number of Middle Western States during the coming year as the result of laws passed by Legislatures of the Winter and Spring.

Two taxing measures dealing with automobiles were passed in Texas. One places a 1 cent tax on each gallon of gasoline sold by wholesale dealers, while the other revises the present system of motor license fees and increases them approximately 100 per cent. It is estimated that the gasoline tax will net the State $2,500,000 and the license fee increase will bring $5,000,000.

Indiana now has a law imposing a tax of 2 cents a gallon on gasoline, estimated to yield $3,000,000 yearly. This will be devoted to good road purposes. In addition the Legislature passed a law, effective next Jan. 1, increasing the license tax on automobiles.

In Oklahoma a tax of 1 cent a gallon on gasoline is expected to yield $900,000 annually. In Oklahoma City an ordinance puts the charge for a city license at 50 cents and is expected to yield $18,000 to the city.

Tax legislation in Kentucky passed in 1922, which became effective this year, is expected to net the State $300,000.

In Ohio eighty-seven bills directly affecting automobile owners were introduced in the Legislature, but the only one that was passed increased the tax on trucks.

Only one State showed a decrease. This was in Minnesota, where the method was changed. It was estimated that, while the average car tax for last year was $17, the average for this year will be $16.44.

In both Michigan and Iowa a tax of 2 cents a gallon on gasoline was passed by the Legislatures but was vetoed by the Governors.

In Iowa a law was passed placing motor bus and truck transportation lines under the supervision of the State Railroad Commission, while a ton-mile tax was imposed on these lines to draw from them a contribution to the State highway maintenance fund.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., June 4.—Molly Covington Hanna of Deal Beach, N. J., fourth wife of the late Dan R. Hanna, through her temporary guardian, James D. Carton of Asbury Park, N. The declaration states that he converted to his own use certain money entrusted to him. A temporary guardian was recently appointed for Mrs. Hanna because of alleged mental incapacity. She is expected soon at her estate in Stockbridge in care of attendants.

This structure is 15 stories in height and is arranged in suites of four, five, six and seven rooms, providing accommodations for 90 families, with an annual rental of over $230,000.

The house stands on a site of about six lots, fronting 103 feet on Riverside Drive and 122 feet on Cathedral Parkway, with southerly and easterly lines of 152 and 100 feet respectively. The site comprises part of the block originally owned by Russell Sage. This parcel was held at $1,800,000, and was sold through I. Katz as broker.

Klein & Jackson and S. H. Stone have purchased through William A. White & Sons from John Hoagland the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Sixty-third Street, size 28 by 100. It is a five-story and basement fireproof building, covering the lot, assessed at $400,000, and held by the owners at $500,000. Negotiations are under way to resell to a builder, who intends to add two stories to the building, putting several two and three room suites on each floor.

The Hollard Holding Co., Judson P. Todd, President, which recently purchased Lenox Hall, an 8-story apartment house, at the southeast corner of Madison Avenue and Seventy-seventh Street, has resold the property to an investing client of Gettner, Simon & Asher.

I. B. Wakeman resold for Charles Bellows the six-story elevator apartment known as the Court Rabelle at 416 West 122d Street, on plot 100 by 90, facing Morningside Park. The property was held at $250,000 and returns an annual rental of about $40,000. The new owner is an investor. Mr. Bellows bought the house a couple of months ago through the same broker.

Frederick Brewn Buys Five Houses.

Frederick Brown purchased yesterday the row of five apartment houses on the west side of Convent avenue from 128 to 129th Street. They were erected about ten years ago by interests controlling the Lawrence Holding Company, the seller. It was developed as a very high-class residential section and improved with homes ranging in price from $25,000 to $150,000, and occupied by a number of New York's leading bankers and lawyers.

Arrangements having been made with several builders, work will immediately be commenced on about fifty dwellings.

FOREST HILLS AUCTION.

About 3,000 men and women crowded the big tent at Forest Hills on Saturday when Bryan L. Kennelly, Inc., offered at auction the Vanderveer tract immediately adjacent to the Sage Foundation.

At the time the selling was stopped there still remained about 300 lots. This property will be sold at a continuation sale on Saturday of this week by Bryan L. Kennelly, Inc.

From the outset of the sale it was evident that the co-operation of the Gardens Corporation in Forest Hills in supervising the exterior design of houses to be erected on the blocks nearest the present Forest Hills development was just the assurances desired by the class of buyers present. Of the 623 lots in both the restricted and unrestricted sections of the properties, the average was between $700 and $800 each.

The first lots to be offered were the three on the northeast corner of Continental Avenue and Harrow Street. This plot was sold for $7,800. The plot on the northwest corner of Continental Avenue and Harrow Street went for $7,200. Later on the northeast and northwest corners of Herrick Avenue and Harrow Street were offered and sold for $5,400 and $4,800 respectively.

BIG PLOT ASSEMBLED.

Marcus M. Marks Obtains 200-Foot Frontage.

Leon S. Altmayer sold the vacant lots Nos. 15, 17 and 23 East Ninety-eighth Street to Marcus M. Marks, former President of the Borough of Manhattan. By this recent purchase the following properties have been combined under one ownership: 5, 7, 9, 11, 13, 15, 17, 19, 21, 23 East Ninety-eighth Street, making a total combined plottage of 250 feet by 100 feet 11 inches.

This is said to be the largest plot in the city in one owner's hand between Fifth and Madison Avenues. This plot is desirable for fine apartments or residences or for a public institution.

It is understood that the three lots 14, 16 and 18 East Ninety-eighth Street, on the south side of the street, have been sold within the last few days.

EIGHTH AVENUE DEALS.

Operators Buy Sites on the West Side.

Arthur Greenbaum and Nathan Wilson have purchased from the Ludin Realty Company 269 and 271 West Fortieth Street, 40.6 by 98.9, being 59.6 feet east of Eighth Avenue, held at $125,000; also, the two buildings at 626 and 628 Eighth Avenue, being 59.6 feet west of Fortieth Street, and forming an L with 269-271 West Fortieth Street, from the Kenner estate and individuals, size 38.4 by 59.6, held at $150,000.

The Harry N. Stein Company was the broker in all the transactions.

Cyril A. Carroll, Inc., and John Newton Porter have sold for the Soil Mill Realty Company to an operating client the seven-story loft building known as 101 Prince Street, between Mercer and Greene Streets, on a lot 25 by 100. The building contains seven lofts, with a store on the ground floor, with a rental of $13,000. The property was held at $75,000 and assessed at $56,000. Negotiations for a resale of this loft are pending.

LONG BEACH LOTS SOLD.

Two-Day Sale Brings Total of $574,000.

At the close of the Long Beach sale last Saturday evening it was announced that $574,000 worth of lots had been sold at the sale held on Decoration Day (Wednesday, May 30) and Saturday, June 2.

The sale, which was the third consecutive Decoration Day event of the kind held by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, was one of the most successful and widely attended ever held at Long Beach. New levels of value were established in both the sections lying between Park Street and the bay (the North Park section) and in the South Park section between Park Street and the boardwalk.

In the North Park section bungalow building lots brought $650 to $750 each, and were in active demand, competition being extremely keen for locations on and near Neptune Boulevard, opposite to the proposed new seashore race track which is being fostered by Mayor Reynolds and his associates.

In the South Park section, also opposite the proposed new seashore race track and closer to the Lido golf course than any lots acted heretofore at public auction, prices ranged from $1,050 to $2,000, and $7,100 for boardwalk lots extending through to Front Street and located on the boardwalk as extended recently to Neptune Boulevard.

Mortgage Loans Placed.

Bennett E. Siegelstein, representing Nicholas Christatos, the owner of the southwest corner of Fifty-eighth Street and Sixth Avenue, closed the mortgage of $800,000 on the premises, which was placed by Irving Bank, Columbia Trust Company, as trustee. The loan is to be advanced as the work on the erection of the 17-story building progresses. In connection with the closing of the mortgage, the Maryland Casualty Company issued to Mr. Siegelstein's client, as well as the Irving Bank, Columbia Trust Company, the surety bond in the sum of $500,000.

According to the lease which was obtained by the Park Chambers Inc. on the premises, the total aggregate rental for the period of 63 years will reach in the neighborhood of $4,500,000.

Plans and specifications have already been filed, and approved, demolition started, and the cost of the building is estimated at $1,350,000.

William A. White & Sons obtained a first mortgage loan of $35,000 at six per cent. for three years for the 145th Street Realty Co., a holding company, for the Gorman estate on the plot on the south side of 145th Street, 150 feet west of Broadway.

Commercial Leases.

Haynes-Griffin Radio Service Inc. leased the westerly store in the new and exclusive Bar Building, at 37 West Forty-third Street, for a period of five years at an approximate gross rental of $50,000. Spotts & Starr Inc. were the brokers.

L. & A. Pincus and M. L. Goldstone leased for a term of 42 years, the five-story building, size 21 by 100, No. 37 West Fifty-first Street, which they will alter into business premises and apartments.

William J. Roome & Co. Inc. leased for a long term of years on a net basis, the property 459 Sixth Avenue, a four-story building 20 by 100, to Adolph Moscovits, a druggist. William G. MacLean was associated as broker.

The five-story business building at 44 and 46 West Thirty-seventh Street was leased by Jerome A. Teller, as broker, for the Forty-four and Forty-six Millinery Corp. from John H. Henshaw for a term of 42 years.

Business Properties.

Mandelbaum & Lewine, Inc., have sold to a client of S. Fine the four-story business building at 32 East Twenty-eighth Street, on lot 20 by 100, recently purchased.

The same interests also sold to a client of Nassoit & Lanning, for occupancy, a costly estate with six acres, at Kensington Gardens, Great Neck.

August Oppenheimer resold to the Thompson Contracting and Construction Company, Inc., the sixteen-story mercantile building at southeast corner of Twenty-first Street, known as 920 Broadway, size 96 by 73 irregular. It rents for approximately $110,000 a year. Ernest Tribelhorn negotiated the transaction.

$43,100 for New London Place.

Offering at executor's auction sale last Saturday of the waterfront country place on Pequot Avenue, New London, Conn., of the late James D. Lynch attracted wide attention and more than 300 persons attended the sale, which was held in the large reception room of the residence. Arthur C. Sheridan acted as auctioneer. The purchase price was $43,100, and the purchasers were represented by Lucius E. Whiton of New London, who represents a number of wealthy residents in the exclusive Pequot Manor section of New London, who bought the property for a private bathing beach.

Buy to Protect Light.

Butler & Baldwin, Inc., have resold for the Mandel Ehrich Corporation 310 Lexington Avenue, a three-story-and-basement dwelling, 24.8 by 100, to Delano & Aldrich, architects. This property was acquired by the sellers a few days ago, and was bought by Delano & Aldrich to protect the side light of their offices after the expiration of the lease which they now hold from the Phelps Stokes estate.

Plans $1,000,000 Office Building.

Louis Berbino, as president of Fifth Avenue and Forty-sixth Street Corporation, will build sixteen-story showrooms and offices, to cost $1,000,000, at 2-8 West Forty-sixth Street, from plans to be completed by Schwartz & Gross, architects. The plot, 100 by 100, was bought recently from the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, for which the John D. Rockefellers have provided a new edifice on Park Avenue.

Former Governor Obtains Loan.

Former Gov. Nathan L. Miller has obtained a first mortgage for $160,000 on the residence, 30 by 100, at 2 East Sixty-seventh Street, which he purchased for his home recently. The loan was obtained by Lawrence, Blake & Jewell, and is for five years.

TRADING IN BROOKLYN.

Block Front to Be Improved With Small Dwellings.

William Liss, Inc., sold for Simon H. Harding a block front on Dahill Road, running from Louisa Street to Clara Street, including both corners, being 211 feet front by about 100 feet in depth, to the Dansmit Realty Company, who will improve with two-family semi-detached stucco house with garages. This property was sold for $20,000.

The McInerney-Klinck Realty Company, as brokers, have sold the three-story brick and limestone store and apartment building on the east side of Flatbush Avenue, eighty-one feet north of Tilden Avenue.

The premises have a frontage of 20 feet and a depth of 95 feet and is known as 1,003 Flatbush Avenue. The premises were sold for Francis X. Langenwalter and Gertrude Langenwalter to a client for investment.

Henry Pierson Co. sold the three-story two-family dwelling with garage, 20 by 80, at 628 Carlton Avenue, to Belle Heyward for occupancy.

Realty Notes.

Lawrence, Blake & Jewell have placed a first mortgage of $18,000 on 580 West End Avenue, a four-story house; $26,000 on the south side of 137th Street, 115 feet west of Southern Boulevard, a one-story garage; $25,000 on 4,010-16 Park Avenue, a three-story business building on a plot 50 by 125.

J. B. English, Inc., was the broker who negotiated the lease for twenty-one years for Arthur Hammerstein to Oliver D. Bailey on the Republic Theatre, 207 to 211 West Forty-second Street.

J. Goldberg & Co. were the brokers who sold the southeast corner of Twenty-second Street and Sixth Avenue to John Skougard of Christiania, Norway, to the St. John's Place Development Company, controlled by Louis Kovner and I. Goldberg.

The Bronx Market.

Harry T. F. Johnson has resold for Harry Brenneis to a client for investment the five-story apartment house 2,902 Grand Concourse, 50 by 105, showing a rental of $16,000 and held at $110,000.

The five-story apartment at 1,013 Fox Street, corner 165th Street, was sold by I. H. Weisberger for Krumdieck Brothers to Joseph Specktorsky. It was held at $100,000, and a resale is pending.

Operator Adds to Site.

Spear & Co. have accumulated for Harry A. Well a plot of 5,000 square feet on Lexington Avenue at Twenty-fourth Street, including the three dwellings on 44-46-48 Lexington Avenue, together with the three-story building at 129 East Twenty-fourth Street, abutting the Lexington Avenue plot in the rear. It is the plan of Mr. Well to combine this Twenty-fourth Street lot with the Lexington Avenue property, giving greater depth for their improvement.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4.—An extensive area of high barometer persisted during Monday off the south Atlantic Coast and the pressure was lower over a wide belt extending from the Gulf of St. Lawrence southwestward to New Mexico and Arizona, and was relatively high over the Canadian Northwest. This pressure distribution has been attended by warm weather all over districts east of the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific States and by relatively cool weather over the Rocky Mountain and Plateau regions. There have been scattered thunder showers within the last twenty-four hours in the South Atlantic and East Gulf States, the North Atlantic States, the region of the Great Lakes, the upper Mississippi Valley, the Plains States and the Rocky Mountain region. There were heavy local rains in Northern Michigan, Florida, Southern Georgia, Southwest Missouri and the Texas Panhandle.

The outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday is for considerable cloudiness and scattered thunder showers quite generally over the Washington forecast district. The temperature will moderate slightly Tuesday and Wednesday in the Ohio Valley and the Lower Lake region and probably Wednesday in the interior of the Middle Atlantic States, otherwise the temperature will not change materially in the Eastern and Southeastern States during the next forty-eight hours.

Public School Notes.

BOY SCOUTS IN STREET TRAFFIC—Numerous complaints have been received by the Police Department that Boy Scouts have been going out into the middle of the street at crossings and endeavoring to regulate vehicular traffic, assuming the duties of traffic policemen, according to a letter from the Executive Secretary of the Bureau of Public Safety of the Police Department to the Superintendent of Schools and issued by him in a general circular to district Superintendents and Principals.

"The first rule in the pamphlet of safety instructions," according to the circular, "provides for the escorting of children across streets at crossings near school intersections, but does not, in any way, require boys to stand in the street and regulate vehicular traffic."

SIRENS FOR SAFETY HOUR—Dr. Ettinger also quotes in his general circular from a letter from Barron Collier, Special Deputy Police Commissioner:

"Safety Hour was inaugurated in the schools commencing on Public Safety Day, Friday the 25th inst. At this hour the children in all the schools stand at attention and receive safety warnings and admonitions from their teachers. To make this an impressive ceremony and to remind the children and the drivers that safety hour is at hand we have arranged to have factory and steamboat whistles blown, church bells rung and automobile horns sounded from one minute before 3 and continuing until 3 o'clock. While the demonstration was carried out well the first day, we two we find thers has been a tendency for the blowing of the whistles to diminish as the days go on.

"Would it be possible for the principals of schools to give us some aid by communicating with factory and churches in the neighborhood of their schools and by a personal appeal to co-operate?"

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

THE SOUTH SEA ISLANDS—Fiji, Samoa and Tahiti—romantic and primitive, never before visited on a cruise, usually accessible only with great effort and much broken travel—have been included in the RAYMOND-WHITCOMB ROUND THE WORLD CRUISE for 1924. Travelers will appreciate that this is an extraordinary accomplishment. Added to this significant voyage are visits to such standard Far East lands as Egypt, India, Burma, Java, the Philippines, China, Japan, Etc. ¶We have re-chartered the "Resolute," just back from our 1923 Round the World Cruise. With her luxurious appointments, equipment and cuisine, she is the perfect cruiseship. The value of sailing with officers and a crew who know the Round the World "ropes" is obvious. ¶The cruise will sail "Eastbound" from New York, January 19, 1924, reaching Egypt, India and Japan "in Season." 127 days, $1650 and upward. Limited to 450 passengers. Complete details furnished on request

The "Reliance"—sister-ship of the "Resolute"—is re-chartered for our 3d Annual Cruise to the Mediterranean and Egypt, sailing February 9, 1924. 2 months. $850 and upward. Limited to 450 passengers. Details on request.

ALFRED W. McCANN

Foremost Food Expert of The Nation.

Now Writes Exclusively

For

ALFRED W. McCANN

ALFRED W. McCANN has long been recognized as the greatest food authority writing for the American press. More than that, his handling of this important matter, which has a direct bearing on the daily lives of every man, woman and child in the country, has been marked by a fearlessness practically unparalleled in contemporary journalism.

He has pilloried every abuse discovered in years of research in the food markets of the larger cities. In waging war upon influences that threatened the quality of the food supply of this and other centers of population he has probably saved thousands of lives.

In coming to The Evening Mail, he finds a broad and sympathetic field for his tireless activities. His pen will become a powerful instrument for good.

Mr. McCann's department in The Evening Mail will be eagerly followed, not alone by the housewife intent upon the food problems that come uppermost in her daily life, but by the student of modern tendencies in the law of supply and demand, in which the item of foodstuffs plays so important a part.
